TORNADO WRECKAGE fills Cincinnati's busy Galbraith Road after the funnel-shaped cloud touched down in suburban Reading Saturday night. The storm smashed business buildings and homes and injured more than 200 persons. There were four fatalities and 460 families homeless.

Swath of Destruction Hits Cincinnati Area

CINCINNATI (UPI) — This city's first tornado in more than a half-century left behind a $7 million swath of destruction nine miles long, four persons dead and 460 families homeless.

Some 700 Ohio National Guardsmen patrolled the devastated areas in northern Cincinnati and nearby suburbs to prevent looting today while officials appealed for federal disaster assistance.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, who toured the area early Sunday with Mayor Eugene Ruehlmann and other officials, called the damage "devastating."

Many of the homeless were among some 400 families evacuated from the lake shore apartments in nearby Reading, where Mrs. Joanne Lee said: "I saw trees and pieces of lumber from the sides of the building flying through the air."

25 HOMES DESTROYED

The Red Cross reported that 25 homes were destroyed and 85 others suffered major damage, leaving them uninhabitable. Some 350 apartment units also were destroyed.

Most of those forced from their homes found space with friends and relatives, but 29 members of six families spent Sunday night in a temporary shelter at a school. More than 100 persons stayed there Saturday night.

Sylvester Del Corso, Ohio's national guard adjutant general, who estimated the damages, said the troops — patrolling and directing traffic — would remain on duty as long as they were needed. The clean-up already was well under way Sunday.

TRAPPED

At first it was feared many persons might be trapped beneath the rubble of buildings as were a young woman and two sons, found by firemen early Sunday. But the Red Cross said everyone in the path of the storm had been accounted for.

The dead were Mrs. Carolyn de Borde, 21, of Cincinnati, her sons Delbert, 5, and Rodney, 3, and Mrs. Zelphia Taylor, 45, of Williamsburg, Ohio.

Mrs. Taylor died Sunday evening of head injuries suffered Saturday night when her husband's car was blown back on the highway and flipped over several times by high winds after he had pulled off the road.

CAR FLIPPED

Jim Thomas, an off-duty Cincinnati policeman who was one of the first to spot the storm, reported seeing an auto flipped over and a man and woman thrown from it, but it was not certain if this had been the Taylor car.

"Uprooted trees were moving across the road," said Thomas, who at the time still was clad in a bathing suit after an afternoon outing on the Ohio River. "A guy's car started flipping through the air and just kept turning over and over."

The twister touched down early Saturday night in the community of Hartwell, just within Cincinnati's northern city limits. It was there that the two top floors were torn off Mrs. de Borde's apartment house.

OVER IN MINUTES

It moved through Reading, Carthage and Silverton, just outside the city limits, and Amberly village and Madeira about five miles away. Within a matter of minutes it was over.

The storm affected an area about a city block wide, bounding from town to town and causing most of its damage in the business district of each community.

Grants Announced

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Council grants totalling more than $13,000 to institutions in British Columbia and Alberta were announced Monday. The awards were part of a total of $102,647 for universities, learned societies and publishers.

Youngster Triumphs

DOVER, England (AP) — Jon Erikson, 14-year-old Chicago schoolboy, today became the youngest swimmer ever to conquer the English Channel. Erikson swam from Cap Gris Nez on the French coast to a beach west of Dover in 11 hours, 23 minutes.

Cong Steps Up Effort; 38 U.S. Troops Killed

SAIGON (AP) — Thirty-eight Americans were killed and 144 wounded in fierce attacks that North Vietnamese troops launched against U.S. forces along the Cambodian, Laotian and demilitarized zone frontiers Sunday, military spokesmen said today.

The toll of American war dead was the largest reported during any 24-hour period since a lull began in the fighting June 18.

U.S. military analysts indicated that the stepped-up attacks could presage the fall campaign that American officers expect.

There was new apprehension along the demilitarized zone with the disclosure that North Vietnamese troops fighting the U.S. marines there during the last four days were from a fresh regiment.

"The intelligence we have received from all four corps tactical zones indicates the enemy is preparing for a fall campaign to be conducted during August and September," one analyst said. "Although there is some variation in the timing for the campaign, the enemy holidays of Aug. 18, Sept. 2 and Sept. 23 have been mentioned by defectors and documents."

Fighting was reported near the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon, just below the central sector of the demilitarized zone separating Vietnam, on two sides of Hamburger Hill beside the Laotian border, and in the populous coastal lowlands south of Da Nang.

Three more American helicopters were shot down, two during a fight 28 miles southeast of Da Nang and the third 50 miles west of Da Nang. Two crewmembers were killed and two were wounded. The losses raised to 2,895 the number of American helicopters reported lost in the war.

Nineteen U.S. marines were killed and 80 wounded when more than 250 North Vietnamese troops attacked two of their night bivouacs astride infiltration routes two miles south of the central DMZ. North Vietnamese losses were put at 36 killed.

Tight Controls Voted On All Gas Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate voted today to put new controls on the testing, storage and transportation of chemical and biological weapons. The vote was 91 to 0.

Critics of the defence department framed the proposals, and department allies agreed to the terms after Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird endorsed them.

Among key provisions of the measure, an amendment to a $20,000,000,000 military procurement authorizing bill:

—A requirement that open-air tests of chemical and biological weapons be approved in advance by the defence secretary and the surgeon-general, with congressional committees advised on the testing.

A ban on defence department procurement of delivery weapons specifically designed for use with chemical or biological weapons.

A bar on storage outside the U.S. without prior notice to the country involved.

Detoxication of all lethal weapons before they are shipped.

Specific congressional clearance of all spending for chemical and biological weapons.

Senator Charles Goodell (Rep., N.Y.) said the Senate should consider next year a total ban on U.S. efforts in such weapons.

He said that he is not convinced that there must be a U.S. counterpart to every weapon in the hands of potential enemy.

"There is a capability on the part of the Soviet Union," said Senator Everett M. Dirksen Rep. Ill.). 'We must have to have some kind of a retaliatory facility for the very purpose of detering others from ever using it."

Zond Loops Past Moon; Heads Home

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet moon vehicle Zond VII photographed the lunar surface today, rounded the moon and is heading for earth, an official announcement said.

There were no details on what parts of the moon were photographed or what use will be made of the pictures.

The Zond series has been officially described as part of the Soviet program to land a man on the moon. Zond VII possibly explored landing sites.

The information released today indicated the craft only looped the moon and swung back toward earth, not entering into a full orbit of the moon.

Paris Freezes Prices, Profits

Market Partners Offer Assistance

By DAVID LAULIGHT

PARIS (Reuters) — Government inspectors were out in force today to ensure storekeepers adhere strictly to a sweeping price freeze announced by the government Sunday night.

The freeze—imposed as part of austerity measures announced following the 12.5-per-cent devaluation of the franc Friday—will remain in effect until Sept. 15.

Until then prices must be kept at their level Friday. The inspectors can revoke any increase.

The freeze, which also covers industrial prices, profit margins, and profits on certain fruits and vegetables, was imposed to allow the country to hold the advantages of devaluation, the government said.

France won swift and unanimous approval for devaluation from the International Monetary Fund, meeting in Washington Sunday, and a spokesman said Paris did not apply for a loan to strengthen its current reserves.

In Brussels, the European Common Market executive commission called for all possible help to France.

Jean Rey, Belgian president of the commission, said the six-nation body should help France to a maximum extent.

But he told the Common Market foreign and agriculture ministry, meeting here, that any aid to France should cause the least possible upset to community policies.

Rey described the French decision as a thunderbolt which caused both surprise and inconvenience. He chided France for not consulting with its five partners before announcing the devaluation, as stipulated under a 1964 market decision.

France, he said, could have informed its community partners Friday night and announced the devaluation Saturday morning.

Earlier, French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing defended France's decision not to consult with its partners, informed sources said.

They quoted him as saying that prior consultations would have necessitated closing all financial markets in the world and would have led inevitably to speculation.

Times News Services

Devaluation of the French franc produced relatively light activity on the international money markets today.

At Frankfurt, the U.S. dollar and British pound dropped sharply in relation to the West German mark, then rallied. Volume was not great and experts said there was no sign of speculation.

In London, the pound fell by just over half a cent but there was no immediate pressure on the Bank of England to dip into its reserves to support Sterling.

Speculators bought West German marks and sold Belgian francs but there was no wild fluctuation and trading volume was low.

HOW TO RATE YOUR PRINCIPAL

TULSA (UPI)—Teachers in the public school system here, irked at the rating system for them, have devised their own rating system for principals.

No one else takes it seriously, but the teachers like it. It goes this way.

Promptness:
—Is faster than a speeding bullet.
—Is as fast as a speeding bullet.
—Would you believe a slow bullet.
—Misfires frequently.
—Wounds self while handling guns.

Initiative:
—Is stronger than a locomotive.
—Is as strong as a bull elephant.
—Almost as strong as a bull.
—Shoots the bull.
—Smells like a bull.

Qualifications:
—Leaps tall buildings at a single bound.
—Leaps tall buildings at a running start.
—Can leap short building if prodded.
—Bumps into buildings.
—Cannot recognize buildings.

Adaptability:
—Walks on water.
—Keeps head above water under stress.
—Washes with water.
—Drinks water.
—Passes water in emergencies.

Communication:
—Talks with God.
—Talks with the angels.
—Talks to himself.
—Argues with himself.
—Loses arguments with himself.

Moonmen Face Hectic Week

HOUSTON (AP) — Freed from three weeks of isolation, the Apollo 11 astronauts relaxed with their families today before plunging into a hectic round of celebrations of their historic moon-landing.

Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins sped straight to their homes Sunday night when released from quarantine quarters. Only hours before, doctors had said they could find no evidence of alien germs or infection from the astronauts' lunar contact.

A waiting world was ready to heap the pioneers with honors in the weeks ahead.

The whirlwind schedule starts Tuesday when Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins hold a news conference here to report on their daring mission.

That afternoon, a downtown Houston luncheon will be attended by nearly 700 space workers.

On Wednesday, the astronauts and their families fly to New York for a ticker tape parade and an appearance at the United Nations, followed in the afternoon by another parade in Chicago. The day winds up in Los Angeles at a gala state dinner with President Nixon as host.

PARTY UNDER DOME

On Saturday, they will be honored by a Houston parade followed by a Texas-sized party in the Astrodome.

In the weeks that follow, they'll be welcomed in many cities in the United States and will appear before Congress.

Vandalism, Bombing Link Suspected in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Police believe a bomb explosion this weekend in suburban Town of Mount Royal may be connected with acts of vandalism in two local churches.

Large dollar signs and the words "Hunger" in both French and English were found painted in two churches after the blast which rocked a commercial building and shattered windows for several blocks.

It is believed the bomb was home-made and consisted of about 10 sticks of dynamite.

There were no injuries.

The building housed the offices of the Industrial Acceptance Corp., a loan company.

It was the first bombing in the Montreal area since July 7 when five bombs exploded at buildings housing construction company offices all across Montreal.

Those bombings were believed connected with a province-wide construction dispute.

NANAIMO ELECTION SCENE

Man vs. the Machine

By JIM HUME
Times Reporter

NANAIMO — Nanaimo voters will do more than elect a new MLA on Aug. 27.

They will also settle the old question: what wins elections, the personality of the candidate or the political machine?

If it's the machine, give the constituency to two-time winner Dave Stupich, NDP.

If it's personality, look for Social Credit standard bearer Frank Ney to win back the seat held for years by former cabinet minister Earl Westwood, and lost to the NDP in 1963.

Ney, the popular mayor, who has put Nanaimo on the map during two brief years in office, is running hard on his mayoralty success record.

Stupich, a chartered accountant, and winner of two elections by narrow margins, knows what he has to do to beat his wealthy realtor rival: organize.

Although traditionally known as a safe NDP seat, the fact is that for six years Stupich has worn the Nanaimo crown with uneasy grace.

●

In 1963 he beat Westwood, then minister of recreation, by a slim 19-vote majority. In 1966, he beat Ney, running for office for the first time, by 45 votes.

Stupich says he is confident he can make it three in a row later this month.

If he does, he can thank an organizational machine left behind by federal NDP leader Tommy Douglas when he whipped the Liberals here in February.

The NDP "heavies," Gordon Brigden and Michael Lewis, were in town Saturday for a workers' pep rally, which leaned heavily on the Douglas campaign for inspiration.

Brigden is a national organizer, based in Toronto but working most of this election in the Vancouver area, with sporadic visits to Nanaimo planned. Lewis is the provincial organizer for the party. He, too, plans periodic forays to Nanaimo during the next 16 days.

Saturday morning the party rallied in strength for Brigden's pep talk. Some 80 of the faithful listened before heading out to all corners of the constituency for their second door-to-door canvas.

Three door-knocking campaigns are planned, four if there's time, before the polls open.

And as always, the NDP is already gearing for the vital election day task of getting the people to the polls.

In 1966, Stupich says he had two canvassers—himself and his wife. For this campaign, he has close to 100, all veterans of the federal Douglas byelection.

●

"This is a different type of campaign," Stupich said Saturday. "I have inherited a tremendous organization built up over five months, for the byelection. Frank Ney is a strong and popular man, he can't be underestimated."

Across the city on Commercial Street, Ney is running equally hard, though not so well organized.

His committee rooms, located across from the pillared offices of the Great National Land Development Company, of which he is president, are busy and crowded with volunteer workers.

They are eager and confident, but lack the professional and militant polish of the NDP.

And they take constant consolation from the fact that in the two elections in which they were defeated, the margin was slim enough to require judicial recounts.

In addition to battling the NDP, Ney, over the weekend was fighting off a bug described as a mild attack of measles. Half a dozen of his 11 children are down with the summer malady.

Campaign manager Les Mottishaw, a relative rookie in politics, bubbles with confidence.

And if he muffs a few of his statistical lines when asked about the size of his candidate's family, it doesn't seem to bother him.

"It's his track record you go by," says Mottishaw. "And so far, it has been excellent. No matter what political party you belong to, you have to admit he's moved Nanaimo ahead."

Nobody denies that. Not even Robert S. Plecaf, the 24-year-old rookie running on the Liberal ticket in a three-way

NDP Signs Result In Court Summons

By The Canadian Press

Three North Vancouver men have been summoned to appear in court Thursday, accused of allowing oversize campaign signs, for the Aug. 27 British Columbia election, on private property.

Named in summonses, issued under a bylaw requiring city permits for signs larger than four square feet, are L. C. Reuseh, Harry Ryttersgaad and Terence Simpsons.

The summonses followed warnings last week by bylaw enforcement officer John Bruckner that residents would be charged if oversize signs supporting NDP candidate Rod Dickinson were not removed.

Maximum penalty under the bylaw is $100. NDP campaign workers in North Vancouver-Seymour riding said they will challenge the legality of the bylaw.

Meanwhile, two NDP candidates said Sunday they have sent a telegram to Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand, seeking inclusion of northwest B.C. in the new federal program of designated regions for economic expansion.

SEEK INDUSTRY

James Manly of Prince Rupert and Skeena candidate Harry Robertson said the area's economy is based on lumber, fishing and minerals and there is a "pressing need" for secondary and manufacturing industries involving these resources.

The NDP renominated accountant Jim Jacobs in the Kamloops riding Saturday following a disputed first nomination.

The vote was 97 to 27. Defeated was Mike Riley, whose charges of irregularities in the handling of mailed ballots at the first nominating convention forced the second nomination.

Sunday, a sea-sick float plane pilot kept NDP leader Tom Berger from a campaign rally in Dawson Creek.

Mr. Berger was in a party taken to Williston Lake, behind the W. A. C. Bennett Dam, 500 miles north of Vancouver, to inspect debris in the filling lake.

WATER CHOPPY

Pilot Nick Bloomfield, 26, of Prince George, remained in the aircraft while others went ashore. After 90 minutes on the choppy water, he became seasick. Mr. Berger insisted he rest in a bunkhouse on the shore until he recovered and the rally had to be cancelled.

In Trail, Robert Sommers, former provincial forestry minister, who had said he was considering running as an independent in the Rossland-Trail constituency, announced Sunday he will not run.

In Kelowna, R. D. Knox, 55, a real estate and insurance agent, was nominated Sunday as the Liberal candidate in Okanagan South. He will face Premier W. A. C. Bennett and the NDP's Eva Pfeifer.

. . . NANAIMO SCENE

race in which he isn't conceded the remotest chance of winning.

Plecaf says only that "the Liberals are going to surprise a lot of people."

That shouldn't be hard to do. In 1966, the Liberals garnered a meagre 516 votes out of 11,835 ballots cast.

While Plecaf won't consider the suggestion that he hasn't got a chance, he will concede when pushed, that it will take a miracle to get him in a contender's position.

And he will also forecast, reluctantly, the 1-2 finish of the Stupich-Ney race

"If I were betting, I'd bet that Ney will finish ahead of Stupich," is the way he puts it.

And in general, that's the way the people of Nanaimo are talking.

The sometimes gimmicky mayor has already outmanoeuvred the NDP at their favorite game of sign posting.

On Nichol Street, the southern entrance to Nanaimo, sometimes known as NDP row, he has out-signed the NDP by close to two to one. It's the same in othe rareas of the city and, say Socred organizers, it demonstrates that Ney's record has already won a good number of former socialist votes.

Liberal organizers in the area agree.

Still stinging from their February defeat, they look at Ney's popularity with envy.

"He'll make it," said one veteran Liberal worker. "His organization isn't as smooth or as efficient as the NDP's. What is? But he's got the ordinary guy behind him. They have seen what he can do—and they like it. And what his workers lack in polish, they more than make up for in enthusiasm.

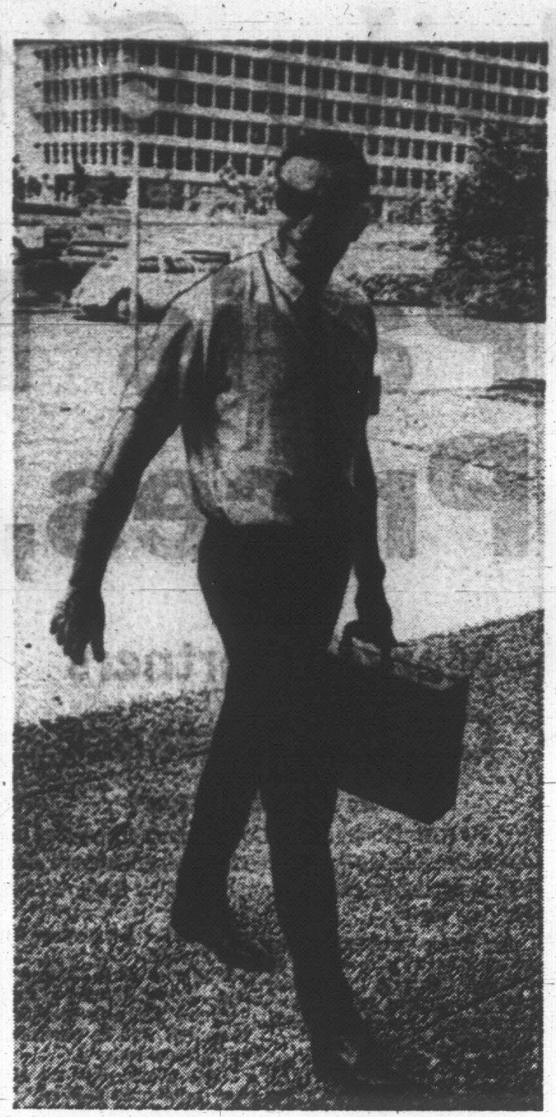
A dozen-call survey on Main Street Saturday afternoon indicated the forecast could be true. Stupich is respected, Ney is admired. And that admiration could just be strong enough to take him to victory.

It's the kind of admiration that remembers the name but forgets the issues.

The kind demonstrated over the weekend by a waitress in a local restaurantt.

Asked how the election was going, she answered: "I didn't know it was voting day. But Frank Ney is very popular and I think he'll be re-elected."

The machine versus charisma. Aug. 27 will provide the answer.



BACK TO WORK—earthman style—is orders of the day for Apollo 11 commander Neil Armstrong, the first man to step on the moon. He is shown entering the offices of the Manned Space Centre in Houston, the first day of normal life after ending the quarantine period. (AP Wirephoto.)

. . . MOONMEN

There also is talk of a world tour.

The moonmen got a preview of what lies ahead when they were cheered and mobbed by about 300 space workers as they emerged from quarantine Sunday night.

All three were smiling and waving as they walked through a door that had been unsealed minutes before.

Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, stepped to a microphone and said: "I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all those of you I see out there who are my gracious hosts in the lunar receiving laboratory. I can't say that I would choose to spend a couple weeks like that, but I'm very glad we got the opportunity to complete the mission."

The crowd surged against restraining ropes to shake the hands of the astronauts as they walked toward waiting cars.

LONG WAIT

Each took a separate chauffeured auto home. The astronauts had seen their families almost daily since being isolated, but only through a thick glass window in the lunar receiving lab. They last were home July 7, nine days before their launching from Cape Kennedy.

The 20 other persons in the quarantine also were released Sunday night and many were greeted by their families. Included was one woman, Heather Owens, 23, a technician who was placed in the isolation ward last week after accidentally being exposed to moon dust in another part of the lab.

A Canadian doctor, William Carpentier, was another to leave quarantine. He was the first to examine the astronauts on their return to earth. Carpentier, born in Edmonton, is a former resident of Lake Cowichan, B.C.

The astronauts were cleared to leave the chamber after Dr. Charles A. Berry and three other Manned Spacecraft Centre officials presented data Sunday to an Atlanta, Ga., meeting of the Inter-Agency Committee on Back Contamination, a group of scientists who supervised the quarantine.

Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, said the committee ruled that the astronauts were free of "abnormal health conditions."

He emphasized, however, that the negative medical findings do not prove that moon germs do not exist and said future moon explorers also would be quarantined. He said the Apollo 11 crew would be kept under medical observation for the next year.

the franc zone—former French colonies with close ties to France—also decided Sunday night to devalue their currencies by 12.5 per cent and the measure was approved by the IMF.

Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas said in a radio interview the price freeze was part of long-term structural economic changes, which he did not specify.

But he conceded devaluation and the accompanying measures could bring on a crisis.

"It is necessary to risk a crisis," he said in the interview, which was recorded for broadcast today. "That is better than renouncing a reform which is in the national interest."

The measures, he admitted, will be resisted and difficult to apply, but without them "France and the French would find themselves in one, two or three years back in a situation which was exactly the one that led us to the monetary adjustment."

Chaban-Delmas will consult ministers this week on their 1970 ministerial budgets, and Labor Minister Joseph Fontanet was waiting for responses to an invitation to labor leaders to meet him.

The strongest protest so far against the austerity program came from the Communist newspaper L'Humanite, which warned the government not to try to put off labor union demands for wage increases.

Labor unions and the Communist party also quickly noted the cost which devaluation and the austerity program will impose on workers, and fears loomed of bitter social and industrial unrest in the fall over the political situation.

Bakers Approve Contract

Members of the Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union on Vancouver Island and the mainland have voted 87 per cent in favor of a contract offering $15 a week pay increase this year.

The vote taken Saturday and Sunday involved grocery chains and was the last major section of the union to accept contract proposals previously agreed to by bakery chains.

The two-year pact provides for a $13 per week increase in pay next year, which will bring bench hands up to $172.50.

A union spokesman said the settlement affects 60 union members at Safeway, Super-Valu and McGavin Toastmaster on Vancouver Island, seven of them at Safeway in Victoria.

No Change In Bond Rate

Premier Bennett's announcement in Vancouver this morning of a new $50,000,000, 6½ per cent B.C. Hydro parity bond issue has drawn unenthusiastic reaction from Victoria investment dealers.

The interest rate is the same as the last parity issue which started at 6 per cent and was raised to 6½ per cent under pressure of thight money.

The premier told about 500 investment dealers at his "bond breakfast" that the issue was better than money. However, local dealers told the Times they were dubious about sale prospects.

One dealer said, "I'm puzzled. He must have something up his sleeve because investment dealers can't sell $50 million of these bonds at 6½ per cent. It would be dereliction of duty to advise clients to buy them when they can get 8 per cent in guaranteed investment certificates and soon 7 per cent even in Canada Savings Bonds.

"The public can't be bamboozled by a 6½ per cent interst rate. They are rate-conscious."

There was speculation Bennett may be intending to leave the issue in the hands of dealers for a period of time and then withdraw it, claiming to have found a market on his own.

The feeling was that the premier would probably put the issue into his government accounts.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

When a man reads that women are stonger and tougher, that they live longer because they can stand the stress of life better, he may be one of those who gets depressed by the information. He looks at a slender little woman, then braces his shoulders and wonders how such a conflict in common sense could exist.

Biometeorologists have gathered some facts on weather and births that may explain why women seem to be tougher, if they really are:

More female babies are conceived in warm weather, when body stress is less. More boy babies are conceived whenever the weather is colder, when the strain on the human body is greater.

The fact seems to be that men have a tougher time of it right from the very beginning, but that women get an easier start so they don't have such a hard time of it and can live longer.

Meatcutters To Intensify Picketing

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spokesman for locked out meatcutters in the British Columbia Lower Mainland said Sunday they plan to "intensify" their picketing this week.

Union spokesman George Johnson declined details of picketing plans. The meatcutters have kept 30 Super-Valu stores closed by pickets, out of 103 supermarket branches involved in a contract dispute.

Latest attempt to end the 2½-month dispute ended Friday when meat cutters, seeking reduction of their work week to four days from five, plus higher pay, walked out of a meeting.

Officials of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, which has had 550 men on strike in the Lower Mainland since May 23, were to meet today with officials of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Oil Workers officials met Saturday with Teamsters' representatives to discuss strategy in the pay strike against six oil companies. Neither union would comment on results.

Bizarre Killer Sought After Multiple Deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police pressed a manhunt today for a suspect in the bizarre killings of actress Sharon Tate and four others five miles from where a couple was found slain later in a similar style.

"There is a similarity, but whether it's the same suspect or a copy-cat we just don't know," said Police Sgt. Bryce Houchin.

At the scene of the second slayings, Inspector K. J. McCauley said: "I don't see any connection between this murder and the others. They're too widely removed. I just don't see any connection."

The man and woman were stabbed many times in their Hollywood home, Houchin said, the man's head wrapped in a sheet, the woman's in a nightgown. In the slayings at Miss Tate's home Saturday, one victim's head was covered with a cloth.

The latest victims were identified as Leno A. LaBianca, 44, reported to be the owner of a small local supermarket chain, and his wife Rosemary, 38.

Police said their bodies were discovered in nightclothes Sunday night by Mrs. LeBianca's son by a previous marriage, Frank Struthers, 14.

STABBED, THROATS CUT

Houchin said the two were "stabbed numerous times and their throats were slit."

McCauley said the word "death" was written in an undisclosed substance on the living room wall. Other officers earlier said the words "death to pigs" were scrawled in blood on a refrigerator door.

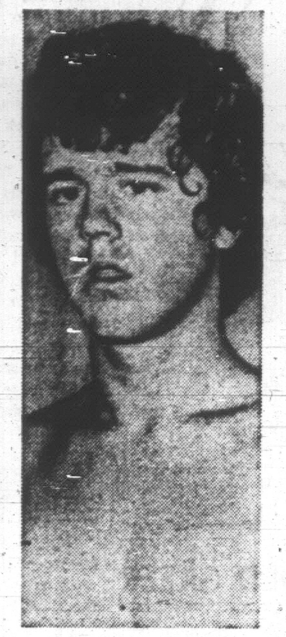
At Miss Tate's posh Bel Air home, the word "pig" was written in blood on the front door. The LaBianca residence is about five miles from Bel Air.

Earlier, police said they were seeking a man whose name "came up in conversation" with a 19-year-old caretaker arrested in a guest cottage behind Miss Tate's $200,000 home when the bodies were found.

Slim, tousle-haired William Garretson was booked on suspicion of murder, but Detective Lieut. Robert Helder said physical evidence to link him to the crime had not been found.

Garretson was given a lie detector test Sunday. Sgt. Jesse Buckles said homicide detectives were "not entirely satisfied" with his answers.

"There's no solid information that will limit us to a single suspect," Helder told a news conference Sunday. "It could've been one man. It could've been two, it could've been three."



SUSPECT in the slaying of five persons, including actress Sharon Tate and coffee heiress, Abigail Folger, is William Eston Garretson, 19, a houseboy in the Tate home.

Of the suspect being sought, Helder commented: "From a mental standpoint, what can you say about someone who would kill five people?"

But he added: "I don't feel that we have a maniac running around."

That was hours before discovery of the Hollywood double slaying brought the total to seven in two days.

"This is one of the weird homicides," Helder said of the first case. "We don't have anybody to talk to. We're trying to piece this thing together."

He said officers had combed the brush-covered area near Miss Tate's house seeking murder weapons but none was found.

An autopsy showed that Miss Tate, 26, a honey-blonde wife of film director Roman Polanski, died of multiple stab wounds of the back and chest. She was eight months pregnant.

"The child could have been saved with a post-mortem Caesarean within the first 20 minutes after the mother's death," said Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi. "But by the time the bodies were discovered it was far too late."

Also killed were:

—Jay Sebring, 26, hair stylist and former boy-friend of Miss Tate, dead of stab wounds in the body. A rope tied around his neck was linked to Miss Tate's neck, but did not contribute to the death of either. They lay in the living room.

—Abigail Folger, 26, socially-prominent brunette of the Folger coffee family of San Francisco. She was dead of stab wounds in the chest.

—Voyteck Frykowski, 37, Polish screen producer and writer, a friend of Polanski, dead of stab wounds in the body and extremities and a gunshot wound in the back.

—Steven Parent, 18, of suburban El Monte, apparently a friend of Garretson, dead of multiple gunshot wounds in the chest.

The bodies, strewn about the estate in fashionable Benedict Canyon, were found by a maid who ran down the road screaming: "There's bodies and blood all over the place."

Noguchi said the victims' wounds would not have caused instant death.

Miss Folger, clad in a nightgown, was sprawled on the lawn. About 100 feet away lay Frykowski, shot in the back. Parent sat at the wheel of his car, its transmission set in drive and the brake released.

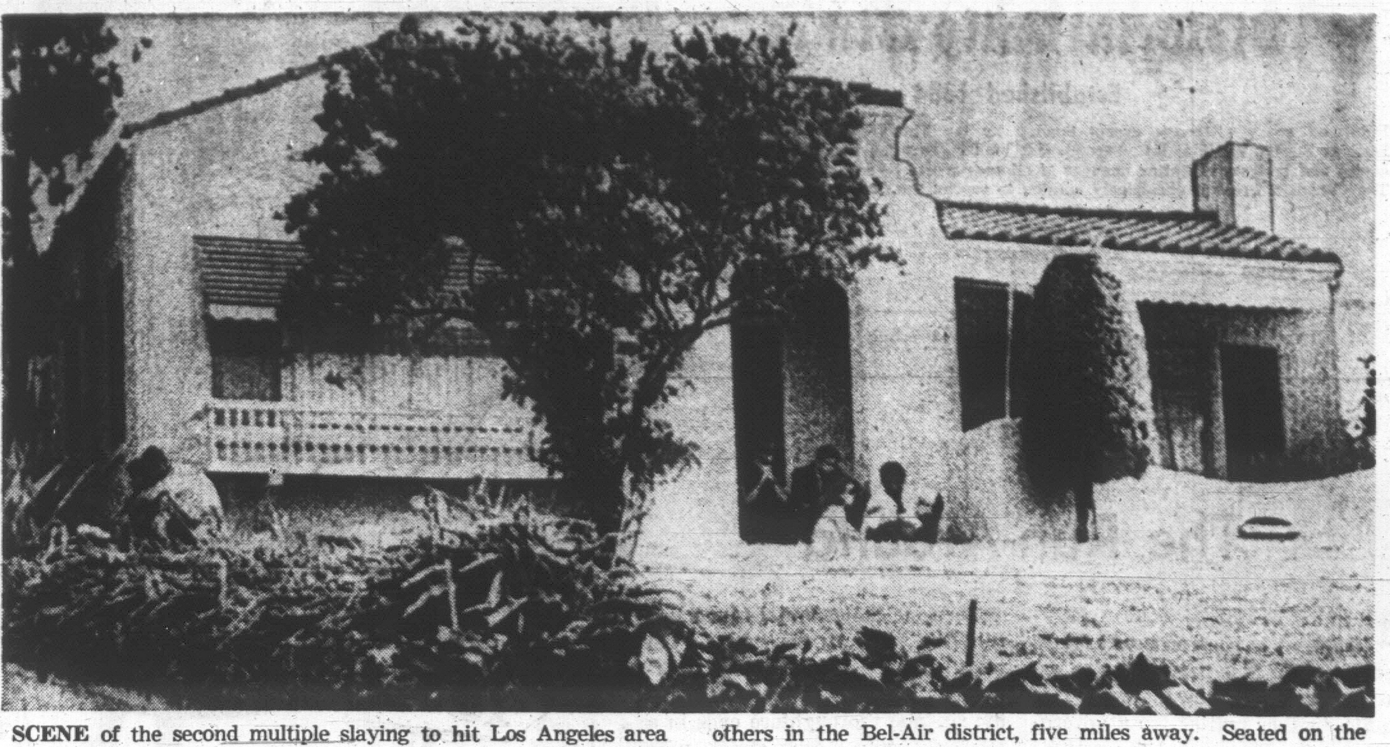
"We have to assume there was an attempt to escape, when we find the bodies the way we did," said Helder.

CLUE BLANK

One of the clues in the case came out a blank. A red Ferrari sports car, missing from Miss Tate's home, and suspected to have been stolen by the killer, turned up at a repair shop where police said a member of the household left it earlier in the week.

Miss Tate's grief-stricken husband arrived in Los Angeles Sunday and went into seclusion. Officers said they would not be able to question the distraught Polanski immediately.

Polanski, under sedation, had Gutowski read a statement to reporters in which he said he spoke to his wife by phone Friday night. He denied rumors of marital strife, said he phoned his wife from Europe every day and already had hired an Irish nurse for the baby Sharon was expecting.



SCENE of the second multiple slaying to hit Los Angeles area in as many days is this Los Feliz district home of Mr. and Mrs. Leno A. LaBianca, who were found slain under similar circumstances to those in the murders of actress Sharon Tate and four others in the Bel-Air district, five miles away. Seated on the steps of the LaBianca home is LaBianca's daughter and police officers. (AP Wirephoto.)

Five Police, Citizen Wounded in Fracas

DETROIT (CP) — A 35-year-old former mental patient today faced charges of assault with intent to commit murder in a gun fight that wounded five policemen and a neighbor.

The gunman, Lynn W. Blackwell, was held under guard in the psychiatric ward of Detroit General Hospital after a policeman talked him into surrendering Sunday.

Police said Blackwell, upset after his wife and six children moved out last week, barricaded himself in his house on the northwest side with a new shotgun he had just purchased, then exchanged gunfire with officers for a half hour.

The outburst started when pellets splintered windows in the home of Edison Favors, 46, across the street from Blackwell's two-storey, frame house in the quiet, tree-lined neighborhood.

Favors stopped a cruising police car.

As he stood on his front lawn talking to a patrolman, officers said, two shotgun blasts hit Favors and he slumped to the ground.

Another blast felled the patrolman. Four other officers—two of them trying to pull wounded comrades to safety—were hit.

Policemen sprayed Blackwell's house with rifle and shotgun fire. Then Patrolman Henry Demetroff slipped alongside the house and talked Blackwell into surrendering.

Blackwell walked onto the front porch, unarmed, and gave himself up. He was unhurt.

Police Commissioner Johannes Spreen said Blackwell was released in December, 1968, from Northville State Hospital, and had a history of mental illness dating to 1964.

The Run-Around

IT IS ONE THING FOR A GOVernment to keep proposed routes secret while it is negotiating to assemble land for a new highway. It is quite another matter for a government to waffle around for months and years, refusing to answer the legitimate queries of municipalities and making it impossible for local councils to plan ahead for the development of the area. Yet the Social Credit government has kept both Victoria and Saanich hamstrung for many months while it stalls off past promises that an adequate Patricia Bay highway would be built. Now a belated rush to widen the existing highway has been staged for the benefit of the current election campaign. But, costly though it is, the latest measure can be only a stopgap until a final plan is devised.

It is a disturbing example of governmental cynicism in dealing wth municipalities—contemptuous in its secrecy and its disregard for the problems of local administrations and the rights of the people concerned.

Nowhere was this arrogance of Mr. Bennett's government more clearly demonstrated than in his treatment of Victoria on the Rose-Blanshard Street extension. The provincial government let the city go ahead with a costly widening program to create a major traffic artery to relieve growing congestion on Douglas Street. Obviously, the thoroughfare would have to connect with the Patricia Bay highway at its northern end, after passing from city territory into Saanich.

Over a long period the Social Credit government watched Victoria proceeding with the work and at no time indicated that it did not approve of the plan or that it would not provide the essential connection with the highway northward. Yet what has happened? The city's portion of the project is completed, and the six-lane thoroughfare ends in a relatively minor cross-street, with no through-connection to the highway. The government has failed to acquire land that was available for the link-up, it has gone ahead with permanent curbing and other work on the Douglas Street route, and a complete frustration has resulted.

How can any government explain such behavior to an electorate? How can Mr. Waldo Skillings and Mr. William Chant, the city's elected representatives in the government—and both of them cabinet ministers—explain how they failed utterly to represent their constituency in so important a matter? And where was Mr. Tisdalle of Saanich, when his constituency was being given the run-around?

It is true that the city engineer, Mr. Garnett, erred in failing to get a formal, binding, legally sworn statement on paper from the government, affirming that it would carry through the extension work. But there was verbal concurrence, there were numerous other actions over many months by the government which fully implied agreement and participation.

Even now, in the potlatch atmosphere of an election campaign, the government is still denying the municipalities — and the voters — any truthful indication of its ultimate intentions. A plain "no" and rejection of the scheme would at least let us know where we stand. But Mr. Bennett and his colleagues won't say "yes," they won't say "no," they only say "put us back in office and we'll kid you along some more."

A Weakness Exposed

BEYOND FILLING IN MORE ONsite details, it is unlikely there will be much meaningful information provided by an inquest into the fatal car accident involving Senator Kennedy. Despite widespread complaints that the Senator has not told all the facts concerning the mishap, enough is known to form some conclusions.

The first is that, regardless of the degree of blame which is yet to be firmly fixed, Senator Kennedy deserves sympathy. The family grief this young man has already endured is more than most are called upon to bear. And now this latest tragedy, the responsibility for a young woman's death, has added another burden that he will always carry with him.

There is also added sympathy because of a feeling that Edward Kennedy has been thrust—perhaps unwillingly—into his position of prominence, a potential candidate for the presidency, beyond his experience and capabilities. Merely being a member of the Kennedy family, and the fate of his three older brothers, made his situation, at least until the time of last month's accident, inevitable.

Ironically, this mishap could spare him further pain on the political path. For it exposed, for all to see, that he has limitations as a man that may make him unfit for the presidency. Whatever further explanations are offered in his behalf it seems that he acted both unwisely and carelessly in the first instance, and that after the accident he panicked.

Grief, shock, confusion — these may be the reasons for his conduct, but they do not condone it. The daily pressures on a president of the United States are probably greater than those on any man in the world. Above all they require nerve and poise, qualities that Senator Kennedy did not display in his personal crisis. He may be able to rise above himself in the years ahead but, for some time at least, Senator Kennedy has removed himself from the race.

Answer to Oil on the Sea?

INDICATIONS THAT A BREAKthrough may have been achieved in the treatment of oil spilled at sea will be noted on this coast as elsewhere where the prospects of ever-larger tankers carrying bulk cargoes of the fuel pose an obvious threat.

Imperial Chemical Industries report that British scientists have produced a new product, Dispersol OS, which is soluble in oil but not in water. Sprayed on oil at sea it forms an emulsion. This is spread around by natural movement of the sea and eventually eaten up by the micro-organisms of the ocean.

Sea tests are now under way to detemine the effectiveness of this treatment. Should it prove as successful as the scientists hope, one major obstacle might still curtail its use. The treatment is expensive. A tanker disgorging as much oil as the Torrey Canyon leaked into the English Channel would call for up to $12 million worth of Dispersol OS. Smaller leakages, of course, would cost much less.

In addition to promising greater efficiency than other detergents, the product is reported to be biologically acceptable to marine life including fish. In practical application, it is believed, big oil tankers could carry supplies of the substance and use it to handle leaks as they occurred—a practice which would add immeasurably to the protection of sea coasts along which the big vessels ply.

Discounted Afloat

My wife and I recently returned from a delightful trip to Vancouver Island, a place we both love to visit. Our stay was marred by one unpleasant incident which took place on the CPR ferry from Seattle to Victoria.

The fare was $20 and I tendered a Canadian twenty dollar bill and was told in no uncertain terms that ONLY American money was accepted. I made no comment and paid the fare in American currency. However the ferry was late in departing due to a great number of cars and trailers that were taken on board. My wife and I thought that no doubt the arrival in Victoria would be somewhat delayed and therefore we should have lunch on the ferry. Our check was for $6.25 for a very average lunch. Then I tendered a Canadian ten dollar bill in payment and again was told that only American money was accepted. This time I became rather provoked and stated that it seemed mighty strange that a large Canadian corporation would refuse to accept Canadian currency. The cashier then told me that if he took the ten dollar bill he would have to charge me an additional 48-cent premium.

My wife and I stayed in Victoria for several days and did quite a bit of shopping. At all times we were treated courteously by the merchants, restaurants and the motel where we stayed. And all seemed to be more than willing to accept Canadian currency.

May I suggest that the CPR take a course in public relations from the good citizens of Victoria. — R. B. Wallace, Buckley, Wash.

Leaping on the Fence

I was amused and at the same time saddened by the announcement of our latest Cowichan-Malahat entry into the election race, our independent who purports to represent the middle point between the two extremes "free enterprise and Marxist socialism" (to quote Mr. Bennett). The amusement comes from the sight of yet another "moderate" leaping onto the political fence.

The sadness stems from the realization that he obviously seriously believes, and so apparently do other people, that the parties he rejects are opposites.

The spectacle we are treated to in fact is one of differences of degree, not of kind. The so-called defenders of free enterprise stumble over one another to assure the voter that they are better at using his money than the others.

Look at the deciding factor in any granting of "public" money. Does it go to the competent, the successful, the thrifty, the able, to those who can make the most of it? "No", say the dispensers of bounty, "these kinds of people don't need it." That is the true essence of their right to your money and mine. In order to qualify all you need is need!

To give us a true choice of candidates what we need is not more moderates but more radicals.—Robert Orr, Mill Bay.

A Study of Soft Water and Heart Attacks

Greer

THE superiority of soft over hard water is something on which even the anti-fluoridationists agree. Municipalities go to considerable trouble and much expense to soften water — i.e., reduce its calcium content — if it is too hard, and a multi-million dollar industry is ready with softening devices for the housewife who believes, not unjustifiably, that her dishes would be brighter and her towels softer if the water she uses were not so hard.

Soft water may be cleaner but is it healthier? Is it, in fact, causing middle-aged men to drop dead of heart attacks even as it removes the ring from the bathroom tub?

For some years now, a body of scientific research has been building up in the medical journals that such is indeed the case. The researchers are still unable to say why or how, but the statistical evidence shows beyond question an inverse correlation between water hardness and cardiovascular disease — that is, the softer the water, the greater the chances of a heart attack. This research has recently been brought to general public attention by Dr. Morton Shulman, the New Democratic member of the Ontario Legislature of High Park, and for once Dr. Shulman has the facts on his side.

In large measure, the research has only been possible since the development of the electronic computer. It has long been known that the death rate from heart disease, which accounts for about half of total mortality, varies considerably from one geographical area to another; these variations have not been explained, indeed apparently cannot be explained, by dietary, racial or social factors. The computer has made it possible, by multiple regression analysis, to determine whether variable environmental influences, such as drinking water, may be involved.

New England Research

The first major investigation of this sort appears to have been undertaken by Dr. Henry Schroeder, a New England researcher, in 1960. Relating the analysis of water samples from 1,315 cities in the United States to death rates from various causes, he found highly significant inverse correlations between cardiovascular mortality and those ingredients, such as calcium, magnesium, bicarbonate, sulphate, etc., which cause "hardness" in water. The relationship was particularly noticeable for middle-aged males.

But Dr. Schroeder found no correlation between hard water and deaths from other causes, nor between cardiovascular mortality and those water contents, such as iron, manganese, carbonate, nitrate or sodium, which do not cause hardness.

Studies in England Wales and Sweden in subsequent years have produced the same pattern. In all cases, calcium appeared to be the constituent most closely associated with the variation in mortality rates.

One British report, appearing in The Lancet in August last year, dealt with cardiovascular deaths in two adjacent areas of north Lincolnshire where one area softened its well waters in 1958 and the other did not. After seven years average exposure, the mortality rate from cardiovascular disease was 598 per 100,000 population for men age 45 to 64 in the soft water area compared to 397 per 100,000 in the hard water area. For women in the same age group, it was 250 per 100,000 amongst soft water drinkers compared to 214 per 100,000 in the hard water area.

Doctors T. W. Anderson, W. H. Le Riche and J. S. MacKay of the University of Toronto's department of Epidemiology and Biometrics have now carried the research a stage further. Knowing that neuro-muscular excitability can be affected by changes in the serum level of ionized calcium, they decided to explore the possibility that the higher death rate in soft water areas might be the result of increased susceptibility to fatal cardiac arrhythmias, which in laymen's terms is interference with the mechanism controlling the beating of the heart.

They therefore examined the variation in the death rate from ischemic heart disease (obstruction of the inflow of arterial blood to the heart) in three regions of Ontario according to the hardness of the local water supply and whether the death was certified by a coroner, since such certification would be a good statistical indication that arrhythmias was involved.

Confirming previous findings, they found that the death rate from ischemic heart disease declined from 416 per 100,000 in the soft water area, where the calcium content was less than 100 parts per million, to 390 per 100,000 in the intermediate area (100 to 200 p.p.m.) to 365 per 100,000 in the hard water aaea (over 200 p.p.m.). They also found that the higher death rate in the soft water area was due entirely to deaths reported by coroners, that is, to sudden deaths.

Typically, all of the researchers have been extremely cautious in offering possible explanations but it is interesting to note the field of speculation has narrowed somewhat as more information has been obtained.

In 1960, for example, Dr. Schroeder wrote that, as a "modicum of speculation," the data suggested three possibilities: either there is something beneficial in hard water as far as cardiovascular disease is concerned, or there is some adverse factor in soft water, or soft water attacks conduit pipe, taking up some substance such as cadmium or lead which accumulates in human tissue and injures the heart.

The British researchers tended to the view that a myocardial factor might be involved, resulting in an increased tendency, in soft water areas, to coronary infarctions, or blockage of the blood flow. The Toronto doctors believe their discovery that sudden deaths from heart attacks in soft water regions is almost double that for hard-water regions indicates "that the main effect of water hardness may be on the mechanism causing death rather than on the underlying process of myocardial infarction".

MR. NIXON'S POLICIES

By JAMES RESTON

'Definitely Trying to Turn the Tide'

Reston

THE Potomac is the color of milk chocolate these days, swollen by recent gulley-washer rains. At the turning of the tide, it is a muddy whirlpool of conflicting forces, and the political Capitol of Washington is in about the same state. The torrents from the land are meeting the incoming tides from the sea; the inner and outer worlds of America are struggling in the Congress and under the Memorial Bridge, but the dominant force is fairly clear.

The tide is going out. The President is turning around, waving to the right one day and to the left the next — but the overwhelming impression in the Capitol is that he is consciously zig-zagging toward peace in Vietnam and an accommodation with Moscow.

Washington is more sensitive than New York or other places to the general direction of Presidents and politics. It is more interested in the over-all tendencies of Presidents than in the day to day White House statements, and it seems to feel that Nixon is now engaged in a delicate retreat from his hawkish and anti-Communist record of the past.

All the President's ambiguous and even contradictory statements of foreign and domestic policy have been analyzed here with the greatest care. One day he is saying the Vietnam war may be one of our "finest hours," and the next he is withdrawing American troops from the battlefield. One day he is submitting to the conservative instincts of the American Medical Association of placating the southern senators on the school integration guidelines, and the next he is supporting welfare state policies he had opposed over the last 20 years.

This affronts and confuses both his conservative backers and his progressive opponents, but when they try to strike a balance, they tend to come roughly to the same conclusion. That is to say, they think he is definitely trying to turn the tide on both foreign and domestic policy. He is cutting the federal government's commitments both at home and abroad, limiting Washington's involvement in foreign and domestic disputes alike, and proclaiming the doctrine of self-reliance, local control, national independence, and regional collective security.

He is, in short, backing into the future. He is moving away from Vietnam and General Thieu while saying both are wonderful. He is praising the Joint Chiefs of Staff while rejecting their advice on how to fight the war.

This political hocus-pocus seems more reasonable to Washington than it does to the rest of the country. The capital is used to hearing Presidents like Wilson, Roosevelt and Johnson say they are determined not to get involved in wars which they ultimately fight, and therefore it is not surprised to find Nixon trying to end the war he has supported since the early 1950s.

The critical question about all this is whether it will work. Washington is not so concerned about the President's tactics as it is about his assumptions. The underlying assumption of his withdrawal policy in Vietnam is that the South Vietnamese army will be able to take over and hold the line against the enemy as the American troops come home.

Assumption Questioned

This assumption is openly questioned in Washington, even by many officials who are advocating withdrawal. A second assumption of the new Asian policy of limited commitment is that the Asian nations will work together in a common defence of the Pacific basin when the U.S. pulls back, but there is very little support for this idea in Japan, India, Pakistan, and Indonesia, or even in Australia, New Zealand, and the Philippines.

Nevertheless, the tide is turning and the reasons why are fairly clear. Vietnam has cost over 37,000 American lives, divided the country, inflated the economy, and started a powerful popular movement against more commitments in Asia. Ending the war or at least withdrawing most American ground troops from the battlefield by November of 1970 has therefore become a major, though unstated, objective of the Nixon Administration's political strategy.

Also, the conflict between China and the Soviet Union and the internal problems of both these countries have reduced the fear of Communist adventures beyond their borders, and therefore have encouraged the belief in Washington that the United States can safely reduce its Asian commitments.

It is easy to see this trend in Washington by noting the reaction of the most prominent hawks and doves. Neither are very happy, for the waters are still too roiled and muddy, but the hawks sense the turning of the tide perhaps more clearly than anybody else, and they are deeply depressed.

Looking Back

From the Times, Aug. 11, 1909.

In connection with the forthcoming visit of the British Association for the Advancement of Science to Canada, a number of mountaineers from England will spend some time climbing in British Columbia. Edward Whymper, one of the most distinguished mountaineers, who conquered the Matterhorn in Europe and who did much to popularize B.C. mountains between 1901 and 1905, will be among the group. The scientists will visit Victoria.

Nepal: Squeezed Between the Two Giants of Asia

Nepalese porters employ ancient means of transportation

By JEAN WETZ
Le Monde

KATHMANDU—Outside Kathmandu the visitor finds himself back in biblical times, and it may strike him as paradoxical that one of the most under-developed countries in the world should be ahead of almost everyone else as far as the calendar is concerned.

But the Nepalese have an instinctive need to be different from India, which has often dominated and treated them with outright contempt.

The past still wins hands down over the future. The Kathmandu valley itself is a sight directly out of the Middle Ages. At the same time it is an impressive tribute to the courage and energy of a people that has entirely transformed the face of nature.

Looking down from the air you can see the extent to which every inch of soil in this narrow valley has been worked and exploited by the hand of man — or just as often, by the hand of woman, who does much of the hardest labour.

Terraces covered with delicate new wheat struggle up every peak, standing out against the red of the cliff like an extravagant cubist painting.

Peasants Enjoy Substantial Houses

In spite of the country's poverty, peasant families live in stout and not altogether inelegant mud brick houses, unlike their Indian counterparts in ramshackle huts that hardly offer protection against the wind and rain.

Kathmandu itself is the only place where the modern world intrudes to any extent at all.

In the old city, although the marvellous temple facades are often disfigured by twentieth-century contraptions, change comes slowly.

KING MAHENDRA

But every prosperous or aspiring well-to-do Nepalese now feels duty-bound to replace the carved wooden doors and balconies of his house by a hideous block of solid concrete.

In the last few years, Kathmandu has also been endowed with several American-style hotels patronized mostly by middle-class Americans doing a tour of the world.

More romantic travellers cling to the dilapidated palace which "Boris of Kathmandu" still maintains as a favourite haven for globetrotters in the old tradition.

One pleasant surprise for anyone who has not been back to the town for several years is the taxis. Some enterprising official, probably hand in glove with a paint merchant, has made it compulsory to cover them with stripes that give them the appearance of motorized tigers.

Development is even more chaotic on the political level. Here, more than almost anywhere else, the short experiment in parliamentary government was doomed to failure from the start.

The episode was closed nearly ten years ago, when King Mahendra, without any real difficulty, resumed direct control of the country's affairs.

King Does His Best To Keep in Touch

But he is an enlightened monarch, and has done his best to maintain contact between the royal palace and the people he governs.

The pyramid of councils or panchayats that culminate in the national panchayat is a somewhat artificial structure that stands in the way of the formation of political parties and any meaningful political activity.

In recent months the first rumblings of unrest came from the students. It seems strange to find an echo here of the protest movements that are sweeping through universities in the West.

But even giving the sincerity of the Kathmandu students its due, it is also clear that the vast influx of hippies into Nepal has been an important factor.

For the past several years now, Kathmandu has been a wayside station on the "hashish route." In the capital itself and along all the roads in the Kathmandu valley, one constantly runs into groups of young people in "psychedelic" garb.

The authorities called a halt to the invasion when the hippies decided to build a temple open to "every religion and every kind of love."

Close to Factory Built by Chinese

The site they chose was embarrassingly close to a camp for Chinese workers who had come to build a factory — a gift from Peking to the Nepalese.

But although some hippy headquarters, such as the Globe Restaurant have had to shut up shop, others have taken their place and offer their clients everything from music to hot showers and "every other kind of assistance."

The paradox of the fashion for protest having spread as far as Kathmandu does not alter the fact that the Nepalese students have real grievances.

At least 90 per cent of the population is illterate, and students with a degree — acquired in all but a few privileged cases at great sacrifice — find it very difficult to find a job corresponding to their training.

Even those who do manage to get a civil service post have to be satisfied with a salary equivalent to less than $100 a month.

But what sparked student anger were irregularities allegedly committed by certain officials. Recent street demonstrations started because some examiners had sold the examination questions on the black market, and the secondary final exams had to be cancelled on short notice.

The riot was soon quelled, but it had disturbing aspects in a country where respect for authority is traditional. Never before had an official government car been set on fire in the centre of the capital.

Much more important, however, is the peasant crisis. This can be taken as further evidence of the fundamental weakness of a regime in which the King remains beyond criticism and the administration is for the most part outside the people's control.

Several years ago the King launched a program of agricultural reform which had begun to be applied in certain provinces. But the large landowners had no difficulty in sabotaging the program in most of the country.

The Nepalese are so accustomed to a social structure dating back thousands of years that this in itself would not have been enough to bring about a peasant revolt.

But the reform program carried with it a system designated "compulsory saving."

It amounted to a tax in money or in kind on everyone who lived on the land — about 90 per cent of the population — which was to finance the necessary investments.

It is now admitted in Kathmandu that only 5 per cent of all that was collected under this system was actually paid over to the state. The rest found its way into the pocket of officials and politicians, as has been the case throughout Nepal's history.

It may be that the protest against "compulsory saving," which suddenly took a violent turn in the south of Nepal, was fomented by "Indian agents."

Riots Coincided With Border Row

That at least is the going theory in Kathmandu, where it is pointed out that the disorders coincided with a new frontier dispute between the two countries.

Crowds of up to 20 or 30,000 peasants attacked government warehouses to get their "taxes" back, and burned down houses belonging to particularly unscrupulous tax collectors.

One striking innovation in Kathmandu was the setting up of a casino — the only one, they claim, "between Beirut and Hong Kong." Something more is involved than the simple surprise of finding roulette, baccarat and blackjack tables set out at the foot of the Himalayas.

Most of the profits from the casino go directly to the Nepalese state. Gambling is illegal here and the King has something of a reputation for austerity; consequently, many people were suprised that the authorities allowed the casino to be opened.

The usual explanation is that the idea was to attract to Nepal the vast amounts of "black money" circulating in India, which its owners dare not declare for income tax purposes. In a country where anti-Indian sentiment is very widespread, the casino is simply one in the eye for India.

Of course, Nepal also has, or had, a pro-Indian clique. At present the King, perhaps made uneasy by certain Chinese manoeuvres, even seems ready to co-operate with members of the former "Congress Party" who, for several years, have been either in prison or in exile. But since independent India started to "step into the shoes of the British," the Nepalese have become so suspicious of New Delhi that anti-Indian sentiment is almost a reflex.

In the first place racial and historical differences must be taken into account. Like all Himalayan peoples, the Nepalese belong to Central Asia rather than to the Indian subcontinent. And they differ from the Indians even more by temperament than physical characteristics.

Indians Anxious For Buffer State

But these differences alone would not have sufficed to make as wide a gap between the Indians and the Nepalese.

The New Delhi government, anxious to maintain a buffer state between India and China, supplies the better part of Nepal's foreign aid. Although neither American, Chinese nor Soviet generosity equals that of India in this respect, the Nepalese are anything but grateful to their southern neighbors.

While he tries to maintain the best possible relations with Peking, King Mahendra obvously does not wish to encourage Chinese influence in Nepal, and a subtle game is being played; the long-term consequences are anyone's guess.

Electric Cars on the Moon First

By ROBERT W. IRVIN

Electric vehicles apparently have a better future on the moon than on earth.

Astronauts will be using electrics to explore the lunar surface long before anyone seriously expects to find them running on earthly streets.

A gasoline-powered vehicle for the moon is not in the cards. For one thing, the engine would have to carry its own air supply since there is no atmosphere on the moon.

Government and industry are working on lunar vehicles and the first is expected to go to the moon before the end of 1971.

●

"They are going to be needed," says Dave Ash, head of Ford's design office, "because you can't explore the moon by just dropping a ship in one spot and letting the astronauts walk around. They are going to need some form of locomotion which will allow them to travel miles.

"I think the movie '2001' illustrated the kind of thing which is needed on the moon — a vehicle that actually skims over crevasses and drops down at will anywhere it wants to."

That type of vehicle, Ash admits, is some time away. The first lunar vehicles will be little more than glorified golf carts.

"I think electric power of some sort will be ideal for use on the moon," Ash says. "You can't use internal combustion engines; it's not practical because of the need for oxygen. It's possible that techniques will be developed for solar power which would be readily available and could be converted to electricity to power the vehicles indefinitely."

General Motors is working on a lunar vehicle and a few years ago built an experimental one in conjunction with Boeing. That vehicle — called the "Mobility Test Article" — was designed to run on silver-zinc batteries with AC electric motors driving the six wheels. The big wheels could climb a six-foot obstacle. The vehicle had a top speed of 10 MPH and a range of 20 to 30 miles.

"This vehicle was designed when we knew much less about the lunar surface than we now know," said Paul D. Agarwal, head of the electric propulsion department at the General Motors research laboratories. The five-foot wheels and two-foot ground clearance are no longer required.

Agarwal believes the vehicle that eventually will go to the moon will be electrically powered but will be smaller than the earlier experimental model.

Thus, it will not have dune buggy-size wheels, something once thought necessary when scientists believed the moon might be covered with a thick layer of dust. And it will not be anything like a "worm" vehicle designed by Philco-Ford engineers as a possible way of getting about on the moon.

●

As a matter of fact, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration met following the successful Apollo 11 moon landing with several firms to discuss lunar vehicles. And NASA expects to receive formal proposals Aug. 22 from companies which want to build one.

The specifications call for a vehicle that will weigh no more than 400 pounds yet be capable of carrying two astronauts and 100 pounds of scientific gear. It would be powered by silver-zinc batteries and be capable of making four 18.75 mile sorties in a 78-hour period.

NASA also specifies that the vehicle have a top speed of 10 MPH and be able to turn in its own length. Agarwal says that because of a lack of atmosphere the vehicle will be driven by AC brushless motors, rather than the conventional DC brush-type which would have to be sealed.

He also says that batteries are more practical than fuel cells until NASA wants a vehicle that can run for a month or travel long distances on the moon.

●

The vehicle NASA now wants must have a total range of 75 miles, but NASA says it does not expect the men to travel more than four miles from their lunar module at any time.

The vehicle, incidentally, would have a 13.77-inch ground clearance and be capable of climbing an 11.81 inch step from a dead stop.

The reason for these odd figures is that the actual specifications are centimeters, not inches.

NASA expects to let contracts late this year for construction of four such vehicles. The first vehicle must be delivered within 18 months. This means NASA will have the first vehicle before the end of June, 1971, and hopes to launch it before the end of 1971.

●

Dr. George E. Mueller, head of NASA's manned space program, said he expects the lunar vehicle can be used on the Apollo 17 mission, tentatively set to land near the crater Tycho. Another one would be used on Apollo 18 to explore the moon's Marius Rills.

Among the companies which attended the NASA meeting a few days ago, and which presumably will bid on the contract, are GM, Boeing, Bendix, Westinghouse, Allis Chalmers, Chrysler, North American Rockwell, TRW and Grumman. The cost? Some say $50 million to $100 million.

An Outpost Of Empire

By ROBERT G. KAISER

CAMRANH BAY, South Vietnam — A sign hangs over the doors to the dining room in the immense officers' club at this immense U.S. installation that says: "Lions Club International meets here 1800 hours, 2nd and 4th Mondays." It is a sign of the times at Camranh Bay.

For this is no dusty, uncomfortable outpost of war. Camranh Bay is a slightly stupefying monument to the American presence in Vietnam. a small city with 30,000 residents, 29 miles of paved streets, traffic lights, street lights and a sprawling suburban rambler to house the base commander.

In just four years the United States has built all of this and much more of the Camranh Peninsula, one of the loveliest natural settings in Vietnam.

Most of the base sits atop rolling sand dunes the color of butterscotch pudding. I faces the narrow inland Camranh Bay, looking at volcanic mountains that jut abruptly out of the South China Sea.

The mood at Camranh Bay is Sgt. Bilko, not Sgt. York. Junior officers tell remarkable tales of finagling air conditioners for their "hooches".

American girls working on the base for the U.S.O. know the names, locations and relative merits of at least half a dozen officers' clubs and American bars in the unconfining confines of Camranh Bay.

★

The base covers 39 square miles — 25,000 acres. Its buildings look as sturdy and as permanent as any on a military base in the U.S. Camranh's docks are among the biggest and best in Asia; its beaches could rival any resort's, its inhabitants live an easy life seldom touched by the war.

Many nights pass without a single audible explosion to remind the residents of the base that the war goes on. Men carry no weapons on the base, a chance seldom taken even by soldiers walking the streets of Saigon.

Sandbags — a crucial protective device in most U.S. installations in Vietnam — are being discarded here because they have become the breeding ground of cockroaches.

"Coming to Camranh to see Vietnam," one wag noted at the Officers' Club bar the other night, "is like going to Hong Kong to see what China is like." President Johnson's two visits to Vietnam, the wag was recalling, were to Camranh Bay.

The largest installation on the Camranh Peninsula is the army's logistics base. This is the only completely secure supply depot in the country.

As a result, it is said, the depot always has on hand enough equipment and supplies to maintain the whole American establishment in Vietnam for several weeks in an emergency.

The visible evidence of this wealth is all over the base. Wooden crates, many dark grey with age, sit on top of each other in supply areas that stretch on for miles. Whole fields of sand are filled with beer, C-rations, electric generators, ice cream makers and all the paraphernalia of America in Vietnam.

★

"We could drive on about two miles further," a young soldier told a visitor he was showing around one of the depot areas the other day, "but it's just more of the same stuff." So he turned back.

The officers who direct the logistical operation at Camranh work in two centrally air conditioned, two-storey office buildings. Their quarters are now in large barracks, but the senior officers will soon start moving into small wooden bungalows that are being built for them.

Construction goes on all over the base, regardless of any talk in Saigon or Washington about U.S. withdrawals from Vietnam. At the moment workmen have completed about half of a large underground concrete bunker to house the top command in case the enemy breaks all precedent someday and attacks Camranh Bay.

The air force and navy also have installations on the peninsula. The navy's is the smallest — a naval air base that is home for a squadron of submarine-hunting planes.

Sailors enjoy their beer and rock 'n roll at the Bay View Club, whose outdoor terrace is 50 yards from the waterfront.

The air base is one of the busiest in Vietnam. Camranh is a principal port of entry and departure for American soldiers, and the air force flies combat sorties from here as well.

In all, 21,000 servicemen live on the peninsula. Nine thousand more men who live here are woking for one of the half dozen American firms that do business with the U.S. government.

These firms maintain elaborate living quarters and recreational facilities for their employees — Alaska Barge and Transport's Grotto Bar, built in a natural cave, for example.

The only Vietnamese living on the peninsula inhabit a small and filthy village that is surrounded by rolls and rolls of barbed wire — to keep the GI's out.

I'd give this one word of advice to any woman entering marriage; or entering an affair, come to that, "Leave him if you must, kill him if you must, but never quarrel with him. Once the air has been poisoned, it will never again be clean."

Almost everything young people say, do or wear is said, done or worn to outrage older people. The older people fall into the trap by being outraged; which encourages the young people to say, do and wear things that are even more outrageous, I suspect this has been going on for many centuries.

Early risers seem to be a different breed from late risers. Having been both in my time, I would say that the early risers tend to be anxious, demanding, efficient; the late risers to be relaxed, tolerant, happy-go-lucky. I conclude from this that the early risers should do all the work, under guidance and supervision by the late risers.

Church Can Play a Role Between Worker, Boss

Canada's Religion and Labor Council has opened up new channels of communication between employers and workers, says Dr. David Summers from Toronto.

The son of Rev. and Mrs. Benson Summers of Victoria, he has been executive secretary of the council for 10 years.

"Both religion and labor have common goals, being concerned with spiritual and economic uplift. But there are some areas where the clergy can succeed in righting wrongs after labor has failed.

"The clergyman is, or should be, in a position to see both sides of a dispute and act in a conciliatory role."

Dr. Summers resigned from the Religion and Labor Council recently to accept a missionary and diplomatic post in Zambia for the World Council of Churches.

He will be stationed, with his wife and four teen-age children, at the copper mining town of Kitwe.

"I shall be working with churches of all denominations, with the trade unions and mining companies, and to some extent with the government," Dr. Summers said.

"I feel my experience in Toronto will be very valuable to me in Zambia."

Dr. Summers said the Religion and Labor Council is a high-level committee composed of representatives of the Canadian Catholic Conference, the Canadian Council of Churches and the Canadian Labor Conference.

The movement started in Toronto in 1932 and expanded into a national organization in 1960.

"There is need for such council in every community," said Dr. Summers.

"The council's work is difficult and can never achieve perfection," he said, "but through experience and perseverance it can constantly increase its usefulness."

Prof. Burchill will address the conference on China and the Chinese People.

Theme of the conference is reconciliation in a broken world.

Despite Troubles, Regatta a Success

KELOWNA (CP) — The 63rd annual Kelowna Regatta ended Sunday and was declared a success by officials, despite being plagued by a fire, a sonic boom and a collapsing stand.

Deputy director Ted Runnalls said that with about 34,000 attending, the regatta was better supported than in any previous year.

"They really rallied round to support it after the Aquatic burned down," he said.

The fire, which ruined the Aquatic Centre used by the regatta including a stadium, bleachers and catering facilities, caused nearly $750,000 damage in early June.

Then, as the regatta opened on Aug. 6, a U.S. Navy Blue Angels aerobatic jet caused $250,000 worth of damage to glass and injured seven persons with a sonic boom over the city.

Finally, 15 persons got a dunking Saturday when a platform collapsed and pitched them into the water. No injuries were reported.

Jerry Chicetti of Seattle had the fastest craft in the marathon powerboat races. His twin-engined boat won the unlimited horsepower class.

In swimming, where 350 events were run and 42 clubs competed over two days, overall winners were the Colville, Wash., club in the division for clubs which have only summer swimming facilities, and the Kokanee Swimming Club from Vernon in the winter clubs class.

Georgene and Barbara are part of an attractive new team working for Gulf. The Tourguard Team.

These girls are specially trained to check on standards of cleanliness, convenience and safety. And they keep a woman's eye on all our stations —right across the country.

Every time they stop at a Gulf station, they make 49 different checks. They look over our first aid and safety equipment, our service bays and walk ways, our sales rooms, store rooms, and rest rooms. They make sure everything is well stocked, clean and tidy so that when you call, you'll find us ready and waiting too—right across the country.

We're proud of our girls because they help us make your travelling more enjoyable. We hope you get a chance to meet them at one of our stations along the way.

FLYING BUSINESSMAN Richard Rude logs about 100 hours aloft every month, more often than not in this 1,000-mile-range Cessna 310 which he keeps in his stable of three personal aircraft.

Richard Rude Pilots Dough Into Doughnut-World Fortune

Pilot Richard Rude has figured out how to use the hole in a doughnut.

He flies through it, of course.

Actually, the Victoria-based businessman flies to the mainland every day in one of his three personal aircraft, and as president of Pace Industries Ltd., Vancouver, doughnuts are a substantial part of his business.

Pace owns the vernerable and successful Spudnut Industries, of Salt Lake City, which has 360 U.S. and 10 Canadian outlets turning out an endless stream of doughnuts.

A doughnut is nothing more than air surrounded by a lot of dough, and 37-year-old Bud Rude is an airman surrounded by a fair amount of dough. Flying is the secret and the symbol of his success.

Which Plane?

Rude must be the only man rushing to work whose first decision is which plane to fly.

But with him the decision is quick—indecision and repetition bore him—and in most cases the plane will be a snappy, compact twin-engined Cessna 310 fitted with all the electronic gear needed to make it an all-weather flyer.

Rude came to Victoria to retire seven years ago. But it was a short retirement—just six months—in which Rude discovered that relaxing for its owns ake was somewhat empty.

He took up flying at the age of 14 in his native Tacoma where his father was a flier.

It led to him starting his own airline in Alaska with an old Beechcraft Expediter in 1954. The company became Alaska Central Airlines, based in Anchorage.

12 Hours a Day

By the time he sold in 1961 he had operated 26 aircraft of varous types, flown an average of 12 hours a day and handled the administration besides.

Maybe that explains how he can get by on three or four hours sleep each night.

"When I go to be I go right to sleep and when I wake up I'm ready for work," Rude said this week just before taking off for three days.

After Alaska, Rude picked Victoria because it "looked like a nice, pleasant place to settle down."

It appealed to him and his wife, Mae, as a place to send their growing family to private schools. There are three children: Kathy, 11, Donna, nine, and Noel, his seven-year-old son.

They live at 3911 Cadboro Bay Road, a sprawling white home with indoor pool, six steps off the sand at Cadboro Beach.

Commuting

Through his flying and long-established contacts he got the job of airport manager at Tacoma. Then he invested in a frozen bread-making firm in nearby Auburn, all the time commuting from Victoria.

The investment led to a directorship and last December to Pace Industries, an expanding company in the food business. A month ago Rude became its president and he predicts between $6 and $8 million in sales this year.

"My immediate objective is to double the size of the company in dollar value and sales in the next year," he said. Part of the improvement is expected to come from projected expansion of food distribution outlets in the U.S. and to new Spudnut franchises in Europe.

There will be more franchise operations throughout Canada, he said, and in Japan.

Pace has Victoria-based Alberta U-Bake Ltd., another frozen dough firm, which will have a Vancouver factory soon.

Pace is growing like a conglomerate, but Rude shuns this description.

Food Only

"It is a vertically-integrated company, in the food business only," he explains.

Bud Rude, pilot, is obviously a go-getting businessman, but possesses none of the tense drive normally associated with young developers.

He is a mixture of idea man and administrator. "You have to be," he said. "But I like to keep it simple so you can pass ideas down the line for carrying out."

How did he develop this delicate sense for success? Rude credits flying, which he learned from his father, a mining engineer. Flying is an exacting discipline and from it Rude derives his reasoning.

In flying, "you have to evaluate a situation rather quickly and you have to be able to stay with a decision." he said.

In business, "I find I am bored if I have to review a problem too often."

After his few hours of sleep he can hardly wait to get the day started, but he stays cool.

"Nervous excitement is something we don't need. Nervous energy may lead to wrong decisions," he said in flight deck rhetoric.

Having been brought up to flying, he is never far from it. Besides the 310, Rude owns a Cessna 195 and a Second World War Harvard trainer in which he flies aerobatics.

But he has flown the famous fighters P-51 Mustang, the P-38 Lightning, the P-39 Aircobra and stock planes in barnstroming and airshows, mostly in the U.S. He once checked out a Spitfire for a man at the Edmonton air show and in recent years has qualified for flying helicopters and the Boeing 707 commercial jet.

Patricia Bay

At one time Rude held a licence to fly almost everything from gliders to business jets and was instrument-rated in most. He could instruct others for wheeled craft and float planes, straight flying or aerobatics. He is a flier's flier, with more than 25,0000 hours to his credit.

Early this year he and Jack Ellard went into partnership to buy Flying Fireman Ltd., operating three converted Canso water bombers out of Patricia Bay airport. Ellard is president and general manager, a former RCAF and United Nations piot.

Ellard says the word to describe his partner's approach to flying "is "professionalism."

"There are very few who have gone through the mill on everything with wings.

"He may talk flying casually, but he is all business when the wheels come off the ground," Ellard said.

THE HOME FRONT BY JOHN MOLYARD

In the mountains of Columbia where a new town replaced an ancient village, people enjoy a blend of the old and new: picturesque walled courtyards, balconies and red tile roofs plus two separate traffic systems—pedestrian walkways inside and vehicular roads outside the town.

Fancy, heated pools may be o.k. for some folks. But there are still two great, natural ways to beat the heat in a hurry. One's the old swimming hole. And the other's Old Style Beer. Don't let that new, easy-open can fool you. It's still brewed the slow, old-fashioned way for full, refreshing flavour. And still making quite a splash with men who care about their beer.

"Old Style" BEER

Perpetual Copper Rights End

LUSAKA (Reuters) — The Zambian government will end mining rights held in perpetuity by the country's two major copper companies and will give them 25-year leases instead, President Kenneth Kaunda announced today.

He also said the Companies—Roan Selection Trust and the Anglo-American Corp. — would be "invited" to sell 51 per cent of their shares to the government, giving it control of the industry. Zambia is the world's third largest producer of copper.

The present royalty and export tax arrangements would cease and the copper companies would have to pay a new mineral tax of 51 per cent of profits, Kaunda added.

In sweeping extensions of his year-old economic reforms, Kaunda told a meeting of his United Nations Independence party that constitutional amendments would be introduced to bring all mining rights—many of them held at the moment in perpetuity—back to the state.

Kaunda said the existing copper mines now would be given a 25-year lease. The companies would have a three-year period to produce firm plans for mining in areas where they were currently prospecting.

Under the new constitutional amendments, the government would be able to let other groups from abroad undertake mineral exploitation in Zambia, on the same basis of a 25-year lease and with 51-per-cent government participation, Kaunda added.

The takeover would be effected by the state-owned Industrial Development Corp. which would pay off the companies out of future dividends, he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Gold Index Declining

The Toronto gold index showed its sensitivity to news today as it tried to overcome earlier losses and began showing signs of recovery.

After an inactive opening, the gold index dropped 14 points, but managed to cut the loss to 9.64 by mid-afternon. The index stood at 184.54.

AT TORONTO the market was lower at the close of light trading Monday.

On index, industrials fell 1.09 to 170.34; golds 9.47 to 184.71; base metals .43 to 102.57 and western oils 2.11 to 226.61.

Final volume was 1,631,000 shares compared with 1,582,000 Friday.

In industrials, CPR declined ¾ to 73¼, Imperial Oil ⅜ to 18⅜ and Bell ¼ to 44⅛.

Seaway climbed 1⅛ to 11, Argus ¼ to 15¼ and Northern Central Gas ⅛ to 18⅜.

Dome Mines declined 2¼ to 56¾, Kerr Addison ⅜ to 13 and Denison ½ to 43¼.

Ne Imperial rose 2 cents to $3 and Opemiska ⅛ to 11.

Great Plains was off 1 to 27 and Canadian Superior Oil 1¾ to 35½.

AT NEW YORK with many investors reported out of the action, the market slipped lower Monday in a session that saw volume on the New York Stock Exchange fall to its lowest level in nearly two years.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed off 4.63 at 819.83.

Turnover totalled 6,680,000 shares, compared with 8,770,000 Friday. A Big Board spokesman said the volume for the 4½-hour session was the lowest since 6,360,000 shares changed hands Aug. 29, 1967, in a 5½-hour session.

Of 1,540 issues traded, 840 declined and 461 advanced.

There was one new high for the year and 70 new lows.

The high was posted by North American Philips.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common was off 0.31 at 51.59.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 1.4 at 290.8.

Analysts atributed the dull session, in part, to some investors reacting to devaluation of the French franc—announced Friday after the market closed — by withdrawing from the action.

Gold stocks generally bucked the downtrend.

Homestake rose 3¾ to 27⅛; American-South African Investments up 4⅛ at 43⅝, Campbell Red Lake, up 3⅛ at 23⅛, and Dome Mines up 3¼ at 50¼.

Closing Big Board prices included:

Roan Selection Trust, off 2⅛ at 5¼, Natomas, up 1 at 82; Goodyear Tire and Rubber, off ¼ at 26½; Benguet, up ⅛ at 22⅝.

On the American Stock Exchange:

British Petroleum, off ¾ at 16¼; Asamera Oil, off ¼ at 24¼; Wright-Hargreaves up 11-16 at 3⅛.

Among other Canadians on the New York Exchange, McIntyre Porcupine fell 3 and Hudson Bay Mining was down 1⅛. Distillers Seagrams and International Nickel were up ¼.

On the American Exchange Scurry Rainbow oil was up ⅛ Jupiter Corp. was down ⅜.

AT MONTREAL the market dipped sharply during light afternoon trading today. Industrials were weakest as papers alone rose.

The composite index fell 1.35 to 169.02.

In banks, Toronto-Dominion declined ¼ to 18¾, Banque Canadienne ¼ to 11, Commerce ¼ to 18⅝ and Royal ⅛ to 19¼ while Montreal was unchanged at 14 and Nova Scotia at 22.

Among industrials, Radio Engineering was off 3 to 24, Falconbridge 1 to 128, Distillers-Seagrams ⅜ to 48¼, Canadian Pacific ⅜ to 73¼ and Canadian Hydrocarbons ⅜ to 17¼.

In senior mines and oils, Hudson Bay Mining lost 3 to 73, Husky Oil ½ to 15⅝, Imperial ½ to 18¼ and Petrofina Canada ½ to 19¼.

On the Canadian stock exchange, Select Financial slipped ½ to 22 and Dalfen's gained 1 point to 9.

Among speculative mines and oils, Cadillac Explorations lost 75 cents to 7.00, Phoenix Canada 40 cents to 9.35 and Camflo 40 cents to 5.50.

Volume for both markets at 1 p.m. was 511,700 shares compared with 616,800 at the same time Friday.

AT LONDON trading resumed on a quietly cautious note following the French franc devaluation.

British funds rallied after initial weakness.

Leading equities staged a modest recovery.

Dollar stocks were generally higher helped by a sharp rise in the dollar premium.

In Canadians, gains of between 1½ and 2½ points were seen in Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Canadian Pacific and Noranda but losses ranging to two points were recorded by Dome, Hiram Walker, Hollinger, Massey-Ferguson and Pacific Petroleum.

Copper shares weakened on Zambian proposals to nationalize mineral rights.

AT VANCOUVER prices dropped in light morning trading. Pre-noon volume was 1,300,000 shares.

The only exception to the general decline among top volume traders was Davis-Keays which added .30 to $4 from Friday's close.

In other mining issues Ace fell .15 to $1.75, Trojan slipped .13 to .87 and Highmont lost .14 to $1.55.

United Data and Syracuse in the oils both fell a dime. Castle lost .15 to $3.25.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices for soybeans and grains were mixed in moderately active trading today on the Boardof Trade.

Devaluation of the French franc and the United States Department of Agriculture's latest report on crops, which is to be issued after the close of trading today, were influences in the trade.

Many traders elected to remain on the sidelines until the contents of the crop report are known.

Wheat was mostly steady near the close after recovering from early losses that ranged up to a cent or more.

Corn was off fractions most of teh session withnot much demand in evidence.

Soybean meal trended lower. Soybean oil was mostly steady. At the close, wheat ½ to ¾ higher, Sept. 1.25¼; corn ½ to 1⅛ lower, Sept. 1.21⅜; oats unchanged ot ⅜ lower, Sept. 58⅞; rye ⅜ to ⅞ lower, Sept. 1.10¾; soybeans ⅜ higher to ½ lower, Aug. 2.67⅜.

OSF to Make Takeover Bid For Seaway

TORONTO (CP) — OSF Industries Ltd. said Friday it will offer to purchase all the outstanding shares of Seaway Multi-Corp. Ltd.

At present prices, the offer would be worth about $22,000,000.

OFS officials said the offer is expected to be made within a month, and will be conditional on 75 per cent of Seaway's common and preference shares being tendered.

OSF Industries has recently diversified from its original business of designing and building store fixtures and acquired a number of realty companies.

Battery Car Plans Still in Low Gear

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While most Americans are entranced by their country's space program, scores of scientists are working quietly on the less glamorous job of moving earthlings at 45 miles an hour.

These are the men who are trying to perfect an electric automobile, the development of which seems to be stalled for the moment but which could result in a startling breakthrough.

The state of the art is more advanced than most people realize. And the implications, too, are greater.

A successful electric vehicle suitable for volume sales would be as revolutionary a technological development as anything seen before in North America, matched only by such products as airplanes, telephones and computers.

At present, most of the large electric equipment manufacturers have development projects under way, and at least six small companies now are selling vehicles that can travel 100 miles at 40 to 50 miles an hour.

In fact, the major manufacturers of internal combustion engines also have been working on the project, although perhaps a little more quietly.

Scores of battery-powered vehicles already exist: buses, industrial trucks, delivery vans, noiseless dairy trucks, golf carts, automatic trains.

A Southern California manufacturer has been making a lightweight, two-passenger electric car for six years. He sells about 150 a year, mostly to elderly and handicapped people, who drive them about city streets.

The U.S. Post Office recently awarded a contract for four electric mail trucks capable of reaching a top speed of 45 miles an hour and which can make 400 starts and stops without recharging.

The spark behind development of the electric car comes as much from the negative factors of noise and air pollution from gasoline driven vehicles, as it does from the great potential market.

Many Americans are becoming deeply concerned about the air they breathe and feel the automobile is one of the chief contributors to pollution.

The fact that the electric car has not yet met with more acceptance is partially a tribute to the effective promotion of gasoline-driven cars by manufacturers. In England, for example, 80 per cent of the vehicles used for door-to-door deliveries are electric.

The obstacles are real, however. How do you pack enough batteries into the car without eliminating the driver's space or increasing the weight to the point of diminishing return?

Recharging is a problem also. There are physical limits to the rate at which batteries can be charged. An experimental vehicle being used by General Electric, for example, requires eight hours to recharge.

Railroad Revenues Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty-four Canadian railways reported operating revenues of $123,802,433 in February, up 6.7 per cent from the same month last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Operating expenses at $119,162,383, were up by 3.9 per cent, resulting in a net income of $4,640,050, compared with $1,313,039 in February, 1968.

Canadian National Railways had operating revenues of $63,824,771 and expenses of $62,646,391, for a net income of $1,178,380. Canadian Pacific had revenues of $46,953,974 and expenses of $44,304,845 for a net income of $2,649,129.

During February, the 24 railways carried 18,300,000 tons of revenues freight, down 1.1 per cent from a year earlier.

The average number of miles of track operated decreased to 43,405 from 43,982. Passenger movements totalled 1,859,000, with commuter traffic down 9.4 per cent and non-commuter traffic down 6.8 per cent.

Employment in the industry dropped to 117,107 from 119,077 a year earlier.

Major Appliance Sales Volume Up

TORONTO (CP) — Sales of major appliances across Canada increased 13 per cent in the first half of this year from the similar period a year ago, the Canadian Appliance Manufacturers Association said today.

Sales of both Canadian and imported appliances totalled 877,900 units for the first six months of 1969 compared with 776,600 in the similar period.

The CAMA said a 25-per-cent increase in house completions this year was a major reason for higher sales, and it does not expect the growth rate to be maintained for the balance of the year.

More refrigerators were sold than any other single appliance, and the 18 per cent increase in refrigerator sales — to 247,700 from 209,000 — was the largest of any appliance.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07¼ for cheques, $1.07¾ for cash, $1.05¾ for silver. Sales were $1.08¼ for cheques and $1.08¾ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07¾. Pound sterling was down ⅛ to $2.57⅛.

Air West

Air West expects Hughes Tool Company to complete the purchase of the airline, if the line makes up a $16,000,000 deficiency.

Air West directors, meeting Friday in special session, said they were advised by a letter dated Aug. 4 that Hughes "intends to honor its commitments . . . and expects Air West to do the same."

The directors said "such steps as necessary" would be taken in an effort to wipe out the deficiency.

The line reported losses for both the first and second quarters this year.

Greyhound Lines

Significant revenue gains were offset by increased operating expenses in the quarter ended June 30, Greyhound Lines of Canada Ltd. President Robert Borden reports.

Revenues for the second quarter rose more than $2 million to $9.38 million compared with $7.2 million in the same quarter last year.

Net income remained approximately the same at $570,576 this year compared to $572,083 in 1968, both equal to 12 cents a share.

Revenues for the first six months were $16.2 million compared to $13 million for the corresponding period in 1968.

SO Indiana

Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) has been listed on Toronto Stock Exchange, the first foreign listing of the 80-year-old U.S. company.

Since 1948 SO (Indiana) has operated in western Canada under the name Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd., with more than 1,000 employees, and has been producing oil and gas since 1953.

It is active in exploration in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, off the coast of Newfoundland, in Lake Erie and the Canadian Arctic, where A-1 Inuvik was spudded in recently to become one of the northernmost wells.

B.C. Sugar

B.C. Sugar Refinery, Ltd., reports consolidated net profit for the nine months ended June 30 amounted to $2.55 million as compared with $2.33 million for the nine months of 1968.

The gross operating revenues for the same periods were $31.28 million for the current year and $28 million in 1968. After giving effect to the three for one stock split, earnings per common share amounted to $1 for 1969 as compared with 91 cents for 1968.

Alta. Gas Trunk

Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd. had net income of $3,946,000 in the six months ended June 30, 1969, compared with $2,284,000 in the same period in 1968.

The interim report, released today, also showed earnings on the "average common outstanding" shares for the period were $1.35, compared with $1.01 last year, and earnings on the "common shares outstanding on June 30 were $1.19, compared with $1.01 last year.

The 1969 construction program and preliminary work for the 1970 program will require expenditures estimated at $62,000,000 in 1969.

Investor Safeguard Increases Urged

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government was advised to work harder to protect consumers and investors by a special commission that has just completed a four-year inquiry into the province's financial institutions.

The commission, headed by economist Jacques Parizeau of the University of Montreal, said all financial institutions should become lending and investing societies and should be on the same footing.

This recommendation will be especially welcome to the province's extensive network of credit unions and to trust companies, which have been seeking wider powers.

Parizeau told a news conference these institutions will get even more power than they have been asking for if the government adopts his report.

The Parizeau report also proposes a new system of provincial government supervision of all financial institutions and a new government to watch over cosumers' interests.

The main purpose of the consumer bureau would be protection of the public against gouging by lenders. The lender would have to make it clear to the consumer how much it is costing him to borrow money.

The report deplores the high rate of bankruptcies in Quebec and says the government must keep a sharper eye on this situation.

The government is also urged to negotiate with other provinces the establishment of an interprovincial securities commission that would set rules for all securities trading throughout Canada. Provincial agencies would see to the enforcement of these rules and provide the information upon which the interprovincial commission would act.

The Parizeau report says that, unless an unforeseen situation arises, "no attempt should be made to force financial institutions to invest part of their assets in Quebec or to buy bonds issued by Quebec municipalities or the Quebec government."

The 300-page report devotes considerable space to new, uniform ways of regulating all provincially incorporated financial instutitions, including trust companies, insurance companies, credit unions and small-loan companies.

The chartered banks are federally incorporated and do not come within the scope of this report.

A special board would be empowered to give and take away the licences of financial institutions and, in certain circumstances, to lend them money.

LARGEST FLEET OF ALL ON PAPER

MONROVIA (AP) — On paper, Prince Abraham Massaquoi of Liberia commands the largest merchant fleet in the world.

As Liberia's maritime commissioner, Prince Abraham sees fees pour in every year from 1,700 ships registered in Liberia. Their gross tonnage, 27,000,000, is greater than that of such traditional maritime countries as Britain, Japan, the United States and Norway.

Foreign shipowners pay Liberia for use of the West African republic's flag. Liberia earned more than $4,000,000 in registration fees and taxes in 1968, about 80 per cent of its total revenue.

The prince rarely gets the chance to see his fleet, let alone board a ship. Few come to Monrovia's modern but snug harbor.

"Some of those ships can't get in here," he says.

The fleet sails under Liberia's flag because it is cheap. Owners, mostly Americans and Greeks, pay $1.20 a net ton to register and 10 cents a ton fee every Jan. 1. Liberian promises not to change fees for 20 years after registration.

Some maritime countries regard registration in Liberia as a way to escape taxes at home and avoid union wage scales and safety regulations. They declare cheap fees give Liberia resgistered ships an unfair commercial advantage.

Eric Ogden, Labor member of Parliament from the British port of Liverpool, has called the system "the nearest thing to piracy since the Jolly Roger."

"We don't call it a flag of convenience," Prince Abraham said in a mild-mannered defence. "We call it a flag of attraction. It is a beneficial arrangement for the shipowners. We give their ships diplomatic protection wherever they go."

Despite pressure from maritime governments, the paper fleet grows. The Liberians even own three of their own ships.

In 1948, 1,000 gross tons of shipping were registered in Liberia. By 1959, tonnage was up to 11,936,000 tapering off to 10,573,000 in 1962 when American maritime unions waged an anti-Liberia campaign.

Ten Islanders Gain Places In Nationals

VANCOUVER — Ten Vancouver Island athletes qualified for starting berths in the Canadian track and field finals at Victoria during the Western Canadian championships here.

Top two finishers in the previous Canadian championship qualified automatically this year, along with the next three finishers from each of the Western and Eastern championships at the weekend.

Leading the contingent with qualifiying performances in two events each are Victoria's girl wonders, Anne Langdale and Penny May.

Miss Langdale qualified Saturday with a second-place finish in the 100 metres behind Irene Piotrowski, and Sunday was awarded second place in the 200 metres after clocking an indentical 24.4 with Miss Piotrowski.

DOUBLE VICTORY

Miss May flashed through the 100-metre hurdles with a winning 14.8 Saturday, and came back Sunday to win the 200-metre hurdles in 28.2 seconds.

In other action Saturday Larry Corbett qualified in the 3,000-metre steeplechase after finishing fourth. He was awarded a qualifying third because winner Jim Johnson is an American.

NANAIMO GIRL

Jean Baldwin of Nanaimo finished third in Saturday's 400-metres to qualify, while Stephanie Corby of Esquimalt Track Club, qualified with a fourth-place finish because winner Ann Covell of Richmond qualified from last year.

Nickie Webb of Esquimalt may qualify on her fifth-place finish if second-place Miss Piotrowski drops out, as she has indicated she may.

Sunday saw five male athletes added to the predominantly feminine list of qualifiers as Dave Weicker hustled through a personal best of 1:51.5 in the 800-metres. He finished fourth but qualified because winner Barry Cunningham qualified last year.

McLAREN WINS

Bob McLaren breezed to an easy 54.1 second win in his specialty, the 400-metre hurdles, while Roger Ruth and Gerard Dumas both qualified in the pole vault.

Victoria's Bill Clark also qualified on a fifth-place finish in the high jump because winner Wilf Wedman qualified last year, and Roger Mercier, who also qualified last year, has retired.

The nationals at Victoria's Centennial Stadium are scheduled for Aug. 30-31.

Johnny Did The Talking

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny Sain, the dissatisfied pitching coach of Detroit Tigers, was fired Sunday by general manager Jim Campbell.

Campbell said: "I talked with him (Sain) and asked him if statements in the newspapers were true. Anybody who can read a story wouldn't be surprised that he's fired."

Sain said Saturday that Mayo Smith, manager of the American League baseball club, rejected his advice about the pitching staff.

"When my advice isn't used and there are no results from what I'm doing there, then I figure it's time to leave," Sain said.

Smith said: "All I can say is that he (Sain) made all the statements."

Wilf's Big Jump Encouraging Sign

High jumper Wilf Wedman soared through a psychological barrier Sunday at the Western Canadian track and field championships in Vancouver, while injuries cut down a pair of top competitors in the Eastern final at Toronto.

Wedmann, Canadian record holder, won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 8 inches and then, in practice immediately afterwards, bettered his Canadian record of 6' 10½" with two jumps of 6' 11".

It was a frustrating experience as a record must be set in competition, not in practice. But to Wedmann it was the sign he has been waiting for for several months.

"For the first time," he said later, "I didn't lose my cool at that height. That's been my big problem—my style's fine at 6' 8" but once I tried the higher jumps, I'd blow it.

"The barrier wasn't physical, but mental."

Meanwhile at the Eastern final, Carole Roberts of Toronto, dropped out of the 100-metre hurdles final after pulling a muscle in her left leg in the first heat Saturday. She hobbled home to qualify in 14.9 seconds.

This left Cathy Chapman of Toronto as the favorite—but she never crossed the wire.

With a one-foot lead on Toronto's Astrid Verdun at the ninth hurdle, she crashed to the track with a severely injured left ankle and was carried off the field. Miss Verdun was the winner in 14.9.

The injuries leave the hurdle field wide open for Peggy Busch of Vancouver and Penny May of Victoria.

Liz Allen Sweeps Water-Ski Crowns

COPENAHGEN (AP) — Liz Allan of the United States ran two safe passes through the final women's trick event to clinch the women's title at the world water ski championships Sunday in an unprecedented clean sweep of four events.

Miss Allan, 18, took no chances and performed an unspectacular run of 3,102 which, combined with her preliminary round of 3,598, sufficed to win her the tricks gold medal and the grand slam of wins in slalom, jump, tricks and overall.

Christy Lynn Weir of the U.S. placed second in the trick finals with runs of 3,417 and 2,681, and Kaye Thurlow of Australia was third with 3,247 and 2,420.

Miss Allan's domination of the women's events helped the U.S. retain its team championship which it won at last year's world championships at Sherbrooke, Que. Australia was second, France third and Canada fourth.

Wayne Grimditch of the U.S. leaped 133 feet to win the gold medal in the men's jumping finals.

The 15-year-old schoolboy, who never competed internationally before, beat veterans in the face of high winds and difficult water conditions.

Both the preliminary and the final jumping took place on rough water with low standards the result. Wayne's preliminary jump of 140 feet combined with Sunday's effort gave him an easy lead over Pierre Clerc of Switzerland

George Athans, the 17-year-old Canadian champion from Kelowna, B.C., had been a favorite to win the men's gold but fell rounding the first buoy in the course. Athans had tied for first in the preliminaries with 33 buoys but his total points brought him down to eighth position after the finals.

Jean Perrault of Sherbrooke, Que., finished 12th after a leap of 95 feet in the jumping finals.

Ryder Cup Berth Beats Tourney Win, Says Ken

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Ken Still has two victories this year, but the greatest thrill of his golfing life is yet to come.

"It's the Ryder Cup," he said Sunday after his two-stroke victory in the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open. "There's no greater thrill than that. It's got to be the greatest of my career.

"I didn't expect to make it, and I just can't believe that I have. To represent our country in an international match has to be the greatest thing in my life."

Still's victory—he made the Citrus Open in March the first title of his nine-year tour career—boosted him into 10th place on the list from which 12 players will be chosen to play against Great Britain in Southport, England, in September.

But while Still, 35, nailed down a spot on the team, a disappointed Arnold Palmer failed in his quest of an improved position in the standings.

NEEDS GOOD SCORE

Palmer had a 72 Sunday and finished with 287, far back in the field that lacked most of the great names of the game.

He didn't get a point and now must finish no lower than second in the PGA championship that starts Thursday if he is to make the team for the fifth time. He now is 15th on the list.

Still shot a 65, seven under par 72 on the North Shore Country Club course, and finished with a 277, two strokes ahead of South African Gary Player.

SPLIT BRITCHES

Player also had a 65—despite an embarrassing moment on the 18th when he split his britches while lining up a putt—for 279.

"It was terrible," Player said. "I was squatting down and, zap—there they went."

Lee Elder was alone in third at 280 after a 66, Jim Wiechers had a 69 for 281, Bob Lunn had a 71 for 282 and four more were tied at 283—Larry Ziegler, Chuck Courtney, Peter Townsend and Terry Dill.

Still had a fantastic putting touch in his final round.

277—Still, ($20,000).
279—Player ($11,400).
280—Elder ($7,100).
281—Wiechers ($4,700).
282—Lunn ($4,100).
283—Dill, Ziegler Townsend and Courtney ($3 112).
289—Zarley, Rodgers, Abbott, Martin and Cerrudo ($2,120).
285—R. H. Sikes, Hennings and Miller ($1,600).
286—Garrett, Graham Opperman, Colbert and Massengale ($1,200.)

Title Bid Fails

Don Leo Jonathan and John Tolos earned an "almost" Canadian championship in a tag-team bout at Memorial Arena Saturday night.

The twosome defeated Bulldog Brown and Dutch Savage, but because one fall came on a disqualification the win does not stand as a championship.

WINDSOR MACKS EARN TRIP TO WORLD SERIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Windsor, Ont., defeated Coquitlam twice Sunday to win the best-of-three Canadian Connie Mack baseball final series and advance to the world event in New Mexico.

Windsor lost 3-1 in the first game in Vancouver Saturday but recovered behind the pitching of Al Smith, 18, to take 3-1 and 4-1 decisions at New Westminster Sunday.

Smith gave Coquitlam a run in the bottom of the first inning in the first game Sunday, then blanked his opponents. He came in with the clubs tied 1-1 in the sixth in the last game.

Windsor now moves to the Connie Mack world series in Farmington, N.M., Aug. 16.

Addy Boy Takes Dupont Handicap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Addy Boy swept to a hard-earned triumph in the $56,950 William Dupont Jr. handicap at Stanton, Del., Saturday as the Delaware park horse-racing meeting came to a close.

Owned and bred by Daniel L. Reynolds' Keystone Stable, the four-year-old colt completed the 1 1-16 miles in 1:43 1-5 under Mike Hole to earn the $37,017 first money by a length.

Thaddeus R. Trouts Balustrade was second, four lengths before Irving D. Goldman's, Top Wise.

Addy Boy paid $8.40, $4.40 and $3.80. Balustrade returned $6.60 and $5.20, with Top Wise $13.40 to show.

In Chicago, Fast Hilarious, owned by Dorthy C. Rigney of Chicago, led all the way and won the $56,000 Arlington Park Towers Handicap by three-quarters of a length.

FAVORIE SECOND

Night Invader as the favorite finished second, a head in front of Barely Once, before a crowd of 23,644.

Poplar Hill Farm's Mr. Clinch led all the way to win the $54,650 Minuteman Handicap at Liberty Bell Park in Philadelphia by 4½ lengths in track record time of 1:49.2.

Ridden by Billy Phelps, Mr. Clinch reeled off a 1:36.2 over the 1⅛ miles to clip 2 1-5 seconds off the previous record.

Mr. Clinch paide $8.20 and $3.

Shuvee, owned by Mrs. Whiney Stone and winner of the triple crown for fillies, won the 89th running of the Alabama Stakes at Saratoga by four lengths.

She was ridden by Jesse Davison and earned $35,360 as winner's share of $54,400 in the second oldest filly stake in America.

WINNER of three titles in British national swimming championships at Blackpool, Eng., was Donna-Marie Gurr (above) of Vancouver. Miss Gurr, 14, took third title by winning 220-yard freestyle final by inches over England's Diana Sutherland. Another Vancouver ace, Ron Jacks, collected two free-style titles in meet, which ended Saturday.

Mainland Archer Gets World Mark

West Vancouver's Virginia Parkhurst, one of the competitors in the recent Canadian archery championships here, has been credited with a world record in the FITA event for her almost-perfect round from 70 metres.

Mrs. Parkhurst and Cliff Allen of Victoria are members of the Canadian team which has left for the world championships at Valley Forge, Penn.

Huston Stands Tallest In Bate's Softball Win

City Club Captures Title With 2 Shutout Victories

By ERNIE FEDORUK

It's been a while, but the top prize in British Columbia Senior "A" men's softball is back in Victoria.

The talented Bate Construction crew of the Major Men's League ended a 12-year drought Sunday.

They did it by shoving the defending champions off the throne with a pair of tense shutout victories at Central Park.

Bounding back from their only loss in the double-knockout provincial tournament, Bates edged Vancouver Molsons 3-0 and 1-0 behind the shutout pitching of veterans Barry Jackson and Gord Huston.

In winning, Bates became Victoria's first provincial "A" champions since Joe Bryant guided Gorge Hotel to the top in 1957.

PLAY AT CALGARY

Bates now head for a bigger prize. The Lou McCorkall-coached team is scheduled to meet Alberta's champions in Calgary next weekend. The winners of the Alberta-B.C. series will represent the Pacific region in the Canadian championships at Saskatoon later this month.

As might be expected of a team strong at every position, virtually every regular contributed strongly to victory in the two-day tournament. But the "big guy" of the team stood tallest.

MOST VALUABLE

Six-foot-eight Gord Huston nailed down the deciding game and was acclaimed the most valuable player of the tournament.

The 327-pounder was superb in throwing the final victory. He also contributed at bat. His third-inning single was the first of three hits off loser Jack Kine, but it was enough to send outfielder Tom Bourne in with the only run of the game.

HOME RUN

Huston also sparked Bates to a 2-1 victory over Prince George on Saturday. His seventh-inning home run, with two out, enabled Bates to win that one.

Molsons had knocked Bates from the undefeated ranks earlier Sunday by shading the Victorians 3-1 in the "A" bracket final. Bates then qualified for a second crack at the Mols by clipping Vancouver Johnstons 4-2 in the "B" final as Brian Pearce came along to throw a four-hitter.

JACKSON TOUGH

Then it was Jackson's turn. Bates managed only three hits off loser Merle Johnson, but bunched them well for run-producing innings in the fifth and sixth. Jackson was tagged for 10 hits but was tough in the clutch.

In addition to Huston, other tournament standouts included Molson pitcher Gordon Hartley, selected the outstanding hurler; catcher Ken Campbell of Vancouver Merchants, named the most gentlemanly player, and shortstop Brian Avery of Vancouver Johnstons, the leading hitter with a .468 average.

CPGA Winner, Cox Sights On B.C. Open

Bob Cox, of Quilchena Golf Club, today set his sights on a fourth straight championship.

Cox, of Richmond, who Sunday won the Canadian Professional Golfers' championship at Vancouver with a 72-hole total of 280, is entered in the British Columbia Open golf championship at Uplands Golf Club here this week.

His victory was the third in as many tournaments. Previously he had won the Saskatchewan and Alberta Open championships.

The B.C. tourney starts here with a pro-amateur event on Thursday and the 54-hole tournament proper is Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Many of the pros who competed in the CPGA tourney will be entered in the B.C. Open.

Cox, 12-under par after 54 holes, struggled through his worst round to finish with a 76 and one stroke ahead of steady Ron Willey of Vancouver to take the $5,000 first prize and the Labatt Cup.

But he needed to birdie the final hole to do it after Willey's eagle putt on 18 stopped on the lip of the cup.

"I'm just glad I ran out of holes," said Cox.

Willey, an assistant pro at Vancouver Marine Drive, competing in his first CPGA championship, collected $3,500, but he wasn't the only one chasing Cox on the back nine of the 6,754-yard Point Grey Golf and Country Club course.

Moe Norman, of Gilford, Ont., birdied three of the last five holes, had a 72-hole total of 282, good for a tie for third place with Al Balding of Toronto and $2,000.

Defending champion George Knudson of Toronto finished nine over at 297 and picked up $210.

BROTHER ACT

The Homenuik brothers won $2,200 between them. Stan, the Dauphin, Man., pro, was in at 284 for $1,200. Wilf, who won the CPGA title in 1965, claimed $1,000 and sixth place, two strokes behind.

Cox started the final 18 by going one over on the first hole.

He was even with a birdie on the second then parred his way to the seventh hole and trouble. His club caught the grass on the backswing off the tee and he hooked under a tree off the fairway. Five strokes later, he was two over and nervous.

His approach shot landed in the bunker on 11, but he holed a "45-foot putt that must have broken eight feet," to salvage a par four. However, he was one over again on the 209-yard, par-three 13th.

Willey's second shot bit on the back of the 18th green and rolled back toward the cup, stopping 10 feet short.

The crowd gasped as his eagle putt came to rest on a tuft of grass at the edge of the hole, but the birdie tap-in wasn't good enough.

Cox lagged his putt from 25 feet to within three feet of the pin and jammed it the rest of the way for a birdie.

City Colt Squad Walks Into Final

WHALLEY—Victoria All-Stars and Surrey were walking, not running, when they clashed Sunday to determine who advanced to the final round in British Columbia-Western Canada Colt League championship play here.

As it turned out, the Island squad strolled into a final berth and within one game of the Colt League world series at Lafayette, Ind., on the fat end of a 3-2 score, while Surrey staggered a giant step closer to baseball oblivion in the nine team tournament.

In a game marred by wild pitching from both sides, combined batting line-ups only managed a total of three hits, while walks played a major role in the scoring of all five runs.

Victoria, undefeated in the tournament, went ahead in the first inning when a walked man came home, but the All-Stars pitching broke down and walked home a pair of Surrey base runners in the third.

Another walked man evened the score for Victoria in the sixth, and Ray Andre scored the winning run in the top of the seventh when he walked, stole second and came home on Jim Tarbuck's single. Tarbuck picked up All-Stars' only hits.

Victoria gets a bye into Tuesday's final at 6 p.m. They meet the winner of a Surrey-Richmond Delta clash today at 6 p.m.

Richmond Delta lost to Victoria 4-2 in opening round play.

Galt Takes Final Little League Berth

Teams that were last to qualify will be among the first to tangle in the Canadian Little League Baseball championships Tuesday at Hampton Park.

Galt Nationals earned a berth in the tournament with a last-minute effort Sunday when they swept a double-header with Ottawa Canterbury 4-3 and 2-0 in the Ontario championships.

Galt dropped a game to Ottawa Thursday to teeter on the edge of elimination from the five-team tournament.

At 6 p.m. Tuesday the Galt team meets Vancouver Collingwood, which marched through the British Columbia championships to emerge undefeated after a final 3-1 victory over Vancouver Dunbar Saturday.

Meeting in the first game Tuesday will be Valleyfield, champions of the Quebec-Maritimes region, and Edmonton Hardisty, winner of the Prairie playoff.

The Quebec team was in Victoria for the 1966 Canadian Little League championships.

The Quebec club was the first to qualify for tournament play, cleaning up a best of three final with St. John, N.B. Friday in straight ames.

Edmonton knocked off Lethbridge in the prairie final to complete qualifying play undefeated.

First-round losers Tuesday meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday in a sudden death elimination round, with winners meeting at 6 p.m.

Victor in the winner's bracket then awaits the winner of a loser's bracket final Thursday at 6 p.m. for a Friday final scheduled for the same time.

If necessary an extra, sudden-death final will be held Saturday at 10 a.m.

Canadian Forces at Esquimalt will hold a reception and buffet at the Chief Petty Officers' Mess tonight. Coaches and managers get a final, official briefing at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Red Lion Inn.

Winner of the tournament leaves Victoria at 8:45 a.m. Sunday for Williamsport, Pa., and a crack at the world series of little league baseball.

Twins Come Up Swinging; Martin's Blow Hurts Most

BILLY MARTIN
. . . kayoes pitcher

By The Associated Press

Cesar Tovar has struck again—and so has Billy Martin.

Tovar this season has developed the habit of breaking up no-hitters in the ninth inning against Baltimore pitchers. He did it again Sunday with a line drive off Mike Cuellar, but the Orioles still beat the Minnesota Twins 2-0.

The hit could not have been as painful to Cuellar as those Twins' manager Billy Martin laid on Dave Boswell, one of his own pitchers.

Martin disclosed after the defeat that he had knocked out Boswell in a fight in Detroit Wednesday after Boswell had attacked Twins' outfielder Bob Allison.

Despite the defeat, the Twins maintained their 1½-game lead in the Western Division of the American League over Oakland, as New York Yankees collected four home runs against the Athletics for a 5-1 victory.

In other Sunday AL games, Detroit Tigers whipped Chicago White Sox 8-2, California Angels clubbed Boston Red Sox 9-1, Cleveland Indians hammered Kansas City Royals 8-1 and Washington Senators outlasted Seattle Pilots 7-5.

Saturday, Kansas City thrashed Cleveland 10-0, Boston bounced California 9-4, Baltimore tripped Minnesota 5-1, New York nipped Oakland 2-1, Seattle topped Washington 8-6 and Detroit doubled the score on Chicago 8-4.

Last May 15, Dave McNally of the Orioles had a no-hitter with one out in the ninth inning when Tovar broke it up with a single.

Sunday's shot into left field sailed past the outstretched glove of shortstop Mark Belanger. Cuellar then closed out the game for his fifth consecutive victory and Baltimore's sixth in a row.

STREAK ENDS

Jim Perry had a personal eight-game winning streak ended, although he allowed only four hits in seven innings. But two of them were Boog Powell's 31st homer in the fourth inning and Elrod Hendricks' eighth in the seventh.

The Yankees unloaded against Oakland, while Reggie Jackson, the Athletics' long ball threat, stretched his homerless string to 47 at bats, his longest barren stretch of the season.

After Roy White broke a 1-1 tie with a homer in the fifth inning for New York, Bobby Murcer, Thurman Munson and Gene Michael hit successive homers in the sixth on five pitches.

Fritz Peterson gave up six hits for the victory, the eighth in nine games for the Yankees.

BREAKS HEX

Don Sutton, who had lost 13 consecutive decisions to Chicago, beat the Cubs for the first time in his National-League baseball career Sunday, as Los Angeles Dodgers won 4-2.

Atlanta Braves, battling to stay in the thick of a five-team Western Division race, dropped a 3-0 decision to New York, their sixth loss in the last seven starts against the Mets in less than two weeks.

Philadelphia Phillies absorbed another thumping from Cincinnati Reds, losing 10-0. The Reds beat Philadelphia 12-5 Friday and 19-17 Aug. 3. The Reds have won nine of 11 games against the Phillies this season.

In other NL games Sunday, St. Louis Cardinals clipped San Francisco Giants 7-4, Pittsburgh Pirates won a doubleheader from San Diego Padres 7-5 and 8-6, and Houston Astros defeated Montreal Expos 3-1.

MAKES 3 HITS

Tommie Agee cracked three hits, including his 19th home run, and Nolan Ryan, Don Cardwell and Tug McGraw combined for the five-hitter as the Mets blanked the Braves.

Johnny Bench drove in four runs with a single and a three-run homer as the Reds won their fourth straight and 12th in the last 14 games.

Tax Assessor Arnold Is Everybody's Buddy

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) — Arnold Parks of Saint John, N.B., stepped out of character Saturday, becoming everybody's favorite for a change.

He isn't always popular.

"I'm one of those fellows most people don't like—a tax assessor," Parks said after winning the coveted Governor-General's prize in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet.

But if tax assessors are low on the popularity list, there was no doubt Saturday about Parks' estem among the other shooters.

"Arnold is one of the most popular competitors here and in Britain. We're delighted he won," said Phil Harrison of England, last year's winner.

Parks fired a 287 score out of a possible 300 to defeat 299 other competitors taking the prize in the final event of a week's shooting.

Shooting into a 20-mile-an-hour wind and a heavy downpour, he edged Arnie Sorensen of Calgary and John Cade of Great Britain, both with 285. Cade was placed second because of a better score than Sorensen at the 1,000-yard distance.

Parks felt the wind and rain made a "big difference" in the scores at the Connaught Ranges near this community 20 miles west of Ottawa.

TEAM NAMED

The other major event Saturday was the selection of the elite 16-member Canadian team that will shoot against the Commonwealth's best at Bisley next year.

Sorensen held the top score with 953 out of 980 points in selected events during the week of competition here.

Parks at 945 was second followed by Mike Susick, Summerside, P.E.I., at 943.

Other team members:

R. B. Cathline, Barry, Ont., 942; Dick Hampton, Woodlawn, Ont., 941; Edson Warner, Sherbrooke, Que., 939; Alain Marion, Hull, Que., 937; Jim Hennok, Borden, Ont., 937.

Gerry Ouellette, Windsor, Ont., 932; A. K. Mutch, New Glasgow, N..S, 932; Clint Dahlstrom, Calgary, 931; G. H. Farquarson, Kamloops, B.C., 931.

Jack Cramer, Vancouver, 930; Don Keizer, Powell River, B..C 930; G. F. Sanderson, Ottawa, 930; Norm Beckett, Hamilton, 929.

Richey Outlasts Bucholz in Final

TORONTO (CP) — "I always play hard," said redheaded Cliff Richey after wearing down Butch Bucholz 6-4 6-4, 5-7, 6-0 to take the men's singles title in the Canadian open tennis championships Sunday.

"I never get tired."

Second-seeded Richey, brother of top-ranked United States women's singles player Nancy Richey, dominated the match. Bucholz' game fell apart after Richey broke his serve to take a 3-0 lead in the fourth set.

"I thought Butch played very well except for the fourth set," said the 22-year-old independent pro from San Angelo, Tex.

In the women's singles, top-ranked Canadian Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., outplayed second-seed Vicki Berner of Vancouver on all fronts, 6-2, 6-0.

TAKE DOUBLES

The two came back as a pair to take the women's doubles crown for the fourth straight year with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Vivienne Strong and Jane O'Hara of Toronto.

John Newcombe of Australia and Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., won the men's doubles 6-3, 6-4, over Bucholz and Ray Moore of South Africa. The four professionals all are under contract to the same Dallas, Tex., agency.

Honors in the mixed doubles went to Bill Higgins of the Bahamas and Andree Martin of Montreal. They defeated Harry Fauquier of Toronto and Mary McAnally of London, England, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The men's singles title brought Richey $2,000 in prize money. Bucholz received $1,400. Prizes of $1,000 each went to losing semi-finalists Newcombe and Mike Belkin, the Canadian closed champion, and $650 each to the losers in the quarter-finals: Moore, Lester Sack of Clarksdale, Miss., Dick Crealey of Australia and Pancho Guzman of Ecuador.

Bucholz defeated top-seed Newcombe Saturday 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-0 after Newcombe developed back and leg cramps.

Haslam Wins Trophy Dash

MONROE, Wash. — Victoria super-stock driver Roy Haslam won the trophy dash and placed third in both the main and fast heat races during a National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing meet Sunday at Evergreen Speedway.

Haslam beat NASCAR points leader Harry Jefferson in the final straightaway for the third place finish in the main and held off the main event winner Fred Hay in the trophy dash.

Another Victoria driver, Ross Surgenor, placed sixth in the main and second in the "B" main.

Luckies Complete Lacrosse Sweep

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Luckies captured the Vancouver Island Senior Lacrosse League best-of-seven playoff final in straight games with a 12-6 victory over Nanaimo City on Saturday.

Luckies now will take on either Prince George or Vernon for the B.C. Senior "B" title in a series scheduled to begin on Aug. 23.

Leading goal-getter for Luckies was Larry Clarkson, who scored three times.

Another Title For Carnarvon

Carnarvon All-Stars are still the rulers of the provincial Pony League baseball realm.

Carnarvons captured their second successive British Columbia championship and their ninth crown in the past 10 years at Carnarvon Park Sunday by defeating Kennedy 2-0.

Next stop on the playoff trail for Carnarvon is the Western Canada playoff, starting Friday at Delta. A best-of-three series against Saskatoon Red Sox will determine a berth in the World Series at Washington, Penn., beginning Aug. 20.

Carnarvons made it through the six-team, double-loss elimination provincial tournament without a loss. They defeated North Coquitlam 3-1 in their opening game Thursday and downed Terrace 12-3 on Friday.

KENNEDY REBOUNDS

Kennedy earned the right to face Carnarvon by winning two games Saturday. The lower mainland club dropped into the losers' bracket by a 13-5 loss to Little Mountain in its opening game, came back to eliminate both Little Mountain (8-4) and Terrace (6-2).

Carnarvon scored both runs in the first inning.

Frank Dalziel struck out seven on the way to a two-hit pitching victory. He showed suberb control throughout the game, allowing no walks.

Carnarvon's victory was highlighted by the fine fielding of shortstop Craig Rowley and third-baseman John Burrows.

Rowley threw out eight runners while Burrows was instrumental in three putouts.

Tennis Veteran Triple Winner

Experience paid off for Dodo Cheney, of Santa Monica, Calif., as she became the only triple winner in the British Columbia Open tennis championships, which ended Saturday at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

The veteran of "about 40 years" of competition, Mrs. Cheney, 51, downed first-seeded Mary Struthers, 19, of La Jolla, Calif., 6-4, 8-6, to capture the women's singles crown. She also gathered in the veteran's singles titles by defeating Victoria's Sally Wood, 6-2, 6-0.

Mrs. Cheney had partnered Helen McDowell of Los Angeles to victory in the veteran's doubles event on Friday.

Fifth-ranked Pierce Kelly of Miami stroked his way to the men's singles title with a 6-3, 6-2, victory over unseeded Craig Hardy of Tucson, Ariz.

A Californian duo of Ed Bell (Arcadia) and Mervin Miller (Pasadena) won the men's doubles crown with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Jim Watson of San Francisco and Lew Grinnan of Dallas.

Evelyn Housman of Dallas and Barbara Grubb of Santa Monica defeated the mother-and-daughter team of Betty and Mary Struthers, 4-6, 8-6, 6-1 for the women's doubles title.

Mary McLean of San Antonio and Tom Muench of San Francisco captured the mixed doubles championship by downing Diane Powell of Sacramento and Hardy, 6-3, 6-2.

Other final results:

Men's consolation: Jack Oates defeated Dave Benish, 14-12, 3-6, 6-4.

Ladies' consolation: Mary McLean defeated Merideth Bunch, 6-1, 6-2.

Junior vets singles: Ed Bell defeated Frank Johnson, 6-3, 6-2.

Senior vets singles: Jack Morrison defeated Bob Peskett, 6-3, 6-3.

Junior vets doubles: Mack Holder and Mervin Miller defeated Frank Johnson and Brian Walters, 6-3, 9-7.

Senior vets doubles: Bob Peskett and Jack Morrison defeated Mervin Miller and Bill Klein, 6-2, 6-2.

Adanacs Streak At Record Clip

COQUITLAM — Coquitlam Adanacs, who have already clinched the Western Lacrosse Association championship, tied the record for consecutive victories Saturday with a 7-6 victory over New Westminster Salmonbellies.

It was the 16th straight victory for Adanacs since they were handed their only loss of the season, 12-7, on June 12 in New Westminster.

NANAIMO RECORD

Nanaimo Timbermen set the record in the 1955 season, taking the league title for the first time but losing in the playoffs. That was the year Victoria Shamrocks won their first Mann Cup.

Bill Chomiak led Coquitlam with two goals and two assists. Whitey McKean, Kevin Parsons, John Allen, Mike Gates and Wayne Spooner each scored once.

SCORES TWICE

Ken Winzoski, playing his first WLA game of the season after spending the early part of the year with Toronto of the eastern loop, scored twice for New Westminster.

Wayne Shuttleworth, Al Lewthwaite, Jack Henry and Ed Goss were the other scorers. Goalkeeper Joe Comeau had three assists.

	P	W	L	F	A	Pts.

Canadian Hurler Signed by Tigers

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Mark Fischer, left-hander for Sarnia, has been signed by Detroit Tigers of the American League following his starring performances in the Canadian junior baseball championships here.

The 19-year-old native of Brandon, Man., struck out 15 to beat Carman, Man., in the final game. He also led Sarnia at the plate by hitting two doubles.

Strawberry Smith's Dish

Al Smith, veteran Canadian-American Modified Racing Association driver from Victoria, came out of retirement for a second time Saturday and stole the show in the modified portion of a program shared with super-stocks at Western Speedway.

Fast time honors and a trophy dash victory were the only prizes to elude Smith, who came out of retirement the first time last September for a try at the Daffodil Cup—and lost.

He cruised to victory in both heat races and then captured the featured 40-lap Strawberry Cup competition before a crowd of 3,176 fans.

MOVED QUICKLY

Smith roared into the lead on the second turn of the first lap after starting in third position of an eight-car field. He then boosted his lead to half a lap ahead of second-place Vern Church of Seattle by the 10th lap, a margin which he maintained the rest of the way.

Smith recorded an average time of 16.80 seconds per lap at a speed of 85.7 miles-per-hour.

It was the third Strawberry Cup victory for Smith, who also triumphed in 1966 and 1967.

Gery Kershaw captured the featured 25-lap July Cup for super-modifieds after surviving a four car pileup on the fourth lap.

Ross Surgenor lost a wheel, slid sideways into Kershaw and managed to involve two other cars, making a restart necessary.

After the restart, Kershaw took over the lead in the fifth lap and hung on to win.

Dave Cooper won the first heat and Rick O'Dell collected kudos in the trophy dash.

Next event at Western Speedway is the second figure-eight program starting at 7 p.m. Wednesday while midgets return Saturday after an absence of four years.

Saturday's results:

SUPER MODIFIEDS

"A" dash: 1. Vern Church, Seattle; 2. Al Smith, Victoria; 3. Brian Green, Prince George.
"B" dash: 1. Doug Bowell, Nanaimo; 2. Ross McIntyre, Victoria; 3. Andy Anderson, Nanaimo.
First heat: 1. Al Smith; 2. Vern Church; 3. Brian Green.
Second heat: 1. Al Smith; 2. Vern Church; 3. Fred Best, Victoria.
Strawberry Cup: 1. Al Smith; 2. Vern Church; 3. Fred Best; 4. Brian Green.

SUPER STOCKS

Trophy dash: 1. Rick O'Dell; 2. Roy Haslam; 3. Gary Kershaw.

Second heat: 1. Ross Surgenor; 2. Dave Cooper; 3. Roy Haslam.
July Cup: 1. Gary Kershaw; 2. Roy Haslam; 3. Rick O'Dell; 4. Dave Cooper.

Victoria Team Posts Polo Win

Victoria Polo Club players scored eight goals in a 6-5 victory over Vancouver on Sunday at the club's Saanich Road grounds.

Andy Barrie, a VPC player, rode for the visitors to fill out their squad—and scored two goals.

The other three Vancouver goals were scored by Charles Heatherington.

Tony Yonge paced Victoria with five goals while Eoin Ruthven supplied the other tally.

Hillyard Hitting Hero For Cowichan Squad

League-champion Lake Cowichan captured a berth in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League final series Sunday by sweeping a best-of-five semi-final from Century Inn at Heywood Avenue Park.

In another series, Denford Electric took a 2-0 lead with an 8-2 victory over Colwood Inn.

Ken Hillyard was instrumental in all of the Cowichan victories.

In the first game, continued from Thursday when darkness forced a halt in the seventh inning with the score tied 3-3, Hillyard drove in the winning run with a single.

Hillyard clouted three hits, including a fifth-inning homer, to power a second-game, 7-5 victory.

In the third game, Hillyard, Jim Robertson and Mike Hodgins each drove in a run for a 3-2 win.

Denford faces Colwood at 6:45 tonight in Heywood for the third time.

Sonny Was Bright Star But Fans Left in Dark

HAMILTON (CP) — Sonny Wade emerged as a bright new star out of the shadows of Hamilton Civic Stadium Saturday night as Montreal Alouettes salvaged a 22-22 tie against the Tiger-Cats in Eastern Football Conference action.

Wade, the rookie Montreal quarterback who has taken over the starting assignment from 1968 regular Carroll Williams, impressed 23,215 Hamilton fans with a display of ball control in the game's final minute.

With 1:32 remaining and the Tiger-Cats ahead 22-15, a power failure left half the stadium in darkness. The Alouettes had a first down on their own 34. While Canadian Football League commissioner Jake Gaudaur held a meeting with game officials about the darkness, Wade and Montreal head coach Kay Dalton planned their last-ditch strategy.

Wade led the Alouettes on a drive which he completed with a short touchdown pass to rookie flanker Tom Cassesse.

John Baker, Alouettes' place kicking specialist, was faced with the job of tying the game and most of the fans believed he failed when referee Al Dryburgh of Winnipeg waved his arms low. Adding to the confusion, the power failure knocked out the scoreboard and the public address system.

POINT ALLOWED

But Baker's kick was ruled good and the point tied the game.

The tie earned the Alouettes their first point in three starts and dropped the Tiger-Cats into second place, one point behind Ottawa Rough Riders. The defending Grey Cup champions can fatten their lead Wednesday when they play at home to B.C. Lions.

Wade finished with 15 completions of 29 pass attempts, good for 264 yards, and Williams hit three for five, adding four net yards to the Alouettes' attack.

Wade was also an outstanding kicker and booted two singles for Montreal. Baker finished with two conversions while Gassesse accounted for two touchdowns and Dennis Duncan plunged two yards for one TD.

For Hamilton, Dave Fleming, with two, and Tommy Joe Coffey scored touchdowns with Coffey adding a conversion and field goal.

Transports, Movers Start in Same Style

League-champion Greaves Movers and Transport Workers opened their best-of-three Senior Amateur Baseball League semi-final series in similar fashion at Royal Athletic Park.

Both chalked up 7-2 victories in weekend battles.

Transports crammed all runs into the second inning to defeat Gorge Hotel on Sunday.

John McKeachie, Pete Jolly and Terry Whitman each drove in two runs during a five-hit outburst. Two Gorge errors also contributed to Transports' big inning.

Jolly struck out six batters en route to a five-hit victory.

Greaves had downed Independents by the same score as they combined the four-hit pitching of George Hemming and a nine-hit batting barrage.

Playoffs continue tonight with Greaves playing Independents at 6:30 in Royal Athletic Park.

HOTELS AND MOTELS CALL FOR TRAINED MEN AND WOMEN

Hospitality Executive Reveals How To Quickly Prepare For Fascinating, Well-paid Positions

"Whether you're in your twenties or late fifties, you can step into your choice of many different, important and well-paying positions in the ever-growing hospitality field," says Mary Bourke, president of the world-famed Lewis Hotel-Motel Schools. Exciting facts about these opportunities are presented in a new 48-page brochure, now available FREE to those seriously interested in bettering themselves and earning more money.

"We published this interesting book," explains Miss Bourke, "to show how easily and quickly an ambitious man or woman can prepare at home in leisure time or in resident classes for executive positions as Manager, Assistant Manager, Hostess, Housekeeper or 55 other salaried postions (often with apartment, meals and other expenses included). "The book also tells how—with the help of nationwide placement assistance from Lewis — people of all ages can find the openings in luxurious hotels, beautiful motels, fashionable resorts and country clubs that can lead to fascinating careers. It spells out the opportunities for retired men and women, and shows how they can prepare for happy, exciting employment for extra income."

A copy of this new book is free for the asking and is offered without obligation. Send your name, address, zone and phone numbers to the Lewis Motel-Hotel Schools, Division of International Career Academy of Canada Ltd., Dept. VBC210, Box 82, Abbotsford, British Columbia.

(For more than 50 years the Lewis Hotel-Motel Schools have been training people for glamorous, successful hospitality careers. Lewis is the world's original school for the hospitality field.)

THOSE IN NEED DON'T KNOW OF HIM

Ombudsman's Problem

By ANNE ROBERTS

EDMONTON (CP) — The dilemma of Alberta's ombudsman is that the people who need him most often do not know he exists.

George B. McClellan, the first ombudsman appointed in North America to protect citizens from officialdom, realizes that the people who do not know how to deal with large-scale bureaucracy and who do not understand the mass of rules that affect their lives naturally are the ones who suffer most from government mistakes, neglect and confusion.

And these less-educated people, poor people, native people, the elderly and those from other cultures are the least likely to know that an ombudsman exists to appeal the decisions of the provincial bureaucracy.

Mr. McClellan welcomes publicity in order to inform people in need of what he can do for them.

PUBLICITY HELPS

After he obtained the release in May of an Alberta man unjustly confined in a mental hospital for 22 years, a political uproar followed. The man had tried to appeal his dilemma to the lieutenant-governor and his mail was intercepted by the attorney-general's department and never passed on.

The subsequent publicity brought the ombudsman's position to the attention of the public as never before. "June was our largest month for complaints—we received 77," he says.

The ombudsman, a post originated in Sweden in 1809, provides anyone with a complaint against Alberta officials a place to appeal the decisions of the province's boards, departments, commissions and tribunals, from the workmen's compensation board and the health and welfare department to the liquor control board.

A former RCMP commissioner, Mr. McClellan was appointed ombudsman two years ago.

Last year, Mr. McClellan, two investigators, and a solicitor, with the help of a secretary and two stenographers, handled 535 complaints. But 55 to 60 per cent of them were not within the ombudsman's jurisdiction.

In order for the ombudsman to handle the case, it must be a complaint against a government agency and the person must have exhausted all other avenues of appeal. Mr. McClellan can also refuse to investigate those he considers frivolous or those in which the person does not exhibit enough interest.

"The main problems concern what I call the gut issues of life—health, welfare, mental hospitals, land and the workmen's compensation board.

"One of the biggest problems is to get people whom we can't help into hands of those who can help."

Complaints against private business cannot be handled by the ombudsman but he might be able to put them into touch with an agency with authority to rectify the problem. Often the complainant will not know the agency exists.

HAS WIDE POWERS

"There is an inherent obligation by nature of the position that if a complaint is out of our field, we get them to someone who can help," says Mr. McClellan.

A further benefit of publicity is that it can be used as the ombudsman's ultimate weapon.

The ombudsman can inspect all government files, hold informal or formal hearings, bring anyone in the province, including all government officials, before him and can require they testify under oath, and present the problem before the provincial cabinet executive council.

If all that fails, he can bring the case before the legislature and at that time the case is public and available to the mass media.

A check on the ombudsman's enormous power is that he "does not want to find out he has made a mistake publicly."

The concept of the ombudsman has caught on in Canada and around the world. New Brunswick and Quebec have hired men for the post and Manitoba will soon have one.

England, Sweden, and New Zealand have had one for many years and Tanzania and India are in the process of setting up the office. Hawaii created the position in July and other states in America are considering it.

RED VIET VOTE WIN OKAY

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers promised here Saturday that if the Communists win a free election in South Vietnam the United States would happily accept the outcome.

In other remarks at an afternoon press conference, Rogers denied that additional U.S. troop withdrawals had been approved, belittled the political implications of the present lull in fighting and bitterly denounced North Vietnamese treatment of American prisoners of war.

Speaking off the cuff at an evening banquet, Rogers warned that the Middle East situation is in some ways more dangerous than the Vietnam war.

"The Middle East situation, if it worsens, might involve the whole world," he said.

Concerning elections, Rogers said: "If you have free elections and they are properly supervised and represent the will of the people, as far as the United States is concerned we would be happy to accept the results."

Whites Pulled In Indian Races

By HUMPHRY DAVY

White men and women competed for the first time in Indian war canoe races at the Tsartlip festival in Brentwood Saturday and Sunday.

It came as a surprise to hundreds of spectators who have always regarded racing streamlined 70-foot cedar canoes as strictly an Indian sport.

The whites, members of the White Raven Canoe Club, formed part of crews entered by the Nanaimo Indians.

The club also entered its own canoe "The White Raven" and won the Klooch-man (women's) race. Four of the 11-man crew were whites.

"I don't think there is anything more thrilling than racing in a war canoe," said Verelyn Murphy, one of the white pullers. "You really feel you are in a race."

Verelyn said the tricky part of the race is turning the canoe around a marker.

MINOR WAR

"Two or three canoes are usually packed close together and turning at the same time," she said. "Anything can happen then. Paddles may snap and canoes overturn."

"For a few seconds a minor war also takes place," she added. "If you don't hang on to your paddle tightly you are likely to find it flying out of your hands. Water may be flipped into your boat. The referee is usually on the watch out for this, but it happens so quickly."

Verelyn said club members have been racing all summer at Indian regattas.

"Wherever we go we are courteously received by the Indians," she said. "It's an honor to be racing with them."

Members of the club have a rigid training program.

"We practice every day," she said. "We are up at 5 a.m. and do some jogging. Smoking and drinking while training and racing is out."

Wally Robinson, club president, said the Nanaimo Indians encouraged them to form a club and to race cedar canoes instead of the manufactured racing canoes of the east.

Last winter we bought an old canoe," he said. "It was in a terrible shape, but we patched it, and today it won a race."

Robinson felt that more non-Indians should race with Indians to promote understanding.

"And it's quite an experience racing in those long cedar-built canoes," he said. "There is no other craft built like it in Canada."

The big winners in the canoe regatta were members of the Malahat band.

Their eleven-man war canoe crew, skippered by Vincent Harry, won the Bishop Hill Memorial trophy. The award was presented by Bishop Remi De Roo.

Malahat crewmen also won the singles, doubles and six-man races.

One of the big attractions was Chief Hummingbird and his dancers. They performed the intricate, hoop dance, the rabbit and sun dances.

The chief also staged the snake dance — holding a live snake in his mouth.

Simon Baker of North Vancouver, also thrilled his audience with his rattlesnake dance.

On Saturday, before a large crowed, Molly Daniels, 20-year-old University of Victoria student, was chosen Tsartlip Princess. Faye White of Nanaimo, was selected as her attendant.

Rita Bob was chosen junior princess.

Prior to the festival opening Saturday afternoon, a ceremony at the Central Saanich Municipal Hall dedicated a memorial totem pole to Chief Thunderbird — Jean Baptiste Paul — a famous wrestler and sportsman, who died in 1966.

DEDICATION

Officiating at the ceremony were Mayor Archibald Galbraith and Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip reserve.

About 400 people attended the ceremony and watched a group of dancers evoke the spirit of Chief Thunderbird.

"They transferred the power of Thunderbird to both Indian and whites," Chief Paul explained.

BEAUTY IN FEATHERS and traditional dress is Molly Daniels, this year's Tsartlip Princess. She was picked to reign over two days of dancing, sports and festivities at Brentwood on the weekend. A large crowd of Indians and non-Indians applauded the choice.

Israeli Jets Bomb Canal, Bases on Mount Hermon

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli jets pounded Arab guerrilla concentrations in the foothills of Mount Hermon in Lebanon today, the army announced.

The 30-minute attack followed a spate of 21 sabotage incidents in July linked to guerrillas encamped in Lebanon, a spokesman said.

The warplanes struck at seven camps, believed to belong to the Al Fatah and Al Saika guerrilla organizations, he said.

It was Israel's second air attack on Lebanese territory in two weeks. Israeli jets hit Arab bases in the same area July 30.

The planes hit camps in southeastern Lebanon, east of the Hasbani River, the spokesman said.

The strike followed an air attack inside Jordan on its Ghor irrigational canal Sunday. But that attack did not deter Arab commandos from opening fire today on an Israeli border patrol in the Beisan Valley.

The Egyptian military command broadcast a communique saying Israeli and Egyptian forces exchanged heavy artillery fire for three hours today along the Suez canal ceasefire line, which has been relatively quiet lately.

"The Israeli positions were successfully silenced," the communique said.

RETURN SAFELY

An Israeli Army spokesman said all the Israeli aircraft returned safely from the Mount Hermon raid.

Israel contends that 400 or 500 guerrillas have been based in the Mount Hermon area since 1968.

Lebanese sources reported heavy outbreaks of fighting last May between Lebanese troops and Arab irregulars near the mountain village of Hasbaya in the same region. The Lebanese said more than 2,000 Syrian-backed guerrillas held the village under virtual siege.

Fearful of Israeli reprisals—such as the air commando attack on Beirut's international airport last December—the Lebanese have tried to contain the Arab guerrillas within a triangle in the foothills of Mount Hermon, informants say.

The Israeli air attack on the Ghor canal, 40 miles long, threatens Jordan's fruit plantations and crops along the east bank of the Jordan River.

Water was reported gushing back into the Yarmuk River and the southern extension of the Ghor canal was said to be completely dry.

An Israeli foreign ministry spokesman said the Israeli air strike on the canal followed Jordan's failure to honor its undertaking of some six weeks ago to clamp down on guerrilla attacks waged on Israel from Jordanian territory.

FIGHTING INCREASED

In what amounts to a major escalation on the eastern front, however, 38 incidents have been reported by the Israeli Army within the first 10 days of August.

The most serious incident was the blowing up of a bus in which two Israelis were killed and 12 injured.

The attack on the Israeli patrol this morning was another incident.

The patrol returned the fire but casualties were not reported.

Jordan claimed that its anti-aircraft guns brought down three Israeli planes in the canal attack but Israel said all planes returned safely.

The foreign ministry's statement was the first official confirmation that Israel and Jordan had reached a gentleman's agreement to stop fighting in the Jordan and Beisan valleys so that the Jordanians could repair the irrigation canal.

CONSENT ASKED

A communique said that after Israeli commandos damaged the canal last June 23, "the Jordanians asked for Israeli consent to repair the Ghor canal so as not to make life difficult for the farmers in the Jordan Valley.

"Jordan undertook to control sabotage from her territory against Israel and to stop the Jordanian Army from firing at Israel. On the basis of this understanding, Israel consented to the repairs."

Oak Bay Election Corner

Dr. G. Scott Wallace

As mentioned yesterday most patients occupy an expensive acute bed for the whole of their hospital stay, even although during the second half of their illness they usually do not require all the facilities and services associated with that acute bed. They are not well enough to go home, but not ill enough to require an expensive acute bed. Their needs can be met efficiently and adequately by providing post-acute beds which can be built much faster, at less cost to construct and operate than acute beds. Of necessity they must be close to the acute beds for the immediate return there of the small minority of patients who develop complications. In such a post-acute ward, the patient is ambulant and in many ways self-sufficient. Certainly he is well able to obtain his meals from the nearby cafeteria, a practice which both enhances his progress by letting him realize he is truly on the mend, and also reduces labour costs which would otherwise arise in serving meals at the bedside. At present when I see ambulant patients, seated beside acute beds, being dutifully served their meals by nurses, I conclude we are operating hotels with a very high class quality room service rather than hospitals for acutely ill patients. More of this tomorrow.

FISHING FLEET SAIL

Netters Sign Pact

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's 4,000 salmon net fishermen Saturday approved a range of price offers from companies by a vote of 80.7 per cent.

The prices, averaging an increase of two cents a pound for all varieties of fish, were offered in a two-year contract Thursday by the Fisheries Association of B.C.

* * *

Net fishing season opens in some areas tonight while other areas are opening Monday or Tuesday.

The United Fishermen and Allied Worker's Union said all salmon seine and gillnet fishermen could sail for their fishing grounds. The union earlier had threatened a strike.

* * *

Conservation regulations of the federal department of fisheries will prevent salmon fishing in some areas for another one to four weeks.

Prices for sockeye salmon increase two cents from last year's 37½ cents a pound; coho increase two cents to 30, pink is up two cents to 14 cents and the price of chum is up 2½ cents to 15 cents.

Court Must Rule On Mary Jo Autopsy

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP)—District Attorney Edmund Dinis says he will ask this week for exhumation of the body of Mary Jo Kopechne in order that an autopsy can be performed.

Dinis' request to authorities in Pennsylvania, where Miss Kopechne is buried, will require a court ruling.

Miss Kopechne, 28, was drowned July 18 when a car driven by Senator Edward M. Kennedy went off a bridge and plunged into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island off Martha's Vineyard.

Kennedy, who did not report the accident until several hours after it happened, pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and received a suspended sentence of two months in jail.

Dinis later ordered an inquest into Miss Kopechne's death.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopechne, the dead girl's parents, have been opposed to exhumation of her body.

Dinis said Sunday he had not spoken with the couple about the inquest and possible autopsy.

Student Expelled

MOSCOW (AP) — An American student who drew a moustache on a poster of Lenin was expelled from the Soviet Union on Saturday on charges of "political hooliganism," informed sources reported.

Lone Death

TRAIL (CP) — David William Soppit, 17, of nearby Fruitvale, was killed Saturday in a traffic accident — the only accidental death reported in British Columbia during the weekend. He died after a car hit a telephone pole. Four other youths were injured. His was the only death, counted in a survey from 6 p.m. PDT Friday to midnight Sunday.

HEADED FOR DOCTORATE

UNCLE Man Turns Scholar

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The title of the PhD dissertation: Historical Study of the Influence of the House Committee on Un-American Activities on the American Theatre 1938-1958."

The candidate for doctor of philosophy: Robert Vaughn.

Offbeat casting, indeed. This is the same Vaughn who zapped enemy agents as The Man from UNCLE; the shady politco who bugged Steve McQueen in Bullitt. He is in real life a scholar, and if his studies continue on schedule, he can be addressed as Dr. Vaughn after next January's commencement at the University of Southern California.

"I have finished four chapters of my dissertation and have four more to go," the actor reports. "I should be able to finish by November—provided another picture doesn't come up. I hope one doesn't, because I'd like to finish up. This academic Sword of Damocles has been hanging over my head long enough."

VAUGHN

Vaughn's higher learning began at the University of Minnesota, where he spent his freshman year in 1951-52. He moved here and continued studying at Los Angeles City College and Los Angeles State, now called California State at Los Angeles, from which he received his BA in 1956. During this time his acting career was blossoming, and he had less time for studies.

But he persisted, and in 1960 earned his master's degree in theatre arts at Cal State. In 1964, he enrolled in USC communications department to begin work toward a PhD.

His dissertation almost met with disaster.

"I took all of my research with me to Czechoslovakia last year while I was making The Bridge at Remagen," he related. "When the Russians invaded, the film company had to get out in a hurry. I left all of my material behind. Fortunately, all of it was shipped back to me."

He began his work all over again last November and started writing the dissertation in London while filming The Mind of Mr. Soames and Julius Caesar.

How did he choose his subject?

"There was no special situation that caused it," he said. "It grew quite naturally out of my academic background in mass communications, together with my interest in politics."

The dissertation covers a stormy period in the American theatre, when politicos attacked noted state figures as being Red or pinkish. Vaughn, who has been active in liberal causes, said he has approached the subject with no point of view and will draw no conclusions from material he presents.

"One thing I have discovered so far," he remarked, "was that the committee as a whole was much fairer in its questioning of witnesses than I had surmised. The committee may have caused certain terrors, but its procedures appear to have been legal."

MOTORIZED MISTAKES DRAW OWNERS TOGETHER

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Remember the Edsel? "An Oldsmobile sucking a lemon?" "The car built for Harold Stassen's Inaugural?"

Ford Motor Co. fathered almost as many bad jokes as cars during 1958-60, when it turned loose 110,000 Edsels and a modern American legend.

But since the expensive mistake went out of production, the Edsel has become a collectors item. Fifty Edsel owners gathered here Sunday to compare specimens, now worth $2,000 to $4,000 each.

"When you got something you can't even give away, you gotta keep it," said a philosophical Lloyd Proctor, who bought his 1959 model new.

"One man's lemon is another man's hobby," shrugged club president Jean Leonard.

Everett Wirgau of Lansing, Mich., who owns four of them, stoutly proclaimed, "it's a beautiful car, it's different and it's value increases every year. Sure, I get razzed a lot. But I feel as if I belong in it."

Ty Triplett, 15, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., won second place in the best-condition competition with his 1958 black Citation, which he isn't old enough to drive. "It's like a brother to me," he said.

Steve Poggenpohl hauled his beige 1960 Sahara Ranger all the way from Iowa on a trailer.

"It's a privilege to own an Edsel," he said, "especially the 1960 model. They never really had a chance.

"Maybe what binds all us Edsel owners together is we feel sorry for the car," Poggenpohl added.

Balloon Adds To Pop Show

MONTREAL (UPI) — The crowd of more than 30,000, jammed shoulder to shoulder in the Place des Nations Amphitheatre of Man and his World Saturday, was told to expect an unusual entrance by French-Canadian pop singer Robert Charlebois.

There were a lot of craned necks when the master of ceremonies suggested the audience keep an eye on the sky. Would he arrive by helicopter?

No. A giant black plastic balloon started to puff up from behind the stage. The music throbbed louder. The balloon turned into a huge figure, with a head shaped like a soccer ball, in the form of a mod wearing bell bottom trousers.

With all eyes turned up toward the figure, Charlebois suddenly appeared from between the 30-foot balloon's legs to provide his usual pop spectacle, in skin tight gold lame suite with foot-long fringes on the arms and legs.

All Candidates To Speak Tonight

LAKE COWICHAN — A Cowichan-Malahat all-Candidates meeting, sponsored by local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America, will be held at 8 tonight in Centennial Hall.

Expected to attend are Robert Strachan, NDP member in the last legislature; Dr. Charles Ennals, Social Credit, an dKenneth Hasanen, Independent.

No Liberal has filed nomination papers as yet but a nomination meeting will be held at Recreation Centre in Duncan at 8 p.m. Tuesday, a spokesman for the party said today.

Bombs, Bottles Fly As Concert Erupts

SEATTLE (AP) — A pop music concert at a beach resort Sunday night erupted into a disturbance in which gasoline bombs, rocks, beer bottles and tear gas grenades were hurled.

A police car responding to a complaint that windows were being broken across the street from the rock 'n' roll festival was hit by a pop bottle filled with gasoline and set afire, police reported.

Soon a crowd of several thousand persons had gathered.

Police cars were smoke-bombed and rockets and bottles were thrown at riot-helmeted policemen. Streets were littered with rocks and broken glass. Many private automobiles were hit by stones.

Police used tear gas to disperse the crowd.

At least two persons were injured.

Tahsis Scout Represents B.C. At Jamboree

TAHSIS — Tahsis boy scout Paul Taylor will be British Columbia's sole representative at an international Boy Scout Jamboree in Guyana Aug. 13 to 28.

Paul, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Taylor, is one of 25 Canadian scouts chosen.

"It will be a wonderful experience for him," said Mrs. Taylor. "It's costing quite a bit of money but it is worth it."

Paul will fly from Tahsis to Vancouver courtesy of B.C. Airlines. The trip from there to Guyana is being paid for by the Taylors.

Way Out West ... In Duncan

DUNCAN—The second annual Bonanza Daze began in downtown Duncan today with an Old West theme.

Participating merchants have decorated their store fronts with slab material and clerks are wearing frontier garb. Several downtown streets will be closed Thursday when kiddie rides and entertainment will be staged.

Prizes are being offered for the best old-time and western garb worn by visitors to the week-long event.

Federal and provincial New Democratic Party leaders, Tommy Douglas and Tom Berger, will visit the NDP election booth where candidate Bob Strachan will answer voters' questions.

Not to be outdone, Social Credit candidate Dr. Charles Ennals said a greeting will be offered to Mayor Jim Quaife from Premier Bennett by a horse rider.

No Otters Dead In B.C. Waters

Twenty-nine sea otters released released July 31 at Kyoquot Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island are alive and well, a spokesman for the British Columbia Fish and Wildlife Branch said.

Frequent patrols by the branch have failed to find any dead otters, he said, although 14 of 29 otters released at Hoquiam, Wash., have died since they were transported from Amchitka Island in Alaska.

B.C.'s coastline is better suited to the otters than that in the sandy Hoquiam area, the spokesman said, with rocks creating resting places for them.

"It makes it harder for us to observe the otters, but the conditions are better for the otters that way," he said.

Meanwhile, five otters being kept at the Point Defiance Aquarium near Tacoma, Wash., are reported doing well.

They are receiving special attention from aquarium director Cecil Brousseau.

Ladder Derby Slowed By Whales

COWICHAN BAY—The appearance of killer whales in the bay last week is blamed for the small number of fish caught during the fourth week of the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club ladder derby.

Seven-year-old Jody Williams of Cowichan Station continued to head the ladder at the week's end. His 33-pound, 12-ounce spring salmon topped the 32 pound, five-ouncer caught by his mother, Mrs. Edith Williams, the week the derby opened July 13.

Third spot is held by S. A. Gillis of Cowichan Bay who landed a 31 pound, 12-ounce salmon. In fourth spot is Bernie Longpre of Victoria who caught a 29-pound, eight-ounce spring.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, AUGUST 11, 1969 —PAGE 19

Stiff Ban on Outdoor Burning Follows Rash of Weekend Fires

A ban on outside burning in Victoria and Saanich started today, and will probably continue until the next heavy rainfall.

The move will hit outdoor incinerators and contractors burning rubble.

Both fire departments said the action was necessary because of tinder-dry conditions. There were six grass fires in the city on the weekend and three in Saanich.

Esquimalt is taking no action and Oak Bay will permit use of incinerators but not open fires.

The weather office reported this morning no heavy rain is expected in the near future.

However, some showers are expected Tuesday evening as a storm system works down the B.C. coast. Prince Rupert has had five inches of rain in the last four days.

City fire chief Eric Simmons said he is not blaming incinerators for weekend fires, but "everything is so dry it is explosive."

Under a city bylaw, no one may start any fire without the permission of the chief. What existing permits allow to be done is cancelled until weather brings some rain, said Simmons.

Penalty for lighting an outside fire in the city is a fine of up to $100.

In Saanich, deputy fire chief Glen Robbins said he presumed the ban will last at least a week.

"The dry conditions are a real hazard," he said.

First offenders in Saanich will be asked to extinguish fires. More drastic action would be taken on a further offence. Asked what provision exists for fines, he said "ours is about the same" as Victoria's.

The move means contractors will have to haul rubble away from buildings and householders will either have to store burnable material or put it into their garbage.

Many householders make a habit of separating their garbage into material which burns and that which doesn't.

A city spokesman said householders may have as many regulation-size garbarge cans as they wish, but only one small can is picked up. Regulation-size cans measure 18 inches across the top and bottom, and 24 inches deep inside the can.

In Saanich, the collection is two cans. The city and Saanich make pickups weekly.

The two major weekend fires burned about four acres of grass in Saanich and heavily damaged two houses on Davie Street.

Saanich fire department spent more than nine hours extinguishing a fire which started near Marigold School at noon Saturday.

●

Abcut $200 damage was done to a house at 236 Acorn and $150 to a canvas-roofed trailer in front of 220 Acorn.

The fire is believed to have been set, possibly by children. Some handbills that may have set off the blaze are in the possession of the police.

Children playing with matches are suspected in the other fire, which broke out about 1 a.m. Sunday in a garage at 1905 Davie.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said a neighbor spotted smoke and turned in an alarm when the garage exploded into flames.

The fire quickly spread to another garage at 1919 Davie and then to the two homes, both duplexes.

Flying sparks caused some concern, said Deputy Coates since conditions were dry.

Property at 1905 Davie is owned by George Lauzon, 2128 Foul Bay Rd.

Fire officials estimated damage there at $6,000 and $3,000 at 1919 Davie, owned by Fred Sherbrook. Both carried insurance and no one was injured.

●

A large crowd gathered to watch the fires. Firemen spent 2½ hours at the scene.

The Saanich grass fire was in an area bordered by Acorn, Grange, Burnside and the Trans Canada Highway and spread through grass, brush and trees.

"It was a very difficult fire to fight," Deputy Chief Glen Robbins said.

"Both of the closest hydrants were on Burnside Road."

Owner of the premises at 236 Acorn, James Frost, was away on holidays. An outside wall was scorched and the roof burned.

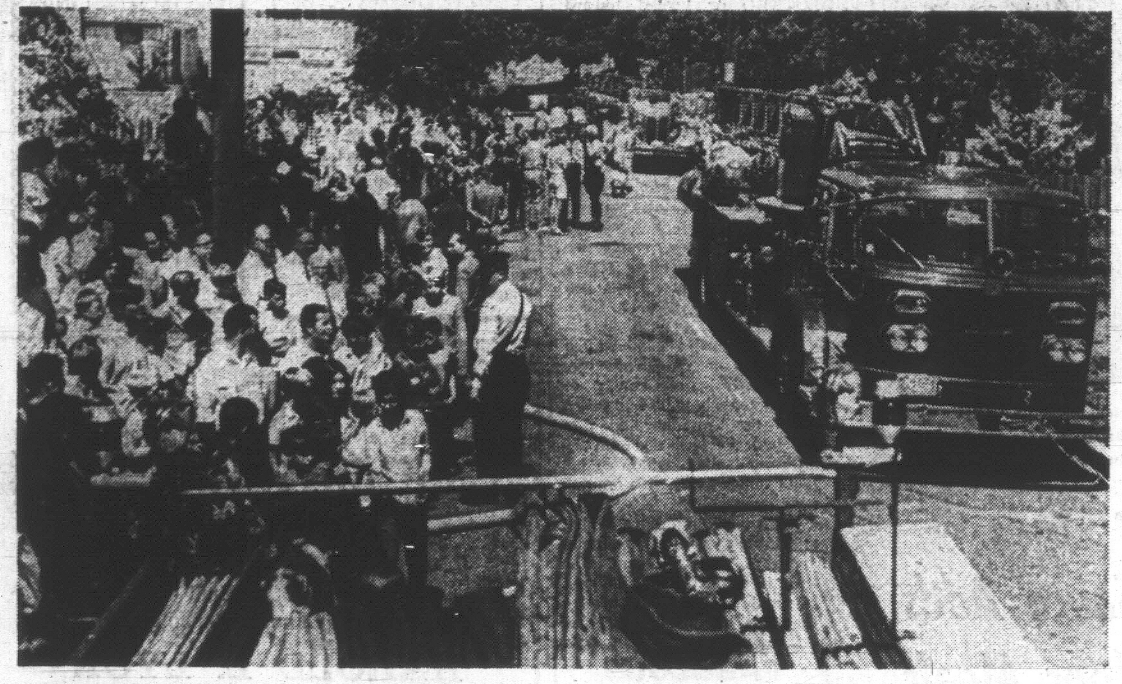
Sparks from the grass fire ignited a trailer and the fire raced through the grass and up the wall of Frost's house.

In another city fire, about $700 damage was done to a Sea Cadet Hall on Robert Street.

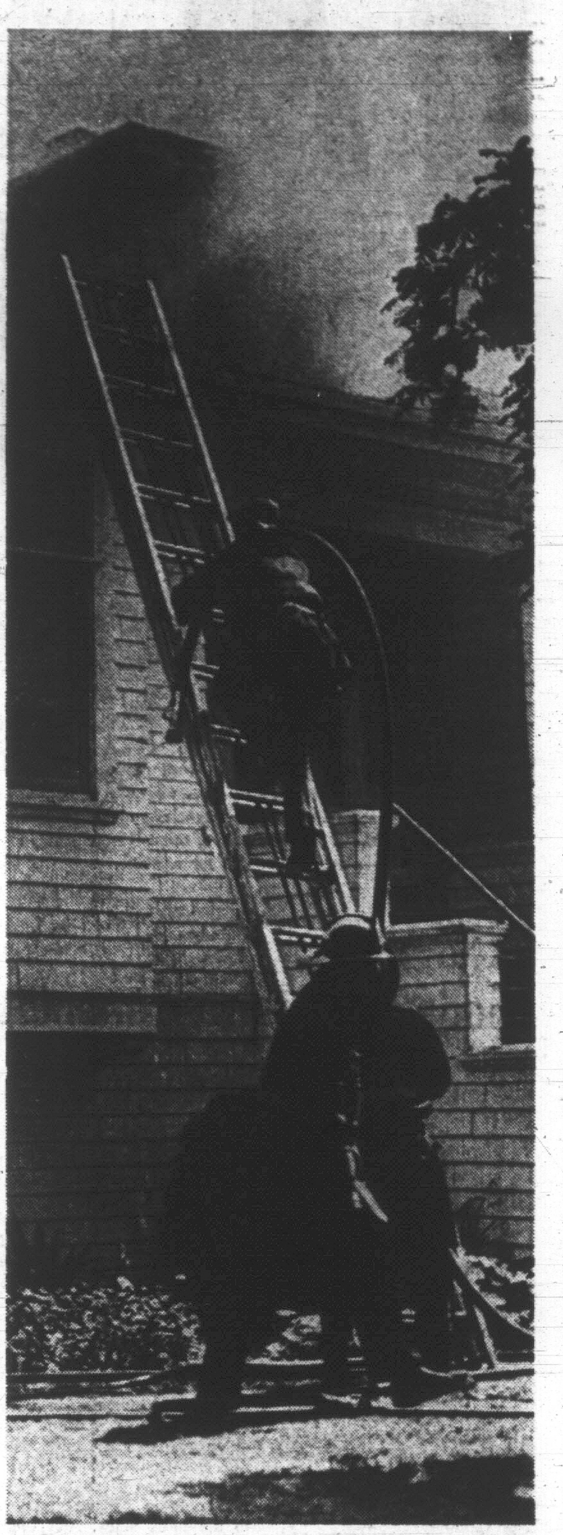
The fire started in grass at the foot of the street about 3 p.m. Saturday and sparks ignited the roof of the hall, an old army hut building.

There was extensive damage to the roof and attic of the building.

The hall, owned by the Navy League of Canada is insured. Band instruments inside were not damaged.



POLICE HOLD BACK the curious who turned out Sunday afternoon to watch firemen put out blaze that damaged two houses and garages on Davie Street. No one was injured in the blaze, which is believed to have been started by children playing with matches in one of the garages.



BILLOWING SMOKE from second-storey window at Davie Street fire is target for city firemen carrying hose up ladder. Neighbors and firemen worried during the Sunday blaze as flying sparks threatened to get out of control.

NDP Gremlins Nibble Liberal Literature

The gloves aren't completely off yet but supporters of the three political parties in Victoria riding are doing some preliminary sparring.

Somebody wrote "Vote NDP" in grease pencil on the back of campaign literature sent out Friday by Liberal candidates Ian Stewart and Mel Couvelier.

"You have to have a sense of humor," said Stewart, a Victoria alderman, after receiving numerous calls on the weekend regarding the alteration to his campaign literature.

GOOD REACTION

"Actually the reaction was good."

Stewart said he did not know to what extent the campaign literature was altered and added he did not blame it on any other party.

"A lot of work went into that literature," he said. "But people can't always control what their employees do."

The Liberal literature was distributed by The Victoria Shopper. Stewart said he brought the incident to the company's attention and plans no further action.

The election campaign has not really warmed up, he said.

"It could become hard-hitting before it's through."

"But in Victoria riding we don't have a tradition of burning down each other's campaign headquarters."

The moral approach to polities by the Social Credit government has to be questioned, said Stewart.

Stewart said the Socred with a full war chest had prepared election propaganda in advance of other parties, taking advantage of a secret election call.

"Look at all those pollution ads they are running with the people's money," he said.

BOOKED UP

Stewart said the Socreds have booked radio advertising to the point where the Liberals could not get any spots on some days.

"That's ridiculous," said Reginald Pring, campaign manager for cabinet ministers W. N. Chant and Waldo Skillings.

"We haven't got nearly enough advertising, ourselves," he said.

NDP candidate in Victoria Peter Bunn has stepped up the attack against the Socred incumbents.

He said Skillings, a former teacher, made his greatest contribution to education "when he quit being a teacher."

Bunn, former chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, was criticizing Skillings for his remarks on education.

APPEAL WRONG

Skillings last week said the B.C. Teachers' Federation should not have made a public appeal for more school funds.

"Teachers are hired to teach — not set policy," he said.

"This was a reprehensible attack," said Bunn.

He said the teachers were attempting to alert the public about educational shortcomings caused by past actions of the government.

With a 1 p.m. Wednesday deadline for filing nomination papers, area returning officers report many candidates have still to officially enter their names.

In Victoria, NDP candidates Bunn and Phil Fawcett, and Socreds Chant and Skillings have filed.

Allan Cox was the lone candidate in Oak Bay to have filed this morning with Socred Dr. F. Scott Wallace and NDP Jack McKenzie expected to file today.

Liberal Louis Lindholm has filed in Saanich and the Islands, with NDP candidate Don Johannessen scheduled to go to the returning office today. Socred John Tisdalle is also expected to hand in nomination papers today.

Taxi operator James Gorst, the NDP candidate, is the only official candidate in Esquimalt riding. Liberal Fred Phillips and Socred Herb Bruch, deputy-speaker in the last legislature are the other candidates.

MEETING TUESDAY

In Cowichan-Malahat riding NDP candidate and former leader Robert Strachan has filed. Socred Dr. Charles Ennals and Independent Kenneth Hasanen have yet to file.

The Liberals choose a candidate for Cowichan-Malahat Tuesday.

While there are no declared candidates, James Bigsby, 26, a former University of Victoria student council member, is expected to seek the nomination.

PRING

INDIAN AUTHOR George Clutesi of Port Alberni, will make a 17-day publicity tour of Saskatchewan and Ottawa for the federal Indian affairs department. The department has arranged the tour "because of the cultural contribution that Mr. Clutesi has made," said an official. He leaves Thursday. Two of Clutesi's books are Son of Raven, Son of Deer and Potlatch, both published by Gray's Publishing Limited of Sidney.

Public's View On Duplexes Heard Tonight

Tougher regulations for duplexes in Saanich will go before a public hearing tonight at 7:30 in the council chamber.

Anyone affected by the proposals will be able to speak.

Duplexes would be prohibited in many areas of the municipality, principally in the north, central and western areas plus part of Gordon Head and the Blenkinsop Valley.

They would be permitted on lots with 100-foot frontage and 10,000 square foot area in a smaller area — Cordova Bay, just north of Portage Inlet, east of Swan Lake and south to the city boundary, parts of North Quadra, Royal Oak and Gordon Head.

The inner urban core, including the Gorge and the area north of the Saanich Panhandle, would be unchanged.

Also to be considered at the public hearing is a rezoning application to permit St. Margaret's School for Girls to be built near Blenkinsop Lake, with a sewer connection to the secondary treatment plant in the municipal yard off McKenzie Avenue.

Ask the Times

Q. Where does the expression "Show a leg" come from?

A. The expression dates back to the days when women were carried aboard old Royal Navy vessels. In order to distinguish whether it was a male or female in the bunk they were passing, members of the duty watch would call out the expression.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Director Appointed For Mental Hospital

A director has finally been appointed for the still-empty Eric Martin Institute, but there is no indication yet when the 170-bed mental hospital will open to patients.

Cliff A. Brown, formerly executive assistant to Royal Jubilee Hospital executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles, has been appointed assistant director of the hospital, in charge of the Eric Martin Istitute.

Brown, who joined the hospital staff in January, 1968, after a long medical career with the navy, will report directly to Dr. Pickles in the new position.

Appointment of a director was thought to be the last step needed before the new centre opened, but Brown said he still could give no indication when patients would be accepted.

"We haven't set firm dates yet," he said. "but we are in the process of establishing target dates."

"It will be done in stages. But we don't like to say when at this point — it would only be misleading. There are many factors being worked on before this can be decided on."

'BEYOND OUR CONTROL'

Brown declined to say what these factors are.

"There are factors beyond our control that have to be resolved — I don't want to discuss them at this time."

Although construction on the six-storey, $6 million hospital was finished in February, and the provincial government officially took charge on April 14, it has stood empty.

Royal Jubilee Hopsital will take over occupancy of the Institute Sept. 1 under an agreement announced late in July, which gives the Jubilee a 10-year renewable lease from the provincial government at $1 a year.

Under the lease, the Jubilee will be responsible for staffing and maintaining the institute.

However, it was announced months ago only 120 of the institute's 170 beds were to be used for mental care, because the federal government said it would not share in the cost of the full number.

Federal policy is to support psychiatric beds only up to 15 per cent of the total number of beds of the hospital.

Meanwhile, staff has still to be hired for the centre, and furniture and equipment is still being delivered and installed now.

BROWN

WHO ADMINISTERS THEM?

Conflict Looms Over Area Colleges

Greater Victoria school board and the provincial department of education could come into conflict this fall over administration of vocational and regional colleges in school district 61.

Education minister Donald Brothers and the school board have both indicated they favor amalgamation of existing college and vocational facilities under one administration.

The question in Victoria is whether the school board or the education department will administer the new set up.

Brothers, interviewed in Trail today, said amalgamations are possible in Victoria, Prince George, Kamloops and Nanaimo.

STUDIED

Three departmental subcommittees studying the feasibility of amalgamation are due to report sometime in October, Brothers said.

The school board, meanwhile, has applied to the government for permission to hold a plebiscite—a non-money vote—to get ratepayer support to elevate the Institute of Adult Studies to the status of a district college.

At its June meeting the board was told Brothers was studying their request.

Sunday it was reported the board had taken another step on the question.

A study by Jack Dalgleish, director of adult education for the district, listed advantages and disadvantages of combining the district college and the vocational school now under construction on Interurban Road.

IN FAVOR

"The report is overwhelmingly in favor of a combined school," said school board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson.

The board will use the study as backup material when they meet later this year with Brothers or members of his study group.

District superintendent Jack Longmore said today a conflict between board and government is possible. But so is compromise.

"The board has said 'we are interested in the possibilities of amalgamation,' and the department has said 'we're already doing a study,' and so the board is ready to look for areas of compromise."

SHARING

He said compromise could mean shared financial responsibility in the vocational-college area, with a single administration.

Brothers denied there was any conflict of interest between the board and the government.

"I'd like to see the school board's study," he said.

But he also said, "I don't see how they could administer voactional schools, since they come under our jurisdiction."

He said the main question at this stage is not who will administer the schools, but whether amalgamation is feasible.

Longmore said government reluctance to hand over vocational and college responsibilities to the district could be based on unwillingness to "put someone else in the picture as concerns federal-provincial estimates of financial needs in education."

Controversial 'Booth' Gets More Discussion

Saanich school board will hold a special meeting at 8 tonight to clarify use of a "time-out booth" in a research program for emotionally disturbed children at McTavish Elementary.

The board has approved the $16,000 program to be directed by Dr. Phillip Ney, a child psychiatrist. But the booth, designed to isolate a child who attacks the teacher or other children, was a subject of heated discussion at the board's July 28 meeting.

Dr. Ney has said the booth probably wouldn't be used more than two or three times a month. Estimated cost of construction is $250.

A menagerie of three dimensional wall plaques can be custom-made in the kitchen, using a formula of baking soda and corn starch. Children might not make as neat a collection as those pictured above, but it could provide something to keep them occupied for a while.

•

Soda-Cornstarch Formula Basis for Menagerie

These instructions from a baking powder firm were originally intended for women in need of a do-it-yourself gift for a baby shower.

But they might also serve for an end-of-summer project when every other project known to mothers of children on holiday has already been tried.

The recipe is simple and cheap, but could be messy. So add to the two basic ingredients, baking soda and corn starch, a stack of old newspapers to cover the working surface. There must be enough worn out jeans and shrunken tee shirts around by now so that paint on clothes won't matter.

Combine thoroughly in a saucepan 2 cups baking soda (1 1-pound package) and 1 cup corn starch. Add 1¼ cups cold water. Stir until smooth. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Cook a minute longer or until mixture resembles MOIST mashed potatoes.

Transfer to a plate, cover with a damp towel, and when cool enough to handle, knead. Store all but a handful of clay in a closed pliofilm bag until ready to use.

Roll out clay on waxed paper to ¼ inch thickness. Cut out animals or fish with cookie cutters; or cut pictures from magazines. Place on clay, and with sharp knife cut around pattern.

Finished pieces go on wire rack in a warm (350°) turned-off oven for a half hour or until animals have dried and hardened.

Paint in lively colors using water colors or tempera; dip each animal in clear shellac for a ceramic-like finish.

Now that your animals are finished, cut a heavy cardboard carton into 6 or 7-inch squares, or 6x12x24-inch strips, depending on your intended designs. Paint the cardboard in sunny colors and then mount animals with white glue.

Instead of investing in store-bought frames, outline the outer edges of the cardboard with contrasting colored paint or with strips or narrow tape. Add glue-on picture hangers to the back sides. And there you have it . . . a merry menagerie, all framed and ready to liven a wall.

KNIT AND CHAT By MAY MAC LEAN

Wartime Pattern Book Wanted

Last week I received a call for help from one of my reader's who reads my column every week. Here is her letter. Dear May, I enjoy reading your column every week and see where you help others in what they cannot find themselves. I guess my problem might be a hard one. I am looking for a Red Cross yellow knitting book from World War Two. It's small and yellow with a Red Cross Nurse on the cover. Inside it has a pattern for ladies knickers made in very easy garter-stitch. I cannot seem to find one anywhere, it was a wonderful little book. I knitted a pair and now they are completely worn out and I would like to knit another pair. I do hope that one of your reader's will have a copy that they can either give or lend to me. Thank you for your help.—Mrs. E. T. Coehenour, Ontario.

If any reader can help, I would be happy to forward either the book or the full address.

Many of you will be on vacation during August and I hope you have not forgotten to take along some knitting or crochet work, I know that the thought of complete relaxation with nothing to do is everyone's idea of a complete holiday, but usually after about four or five days, you begin to wish that you had brought something along to do in the evenings.

Take something small along, such as a baby's jacket (you always need these as gifts) or oddments of wool to make doll clothes you never find time for at home. Crocheting doilies is a pleasant summer pastime, and so is working on a piece of needlepoint.

I myself will be in Europe for three weeks (my friend Lynne will be sending the patterns out for me), and I plan to take with me a pattern using a double knitting weight of wool, which knits up quickly. And you know how often you are asked for items for the sale of work table at bazaars.

If you have been planning to knit yourself a cardigan, this week's design will interest you. There is a choice of two lengths, two neck styles and two sleeve lengths in each of the six sizes, from a size 32 through to a size 42. Made from a double knitting weight of yarn, this is a good basic raglan style cardigan that can be trimmed in a variety of ways. Embroidery would look good on the plain stocking-stitch, or the sew-on beaded motifs.

To order Leaflet No. 6833, send 35c in coin or money order, (no stamps or personal cheques please). Your order must be accompanied with a stamped self-addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Send to: May E. Mac Lean, Knit and Chat, c/o The Times. Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering.

This cardigan comes in two lengths with a choice of neck styles and sleeve lengths. The basic style can be trimmed with embroidery or sew-on beaded motifs.

Home-Made Barbecue Sauce Adds Special Flavor for Outdoor Meals

The heart of any good barbecue is the sauce . . . and the majority of outdoor chefs who know this say it should have outdoor freshness and aroma. Here is just such a recipe that more than meets these prerequisites. Look to Western Way Barbecue Sauce, combining fresh lemon juice and peel, onion, smoke, soy and tomato flavours, to bring out the very best in steaks, hamburgers, hot dogs, as well as chicken.

WESTERN WAY BARBECUE SAUCE

(¾ cup)

Half teaspoon freshly grated lemon peel, 2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice, 1 teaspoon instant minced onions, ½ cup water, ½ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon salad oil, 2 teaspoons soy sauce, ¼ teaspoon smoke salt.

Combine lemon peel and juice and instant onions; let stand 5 minutes. Combine with remaining ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil, then simmer about 10 minutes until flavors are blended and mixture is reduced to ¾ cup. Brush on steaks, hamburgers or hot dogs 1 to 2 minutes before meat is done. Also delicious on barbecued chicken; baste several times during last 20 to 30 minutes of cooking time.

Pork as well as beef has become a popular barbecue dish. Here is a recipe for apricot honey cottage roll.

Glazes give meat a frosted shiny look and a delicious flavor. They usually contain sugar in some form and so in order to prevent burning, brush on during last 15 to 20 minutes.

GLAZED COTTAGE ROLL

One ⅔ pound ready-to-serve cottage roll; 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar; ½ cup honey; ¼ cup apricot nectar.

Balance cottage roll on spit. Place drip pan under meat to catch drippings. Allow about 30 minutes per pound or until meat thermometer registers 130 degrees F.

While cottage roll is heating, mix together brown sugar, honey and apricot nectar. Heat in saucepan and stir until sugar dissolves. Brush glaze on meat during last 15-20 minutes of cooking.

A sweet pickled cottage roll may be substituted but should be cooked beforehand according to package instructions. This may be done beforehand and then reheated as above.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Potential Coffins

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: They say, "If you want to get the word around, tell a woman." I agree, especially if that woman is Dear Abby.

Yesterday our four-year-old son disappeared suddenly. One minute he was beside me in the kitchen, and the next minute he was gone. I nearly went crazy looking for him in the yard, in and out of the neighbour's houses, searching frantically with tears in my eyes and a lump in my throat.

Finally, just before sundown I was nearly exhausted and hysterical when a neighbour spotted an old refrigerator stored in the corner of our garage. He opened the door and out tumbled my son! He was blue and practically lifeless, but with the help of a quick-thinking neighbour and the fire department, the boy was revived, and thank God, now he is all right.

Abby, please tell parents to keep discarded refrigerators LOCKED or turned toward the wall so kids can't open them. If anything had happened to that child I'd never have forgiven myself. — Foolish But Lucky.

DEAR FOOLISH BUT LUCKY: (And you certainly were!) I'll run your letter at the top of my column with the suggestion that all parents REMOVE the doors from stored ice boxes, refrigerators, cabinets or other potential "coffins" for curious and adventuresome children.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday a neighbour of mine came over here with a collection of candid snapshots he had taken over the months. I was shocked to see one of my husband—sound asleep in his lawn chair with his mouth wide open.

It's a terrible picture, Abby, and I don't see anything funny about it, but everyone who sees it thinks it is hilarious. My husband had no knowledge that his picture was being taken since he was sleeping at the time.

Don't you think this neighbour should surrender the picture and the negative to us? My husband is a lawyer. Do you think a letter on his business stationery would do the trick?—Ed's Wife.

DEAR WIFE: It can't hurt.

DEAR ABBY: Some close friends of ours gave a pot luck dinner (meaning each couple brings a different dish for the whole gang, plus their own bottle).

When all the guests (also close friends) were seated to eat, the hostess came around to collect $1.50 from each couple to cover the cost of the roast beef, which was her only contribution to the dinner.

My husband and I were insulted at being charged $1.50 to eat at a friend's home. We paid the $1.50, did not eat, and left early. We were later accused of having bad manners.

Who would you say had the bad manners?—Sun Valley.

DEAR SUN: The hostess. (P.S.: I hope you gave her your beef.)

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

VILLAGE CHILDREN PRESENT A CONCERT IN THE SQUARE

Led by an 11-year-old boy from the United States, 40 children from 10 countries form a circle in Centennial Square Saturday to perform the hokey-pokey, a children's game played in different versions nearly everywhere in the world. The children, who have been attending the International Summer Village at Malvern and Westerham Schools since July 12, presented their hour-long concert of native songs and dances in costumes of their country. The children leave tomorrow to return to their homes. (Photo by Robin Clarke.)

Victoria Guide On Project Team

A Victoria guider, Cathy Oliver, will soon be returning to Victoria after taking part in a new project of the Girl Guides of Canada called Operation Out-Look.

The project, financed by a trust fund, sent six girls from western Canada to Newfoundland, and seven from eastern Canada to the Northwest Territores to work with children in isloated areas.

Cathy, an 18-year-old Gold Cord Guide who is Lieutenant of the 28th Victoria Guide Company, has written her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Oliver, abouth the success of the project.

"We started in Port aux Basques and travelled by coastal steamer to Burgeo, Ramea, Grey River, Francois and St. Albans, staying about four days in each place.

"We worked with children and adults, and taught crafts, folk dancing and singing. The people were all so friendly and glad to see us, they just couldn't do too much for us.

"I read somewhere that Newfoundland's greatest natural resource is its people, and that is certainly the way we found it. I only hope the people living in the outports had as much fun and learned as much as we did in those two weeks."

Cathy and the other guides, chosen as outstanding representatives of the Guide Association, were thoroughly briefed during the past year for the project, "conceived as a service adventure and an opportunity for young adults to assist the youth of their own country."

Their training kits contained records, tapes, slides, books, craft assignments and scrapbooks to familiarize the girls with the areas they were to visit. Purpose of the visit was to spread the skills and knowledge learned in guiding.

Cathy writes that her team encouraged the people in the small outports on the south coast to start youth groups, as there is little for the children to do in these isolated communities.

Later the group went to St. John's where they met Premier Smallwood and the mayor, and took time off for sightseeing. They went on to Gander, Grand Falls and Corner Brook, then returned to Toronto for an evaluation of the project.

Computer Girl Earns More Than She Can Spend

By STEPHANIE ROUMELL

NEW YORK (UPI) — A growing group of working girls, seeking the golden life, are passing up the so-called glamour jobs and taking up with computers.

Ten years ago, only two per cent of the computer programming world was occupied by women. But today the feminine ranks in that field have swelled to 25 per cent. And they still are swelling profoundly.

The reason for this is that a lot of girls have tripped on the real truth about glamour jobs. That golden hue too often turns out to be tin. And though the computer profession sounds, well, dull, it just isn't so.

Some girls, dreaming of stage stardom, literary fame or rubbing elbows with the beautiful people on the publishing and publicity cocktail circuit, wind up instead doing dreary routine typing in an obscure corner of that big slick firm and feeling like Cinderella without a godmother.

But computer girls, if they're good, go smack to the center of a high powered profession that, though forged by men, is most hospitable to women. And the pay is good.

As for the glamour, don't think a computer programmer needs to be a cross between a small town librarian and an old maid school teacher. Take, for instance, Edie Levine who is employed by one of the big Manhattan computing firms. Miss Levine always looks as if she stepped out of a mod boutique and heading for some spinning spot where she will centralize the orbit. She has limpid long-lashed eyes, long straight hair and legs so long her mini skirts look micro.

BRAINY BUTTERFLY

You might peg her as a researcher for a slick magazine, an ad copy writer, an off Broadway actress on her way up, or a production aide in television.

She could be any of these but she's opted for computing and she's making it big that way.

This brainy butterfly is only 26 but already she is a senior systems analyst, which is as far as she aspires to go. Anything higher means executive slots. "Who wants that sort of authority?" she inquires, crinkling her nose.

RESPONSIBILITY

But she does enjoy the kind of responsibility her job provides—one that at once begets respect and self esteem.

She hops over to a client firm that has requested a computer program—a comprehensive plan for getting a certain body of information from its house computer.

Miss Levine figures out where and how to get this information, then draws a flowchart, a kind of map that traces the flow of data from its entry into the computer, the many gyrations within, to the final body of information that will exit. She does a technical write up of this program to be followed by the firm's programmers who will enact the actual project. Then she either stays around and directs the program or returns to her home firm to await a new assignment.

Her job gives plenty of independence coupled with high challenge and it pays a five figure salary which makes a swinging life even in costly Manhattan.

"I really can't spend all I make," she said. "And I assure you, I try." Computer girls after only four years experience make from $18,000 to $25,000, and in some cases a good deal more.

SUNKEN BATHTUB

Miss Levine hasn't eaten a meal in her luxury East Side Manhattan apartment for three years. Date or not, it's a different restaurant each night. She can't recall the last time she scoured her sunken bathtub. There's a maid in each day to do things like that.

In crowded Manhattan where parking space is sparse, Miss Levine keeps her red sports car in her apartment building's garage adding $60 extra to her $300 rent each month. But it's worth it, she said, because she likes to drive to Fire Island on summer weekends where she and one other girl rent a sprawling house each season.

She belongs to the West Side Tennis Club, where Mayor John V. Lindsay plays, and like him she pays $500 a season. She takes night college courses in such things as Pythagorean, Biafran politics, and baroque music, at something like $200 a clip.

"I'm so lucky sometimes I feel guilty," Miss Levine said. "All those girls with wool over their eyes who are wasting away at jobs in chick places but jobs that are so dull."

But the wool is being pulled away from many of these eyes. Edward Opengart, a senior vice president of her firm, said, "There is no other expanding field today that is offering so many challenges and related benefits to woman that computer programming. And many girls have found this out and are flocking."

NO PLACE TO GO

She's been around the world three times on month-long vacations and is quite seriously looking forward to the time that there will be commercial flights to Mars and Venus. "Really, I'm running out of places to go," she said.

He points out that you don't even need a college degree to get into programming. Pass an aptitude test at computer leasing concerns or one of the many large insurance companies and you will be placed in a training program that allows you to learn while you earn about $7,000 a year.

"We need people in this field and we just can't afford to discriminate on the basis of sex," said Opengart.

Aborigines Use Resin For the Pill

DARWIN, Australia (Reuters) — A missionary leader said today aborigines in Australia's northern territory used oral contraceptives thousands of years ago.

Inter-uterine devices, too, were nothing new to the natives, a senior health officer confirmed.

Dr. Percy Peske, director of the Church Missionary Society, said he was told aborigines in the central part of the territory extracted resin from a particular plant.

"They rolled it into pills which were taken by women to prevent conception in times of drought or other hardship," he said.

Dr. W. Langford, Northern Territory director of health, said he had heard similar reports, but added aboriginal women preferred inter-uterine contraceptive devices, which were among traditional methods in use before Europeans came to Australia.

Clubwomen's News

Social Evening — Members of Victoria Purple Star Lodge of the Ladies Orange Benevolent Association held a social evening recently in the Orange Hall. Conveners were Mrs. Betty Lewis and Mrs. Florence Blanco. Among the 40 guests were Mrs. M. Angus and Mrs. L. Reed, L.O.B.A. members from Toronto. It was announced that six new members joined the lodge during the past year, and four new condidates will be initiated in September.

Day Care Researcher Claims Housework Is Old-Fashioned

TORONTO (CP) — Man scowled and scoffed at the sight of the female when she first set foot on his working-world mound in North America.

He was to learn the hard way that he had looked upon the lights of a revolution from the wrong angles.

Now the housewife is hanging up her apron strings and man hastens to say:

"There's no need for a home manager any more.

"It's an old-fashioned method in a computer age."

The quote belongs to Dr. William Fowler, associate professor of applied psychology at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

SOON UNIVERSAL

Dr. Fowler is working with a $47,000 grant to speed up Canada's day-to-day household evacuation and break it into two divisions: mothers reporting for work and children heading for day-care centres.

He says that within 10 years day-care services for children ranging in age from three to five years will be universal, and they'll be just as broad in 20 years for children under three.

"Working mothers, like sex, are here to stay," Dr. Fowler said in an interview.

The housewife is losing dignity and respect because the advent of packaged foods and more appliances has just about put her out of work at home.

Dr. Fowler's research with 34 children at the Canadian Mothercraft Society involves group day care and the reasoning that it offers emotional care that is just as rich as—and sometimes richer than—what a child gets at home.

Dr. Fowler is developing teaching techniques to suit daycare children between the ages of three months and 2½ years.

He is also working on techniques for parental education and still others that would be used to train students for infant day-care work.

He says Canadian high schools and universities should have child-rearing courses for both boys and girls.

The basis for his views and work is that in modern society both parents are apt to have jobs, yet both still nurture he lives of their children.

"It's not like the old-fashioned patriarchal family system where the father was the disciplinarian and the mother gave care and love.

"Today we need to educate the father in child-rearing as well as the mother."

A Harvard graduate in clinical psychology, Dr. Fowler earned a doctor of philosophy degree in child development at the University of Chicago.

Outposts Offer Medical Help

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

A recent item in this newspaper told us that Nova Scotia's Dalhousie University had graduated its first students in a diploma course in outpost nursing. It set me wondering about outpost hospitals established by the Red Cross in our own province, remembering human interest stories I had heard about them.

So, I got in touch with Lillian Hiltz, director of outpost hospitals at Red Cross headquarters in Vancouver.

Now I have a history of the outposts, compiled by her in 1967. It records in careful detail the work that has been done in this way to bring health and nursing services to the lonely places in our province.

The service commenced when the British Columbia division of the Red Cross was first formed in 1919. It started with a public health nursing program for rural areas and annual visits to all lighthouses.

It culminated 10 years later when the division decided to undertake establishment of outpost hospitals and nursing stations where they were most needed.

* * *

First action in this regard was to take over a 14-bed hospital in Pouce Coupe, from the Alberta division. Eight beds were added. Then, in 1935, the Red Cross withdrew, the hospital was taken over by the community and the following year, by the government.

From 1930 to 1965, outpost hospitals were opened and maintained in 18 isolated settlements along the coast and in the interior of the province.

They were established in abandoned sheds, log huts, old houses. In fact, anywhere that renovations could be made and patients adequately cared for.

On Stuart Island, a home built originally as a hide-away vacation spot for a movie star, was acquired. At Edgewood, a two-storey structure erected for an English doctor in 1913 and later used as a hotel, was purchased.

In Terrace, old brigade headquarters was made available through the War Assets Corporation.

The project soon became so popular settlements began sending in requests for hospitals. They matched their words with action by raising funds to help.

Today, seven of these outposts are still active and nurses in charge are conducting clinics, making house and school visits, acting as midwives and caring for hospital patients.

* * *

Each one of the seven has a story that would fill this column many times over. Each one has a history crowded with human interest anecdotes, heroic actions and lonely decisions necessitated by isolation.

It was because of a serious accident in the little community of Kyuquot that a request was made for an outpost back in 1937.

There was a small year-round population of 80 people, including an Indian village, which increased to about 300 during the fishing season.

Transportation was all by water. The nearest doctor and hospital was at Esperanza, some 50 miles away.

The outposet was established on a little island a half-mile offshore. A second-handrowboat was supplied for the two nurses to go to and from the village, in storm or calm.

The doctor at Esperanza made periodic visits but in between, the nurses were in complete charge. They could only consult him in an emergency — if they could get through — by a community radio-phone.

It wasn't until 1963 that a radio-phone was arranged for their exclusive use and the doctor was placed in better contact with them.

Long a feature of outpost service at Bamfield was the routine visit to Pachena Lighthouse.

To get there the nurse either made a 10-mile trek through heavily wooded countryside or she went by water in a rough boat ride through treacherous seas.

In the last part of the trip she transferred to a small boat and then was hoisted in a canvas basket 160 feet up the cliff to the lighthouse.

History has recently been rewritten for the Edgewood outpost on the shore of Lower Arrow Lake.

The old building, once a doctor's home, then a hotel and finally, in 1947, opened as a place for the sick, was flooded by rising waters from the High Arrow Dam now renamed The Hugh Keenlyside Dam) near Castlegar.

Before this happened however, the hospital had been relocated, rebuilt and reopened (last December) on a new site.

Disneyland Couple Named Week's Tourists

A husband and wife from Anaheim, Calif. — home of Disneyland — were chosen as Victoria Jaycees' Tourists of the Week Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Conner, visiting British Columbia for the first time, were picked aboard the Mv. Coho by Jaycee Dave Watson.

Connor, 30, is a store manager; his wife, 25, a home economics teacher. Both were delighted with Victoria's hanging flower baskets and took many photos around the city.

The couple were entertained to lunch by Woodwards' Mayfair Room and will be treated to supper at the Princess Mary Restaurant. They are guests at Executive House and will lunch at the Century In Sunday with visits to Butchart Gardens and other local attractions.

NO BODY WAS FOUND by diving operations off Nha Trang, South Vietnamese, in search for Vietnamese victim of alleged murder. Eight United States special forces soldiers have been charged following the incident. The U.S. Navy minesweeper Woodpecker conducted the search. (AP Wirephoto.)

Alleged Green Beret Murder Reported Military Mission

By RICHARD PYLE

SAIGON (AP) — The Vietnamese man whom eight Green Beret soldiers are accused of murdering was a Viet Cong agent and his slaying was an assigned "military mission," informed sources said today.

The sources also said that the arrest of the eight men, including the colonel commanding all Green Berets in Vietnam at the time, possibly was the outcome of a vendetta by army officers jealous of the elite Special Forces.

One source who was in a position to know said speculation that the wrong man had been killed by mistake was erroneous.

"He was a Viet Cong agent and it obviously was a military mission," the source said.

U.S. military officials have divulged no details of the case beyond saying that the slaying occurred June 20 near the Special Forces headquarters at Nha Trang and naming the eight Americans accused of conspiracy and premeditated murder.

MEETS CLIENT

The civilian lawyer for one of the eight men conferred for three hours today with his client and said he was confident of his innocence.

George Gregory of Cheraw, S.C., said he had obtained most of the facts in the mysterious case but did not feel at liberty to disclose them yet. He hinted that the army was putting pressure on him to maintain the information blackout it has thrown over the case.

"There are a lot of things I've got to think about. . . . They are keeping tabs on everybody including me, and they're right sensitive about this," he told reporters.

Gregory is the lawyer for Maj. Thomas C. Middleton Jr., 30, of Jefferson, S.C. He said when he arrived in Saigon Sunday that Middleton's rights were being violated by his detention before trial.

FIGHTS BLACKOUT

"I intend to take whatever steps are necessary to get him released from confinement so that he can properly assist in the preparation of his own defence," Gregory said.

Gregory, a former state senator who spent three years in the army's legal corps, also said on Sunday that he would fight to keep the army's blackout from extending to the trial.

"A man is entitled to a public trial," he said. "They will want to try him in a vacuum, but I am not going to let them do that."

Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy apparently gave up an almost month-long search for the body of the murdered man. The U.S. minesweeper Woodpecker docked at Cua Da, near the coastal city of Nha Trang, Sunday. The vessel's commander, Lt.- Victor G. Reiling of Dayton, Ohio, refused to comment on the Woodpecker's mission.

"We didn't find the body," one of the minesweeper's crew said.

The Woodpecker and two other navy vessels have been searching off Nha Trang since about July 14.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BONNER—In loving memory of Bernard R. Bonner (Duke) who left us August 11, 1967.

The years slip by—but the memories never,
Memories of those happy days when we were all together.
—Affectionately remember by Marge and Len.

PATRICK—In fondest remembrance of a beloved Dad, Grandpa, and Great Grandpa, Mr. Robert Patrick, who passed away Aug. 11, 1968; also our dear Mum and Grannie, April 9, 1958.

For the ones we loved so dearly
Have forever been called away
Lonely are our hearts today
As we think of them in silence.
—Very sadly missed by your loving daughter Christina (Tina); Grandson Robert; Grandaughter Arlene; and Patrick and Laniui of Hawaii.

RIDGLEY—Percy Edwin, in loving memory of "darling Perce" who passed away Aug. 11, 1967.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
Just the love and sweet devotion
Of one who thinks of you.
—Always remembered, Millicent.

The beautification project presently in progress will greatly enhance this lovely home located close to the Gorge waters. French doors lead from the entrance hall to both living room and separate dining room. The twenty-two foot living room with unusual window styling and granite fireplace has a warmth to it that is often lacking in newer homes. The kitchen is modern with eating area. One bedroom down and two bedrooms upstairs will appeal to many. A full basement contains a good hot air heating unit. The garage is separate. The lot is attractively landscaped and has a small vegetable garden. All in all an interesting home that is a little different. Drive by 2837 Gorge View Rd. but please do not disturb the owners. Call Mr. Yells 382-2101 — Res. 383-5039. An Exclusive listing.

PRESCRIPTION FOR PEACE OF MIND

A well-treed waterfront property with beautiful view, on the sunny side of COWICHAN LAKE with easy access from black-top road with power at the backdoor. This is the first offering of this beautiful property so come up this week-end for the first selection. These are large lots (some have more than 100 ft. lake frontage), are heavily treed with towering fir, balsam, hemlock and arbutus, priced from $5,500 to $8,000 with terms of ⅓ down and the balance over 5 years. Our recreation minister referred to COWICHAN LAKE as the "Okanagan of the Island." Lakefront is becoming hard to find so phone BOB TURNER now at 749-3404 for the best selection. Perhaps you wish property with a cabin; I have a good selection — don't delay, Bob Turner 749-3404.

IDYLLIC SETTING CLEAN, CLEAR BEACH

WHITE SHELL BEACH

You don't have to go at the moon to find the Sea of Tranquility. This property is it. It defies description. I don't think I have ever seen such a lovely setting or such a beautifully built home. And can you imagine coming home for a quick supper, jumping into the boat and catching your limit of salmon just 50' offshore. The owner did night before last. You enter the property down a winding black-topped driveway through shade maples, and firs of the greenest green. At the beach end, in a clearing with garages, workshop, garden sheds, are two lovely homes. One rents for $200 per month. The owners home, right adjacent is customized. The kitchenette and eating area are compact and face the sea. The living room is 20'x33' with wall-to-wall carpet and 18' Roman Brick raised hearth ranch fireplace. Under the W-W carpeting is flooring never walked on. The two bedrooms of medium size are so restful. The den is sunken — 18'x27' with a floor to ceiling fireplace that is unique. It has a curved facing and copper hood. You step through the sliding glass doors onto the sundeck over the boathouse — 15'x30'. And, over all the house is a beautiful shake roof. If you want a beautiful home with an income, on a private waterfront setting, (in which case you could use the guest cottage as a two-bedroom annex), please phone for appointments to view. Trades considered. $99,995.

Italians End Drift To Tahiti

PAPEETE, Tahiti (Reuters) — Three Italians in an 18-foot rubber boat landed on Roria atoll near here Sunday after completing a 4,500-mile voyage across the Pacific from Peru.

Mario Walli, 50, a former army officer, Vittorio Marcioci, 32, a navigation expert, and Sergio Groci, 32, a movie cameraman, were reported fit and well after 70 days at sea.

They left the port of Callao, near Lima, June 2, intending to flow on the currents used by the Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl in the raft Kon-Tiki in 1947.

During the voyage, they were to study their physiological and physical reactions, try out diets prescribed by doctors for athletes in hot climates, and test the durability of their rubber boat, named Celeusta.

The boat was fitted with three sails and a canvas cabin, and reinforced by planks to protect it from heavy seas.

India Banker Challenges Takeover

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India's Supreme Court today decided to allow a legal challenge to the government's action in nationalizing 14 commercial banks.

The court agreed to allow a bank director file a complaint asking that the bill signed into law Saturday be declared invalid on ground it violated personal rights and was hurried through the legislature.

Bank Director Rustom Vacasjee Cooper originally filed a petition against the nationalization move July 19, when Prime Minister Indira Ghandi instituted an ordinance authorizing the takeover. The court then granted an injunction against enacting parts of the nationalization program.

Because of this, the government quickly sought parliamentary approval to make the ordinance a law.

Century Long Enough To Be Alone

MAHE, Seychelles (AP) — Jonathan, 140 years old and the only giant tortoise left on the island of St. Helena, has been causing a bit of trouble lately.

He's been upending benches near the tennis courts on this South Atlantic island and disrupting croquet games by sitting on the croquet balls. The British governor, Sir Dermod Murphy, decided Jonathan must be getting lonely, his mate having deid 100 years ago in a fall from a cliff.

Today the Royal Navy took a hand. It took over a pair of giant tortoises hatched four years ago at the botanical gardens in Mahe and put them aboard the supply ship Fort Sandesky for the trip one-fourth of the way around the world.

Rumor Cabinet Wins First Vote

ROME (AP) — Premier Mariano Rumor's minority government won its first vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies Sunday.

The Senate was expected to give the all-Christian Democrat government a vote of confidence Wednesday.

The Chamber of Deputies voted 346 to 245 to let Rumor's government serve until a majority coalition can be knitted together.

The premier pledged that the new government would stay in power to preserve order until Italy's divided Socialists can be brought back into a centre-left coalition.

The two Socialist parties, whose split in July brought the collapse of Rumor's previous coalition government, supported the premier in the confidence vote. The Communists, Proletarian Socialists, Liberals, Monarchists and Fascists opposed him.

During the debate, Rumor pledged that terrorists who planted bombs aboard seven trains Saturday would be "sought out by every means and punished with maximum severity." Eleven persons were injured in the explosions.

Police first speculated that the pocket-size time bombs had been planted by German-speaking nationalists from the Tyrol. But today they said there were indications that the bombings were the work of extreme leftists usually referred to as "the Chinese" because they are more militant than the Communists.

Boy, Girl Found Dead

MELBOURNE BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The bound, kneeling body of a youth was discovered in a parked car Sunday and deputies investigating his death later found the body of a 17-year-old girl floating in a nearby creek.

Officers identified the teenagers as George Perry Martin Jr., 19, and Connie Ruth Ballard, both of Satellite Beach.

Spokesmen for the Brevard County sheriff's department said Martin had been shot in the head. They said his hands were tied behind his back and his body was in a kneeling position in the car when it was found by three men who had been looking for bottles.

Deputies said Miss Ballard's body was found about 15 yards off shore in Mullet Creek, near the parked car. Marks in the sand indicated she had been dragged to the creek, they said.

Both apparently had been dead for at least 24 hours, authorities said.

The sheriff's office gave no cause of death for Miss Ballard, and declined to disclose any other details of the deaths pending additional investigation.

Soviet Scientists On Research Boat Visit Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP) In formality was the keynote of a visit here of a group of Russian marine scientists aboard an oceanographic research vessel.

The 300-foot Vityaz of the U.S.S.R. was anchored in the bay while its sceintific staff toured Nanaimo Biological Station and chatted with local scientists.

The visitors, led by Dr. Z. A. Filatova, a woman specialist in deep marine life and head of the expedition, were welcomed by K. R. Allen, director of the research station.

Dr. Filatova was accompanied by 48 other scientists on this the 45th voyage of its type by the Vityaz.

Irish Fear Parades May Spark Rioting

BELFAST (AP) — Authorities are worried that three parades this week, two by Protestants and one by Roman Catholics, could bring fresh outbursts of violence after the gasoline bombing of a Roman Catholic family's home Sunday.

Anne Logan, 17, was nursing her eight-months-old daughter when the bomb exploded. She and her husband, Harry, 22, fled with the baby but flames destroyed their house. Police said the bomb apparently was thrown from a passing car.

"It only takes a lunatic to throw a bomb and there will be trouble again," said Dr. Brian Glancy, a leading Roman Catholic moderate in Londonderry. He and other Catholics have met with representatives of the Apprentice Boys, a Protestant group, and agreed to try to prevent violence during a Protestant parade Tuesday in Londonderry in which 20,000 persons are expected to march.

That parade will commemmorate the part Protestant apprentices played in the defence of the town in 1689 against the besieging forces of the dethroned Roman Catholic king James II. They have paraded in the last year without trouble.

FIGHTS FREQUENT

But parades last fall led by the civil rights group pressing for an end to discrimination against Catholics in housing jobs and voting touched off violence when Protestant counter demonstrators came out. There have been repeated outbreaks between the two groups, the latest a week ago in Belfast when a Protestant group was parading.

Efforts to get Tuesday's parade called off have failed.

The second parade this week is on Friday, when 10,000 members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, a Roman Catholic group, plan to march in honor of the Virgin Mary at the small town of Dungiven.

Protestant militants led by Rev. Ian Paisley plan another parade Saturday at Newry, a predominately Roman Catholic town.

Ambulance Building Opened

DUNCAN — Another milestone in community service was marked Saturday when the Duncan Kiwanis Ambulance Society's new $18,000 ambulance building was officially opened.

A bylaw vote was held by the Cowichan Valley Regional Board in November, 1968. It passed in the areas from the Chemainus River to the Malahat, but not including the Cowichan Lake communities.

Cost to the taxpayer was .55 mills.

Alex Smith, chairman of the Regional Board, officially opened the building which was built by contractor Stan Marchessault from plans by Hammond and Farmer, both Duncan firms.

Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan, Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan and Ald. Alan Kerr of Duncan council also were present.

Before the Judge

Peter John Smith, 47, of 1277 Rivercombe Pl., was Saturday remanded to Family Court today to face a charge of common assault.

He assaulted his wife, central court was told.

He was released on bail of $250, and was ordered to stay away from his wife until today.

James C. Browne, 39, of 9333 Maryland Rd., Sidney, was fined $300 for impaired driving; Leonel E. Blackburn, 35, of 1544 Bank, was fined $300 for impaired driving; Walter H. Donaldson, 28, 2511 Avebury, was fined $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Ex-Bishop To Continue Teaching

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — James P. Shannon, former Roman Catholic auxiliary bishop of Minneapolis-St. Paul, is expected to teach his regular class today at St. John's College here.

The college is not affiliated with the church.

He said Sunday he would remain in the church despite his marriage, but a former colleague said the nuptials automatically excommunicated him.

Shannon, 48, and his bride, the former Ruth Church Wilkinson, 50, a Protestant who was previously married three times, returned here Saturday night.

The couple were married Aug. 2 in Endicott, N..Y, by a Protestant minister, the Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat and Chronicle reported Sunday. Shannon then issued a statement to the New York Times acknowledging the marriage.

"I do not intend to leave the Catholic Church," he said. "It is my spiritual home. I love it dearly and have worked to the best of my ability as one of its priests for 23 years."

But Most Rev. Leonard P. Cowley, auxiliary archbishop of the Minneapolis-St. Paul diocese, said in Minneapolis: "By marrying, he incurred excommunication, there's no need for a declaration of it."

GOT DIVORCE

Mrs. Shannon was divorced from her third husband, who has since died.

Bishop Cowley said: "I wish he hadn't done what he did because of the shock in it, but I still regard him highly as a person. A lot of Catholics are terribly shocked because they know the personal commitment he made."

The Rochester newspapers said Shannon took out a marriage licence in July in Auburn, N.Y., under the name "J. P. Shannon," listing his occupation as "salesman."

Unusual Security For Trial

NAIROBI (AP) — A Kikuyu tribesman charged with the murder of Kenyan political leader Tom Mboya appeared in court under unprecedented security today for a preliminary hearing.

Police ringed the courtroom and searched all spectators. A senior police official apologized for searching newspaper men.

The defendant, Nahashon Isaac Njenga Njoroge, sat in the jury box, flanked by six guards.

An official said 92 witnesses would be called.

The state introduced more than 20 pieces of evidence, including a .38-calibre revolver, fingerprint cards and a volume of testimony taken during the investigation of the murder.

Mboya, 38, Kenya's minister of planning and economic development, was shot at close range as he walked out of a Nairobi drug store July 5. Njoroge was charged with the assassination two weeks later.

The murder touched off tribal clashes between the Juos, Mboya's tribe, and the Kikuyus, the largest tribe in the country. Two persons were killed and more than 60 were injured in the riots.

HOME GARDEN

Royal Colors Prove Gorgeous

By HILDA BEASTALL

The royal colors of purple and gold might not be everybody's choice for drapes, rugs and accessories in the home, but in the garden they are simply gorgeous. With association of a normal amount of green and the addition of dark crimson in the same scape, the result is both stimulating and satisfying.

Hilda

Choosing colors either indoors or out is such a personal thing that hesitation is surely the better part of valor but in the interests of brightening a few gardens completely lacking in color impact, here are a few ideas.

Just now, honey-scented Buddleia davidi will contribute an intense royal purple with the variety named "Royal Red." This may sound queer, but it is an instance of naming where colors appear differently to diffrent people.

An equally, rich gold are the massive heads of tiny flowers held on 18-inch stems by a refined form of goldenrod called Solidago "Leraft," and a dark crimson to tie the two together is the bee-balm called Monarda didyma "Cambridge Scarlet."

These three plants are all common enough in Victoria gardens, but happening to see them in fairly close association with each other gave them quite a new meaning.

All varieties of Buddleia davidi require to be cut back early each spring to within three or five inches of old wood, so that new canes made during summer can reach full growth of six, eight or 10 feet according to soil and location.

The lovely cone-shaped blossom heads are borne at the ends of these growths as a background to the lower growing goldenrod, an English selection and a fine plant for small gardens.

Monarda "Cambridge Scarlet" is one of the bee plants, a lovely garden plant in its won right.

The shape of the flowers is so distinct that it takes more than a gardener to describe them with any accuracy. The advice is to see it somewhere. It begins flowering in July, and if the first blooms are removed promptly as they fade, a continuous succession will be provided until October.

Some will find other plants to fulfil this color scheme of purple, gold and crimson, but those suggested are all easy to grow in the same rich soil and sunshine environment, and they are all permanent plants.

They require no more than average care and as a return will give a really smashing effect from mid July until the end of September each year, plus fragrance and plus wild creatures attracted for feeding on their nectar.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Canada Controlled Major U.S. Centres

By BOB BOWMAN

August 11, 1796 was the last day the British flag flew over Detroit, Niagara, Ogdensburg, Oswego, and Mackinac. They had come under the Governor of Canada since 1783 as a guarantee that the U.S. would abide by the terms of the Peace of Paris that ended the American Revolutionary War.

There had nearly been war in 1794 between Britain and the U.S. (in which Canada would have been involved) because of the British forts in American territory. A dashing U.S. army general, Anthony Wayne, had swept the Indians from much of the area in a number of decisive battles. His career probably inspired the current Hollywood heartthrob, John Wayne.

However, the British and Canadians in Detroit, Niagara and other hostage forts sympathized with the Indians, and sold them guns, ammunition and supplies. In fact the Americans charged that they disguised themselves as Indians and took part in the fighting.

Wayne moved a large force to the Maumee River where some British soldiers were based. John Graves Simcoe, an American hater, had just become Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, and went to rescue the British garrison. There would have been war if Wayne had not obeyed orders and withdrawn although he had the stronger force.

The U.S. then sent John Jay, an expert negotiator, to Britain and he worked out the treaty that led to Detroit and the other forts being returned to the U.S. and the settlement of the northeast boundary dispute.

Other events on August 11:

1691—French under De Varennes defeated British force at LaPrairie near Montreal.

1755—Acadians were summoned to Fort Cumberland and 400 held captive.

1791—Prince Edward, fourth son of George III, became commander of garrison at Quebec.

1874—P. G. Laurie arrived at Battleford to found newspaper.

1884 — Manitoba - Ontario boundary dispute was settled.

YOUR HEALTH

Patient Must Live With Arthritis

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

As many an expert on arthritis has said, because the disease is so often chronic and keeps bothering off and on through a lifetime, it is important that the close relatives who live with a patient who is more or less crippled, learn about the possible home treatment of the disease.

First, of course, it is important that the patient be seen by someone who knows much about arthritis and can diagnose what type of arthritis is present. Obviously, no doctor or expert on rehabilitation can come to help the patient every day, and so it is important that the patient be taught how to live with his arthritis; also, perhaps someone in the family can be taught how to help the patient in many ways. The patient needs to know the importance of rest or exercise; perhaps the use at times of heat or cold; occasionally the use of splints, a foot-board in the bed to rest the feet on, canes and crutches, or a walker, or a wheelchair, or other helpful devices.

Also, there may be ways in which the home surroundings can be modified so as to help the disabled person. For instance, in a kitchen a sink or a table can be lowered, and in the bathroom the toilet seat can be raised, and a bar can be fastened to the side of the tub so that the person can more easily get in and out.

★ ★ ★

Even the severe, often deforming type of rheumatoid arthritis can be helped with good home care. Many people hope to be cured by diet, but experts say that they have no faith in the helpfulness of any diet, except perhaps when the patient is much too stout. It can help to take off much weight, especially when the person has weak ankles.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The deal diagrammed below is presented in the form of a "bridge mystery." You are informed that our South declarer lost an easily-makable contract by playing mechanically. It is your job to find the evidence that will convict South of "conduct unbecoming a good player."

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠

After East's king of spades had captured the first trick, he played back the nine of spades, which South covered with the jack. West came up with a nice play when he allowed the jack to win. From West's point of view, if he took the jack with the ace, to return a spade, he would establish his suit. But he would never get around to cashing it, since he had no entry to his hand.

At trick three, declarer led his jack of hearts and finessed, East winning with his king, and returning the four of spades. South's Q-7 of spades was now entrapped by West's A-10. Thus, West made three more spade tricks, sending South down to defeat. Where did declarer slip?

Declarer should have recognized from the start that if the eight adversely held spades were divided 4-4, then his contract was guaranteed. In this case, no matter how he played the hand, he couldn't lose more than three space tricks (and the heart king).

Declarer's concern should have been that West possessed five spades. Since the heart finesse was going to be taken in such a fashion that if it lost, it would lose only to East, precautionary measures had to be taken to prevent East—if he had the heart king—from returning a spade.

This could have been accomplished—with no risk—by permitting East's nine of spades to win the second spade lead. When East then returned a third spade, South would play his jack (from the Q-J). The three no-trump contract would now become a guaranteed one.

Peter poured himself a cup of coffee. "I guess I'm late," he said. "What's the time?"

"Just ten times as many seconds before eight as it is minutes before nine o'clock," replied his father. "Sit down and eat a proper breakfast."

What was the time?

(Answer Tuesday.)

Friday's Answer: Ages, 76, 77, and 78 years.

TORNADO WRECKAGE fills Cincinnati's busy Galbraith Road after the funnel-shaped cloud touched down in suburban Reading Saturday night. The storm smashed business buildings and homes and injured more than 200 persons. There were four fatalities and 460 families homeless.

Swath of Destruction Hits Cincinnati Area

CINCINNATI (UPI) — This city's first tornado in more than a half-century left behind a $7 million swath of destruction nine miles long, four persons dead and 460 families homeless.

Some 700 Ohio National Guardsmen patrolled the devastated areas in northern Cincinnati and nearby suburbs to prevent looting today while officials appealed for federal disaster assistance.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, who toured the area early Sunday with Mayor Eugene Ruehlmann and other officials, called the damage "devastating."

Many of the homeless were among some 400 families evacuated from the lake shore apartments in nearby Reading, where Mrs. Joanne Lee said: "I saw trees and pieces of lumber from the sides of the building flying through the air."

25 HOMES DESTROYED

The Red Cross reported that 25 homes were destroyed and 85 others suffered major damage, leaving them uninhabitable. Some 350 apartment units also were destroyed.

Most of those forced from their homes found space with friends and relatives, but 29 members of six families spent Sunday night in a temporary shelter at a school. More than 100 persons stayed there Saturday night.

Sylvester Del Corso, Ohio's national guard adjutant general, who estimated the damages, said the troops — patrolling and directing traffic — would remain on duty as long as they were needed. The clean-up already was well under way Sunday.

TRAPPED

At first it was feared many persons might be trapped beneath the rubble of buildings as were a young woman and two sons, found by firemen early Sunday. But the Red Cross said everyone in the path of the storm had been accounted for.

The dead were Mrs. Carolyn de Borde, 21, of Concinnati, her sons Delbert, 5, and Rodney, 3, and Mrs. Zelphia Taylor, 45, of Williamsburg, Ohio.

Mrs. Taylor died Sunday evening of head injuries suffered Saturday night when her husband's car was blown back on the highway and flipped over several times by high winds after he had pulled off the road.

CAR FLIPPED

Jim Thomas, an off-duty Cincinnati policeman who was one of the first to spot the storm, reported seeing an auto flipped over and a man and woman thrown from it, but it was not certain if this had been the Taylor car.

"Uprooted trees were moving across the road," said Thomas, who at the time still was clad in a bathing suit after an afternoon outing on the Ohio River. "A guy's car started flipping through the air and just kept turning over and over."

The twister touched down early Saturday night in the community of Hartwell, just within Cincinnati's northern city limits. It was there that the two top floors were torn off Mrs. de Borde's apartment house.

OVER IN MINUTES

It moved through Reading, Carthage and Silverton, just outside the city limits, and Amberly village and Madeira about five miles away. Within a matter of minutes it was over.

The storm affected an area about a city block wide, bounding from town to town and causing most of its damage in the business district of each community.

Grants Announced

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Council grants totalling more than $13,000 to institutions in British Columbia and Alberta were announced Monday. The awards were part of a total of $102,647 for universities, learned societies and publishers.

Youngster Triumphs

DOVER, England (AP) — Jon Erikson, 14-year-old Chicago schoolboy, today became the youngest swimmer ever to conquer the English Channel. Erikson swam from Cap Gris Nez on the French coast to a beach west of Dover in 11 hours, 23 minutes.

Cong Steps Up Effort; 38 U.S. Troops Killed

SAIGON (AP) — Thirty-eight Americans were killed and 144 wounded in fierce attacks that North Vietnamese troops launched against U.S. forces along the Cambodian, Laotian and demilitarized zone frontiers Sunday, military spokesmen said today.

The toll of American war dead was the largest reported during any 24-hour period since a lull began in the fighting June 18.

U.S. military analysts indicated that the stepped-up attacks could presage the fall campaign that American officers expect.

There was new apprehension along the demilitarized zone with the disclosure that North Vietnamese troops fighting the U.S. marines there during the last four days were from a fresh regiment.

"The intelligence we have received from all four corps tactical zones indicates the enemy is preparing for a fall campaign to be conducted during August and September," one analyst said. "Although there is some variation in the timing for the campaign, the enemy holidays of Aug. 18, Sept. 2 and Sept. 23 have been mentioned by defectors and documents."

Fighting was reported near the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon, just below the central sector of the demilitarized zone separating Vietnam, on two sides of Hamburger Hill beside the Laotian border, and in the populous coastal lowlands south of Da Nang.

Three more American helicopters were shot down, two during a fight 28 miles southeast of Da Nang and the third 50 miles west of Da Nang. Two crewmembers were killed and two were wounded. The losses raised to 2,895 the number of American helicopters reported lost in the war.

Nineteen U.S. marines were killed and 80 wounded when more than 250 North Vietnamese troops attacked two of their night bivouacs astride infiltration routes two miles south of the central DMZ. North Vietnamese losses were put at 36 killed.

Tight Controls Voted On All Gas Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate voted today to put new controls on the testing, storage and transportation of chemical and biological weapons. The vote was 91 to 0.

Critics of the defence department framed the proposals, and department allies agreed to the terms after Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird endorsed them.

Among key provisions of the measure, an amendment to a $20,000,000,000 military procurement authorizing bill:

—A requirement that open-air tests of chemical and biological weapons be approved in advance by the defence secretary and the surgeon-general, with congressional committees advised on the testing.

A ban on defence department procurement of delivery weapons specifically designed for use with chemical or biological weapons.

A bar on storage outside the U.S. without prior notice to the country involved.

Detoxication of all lethal weapons before they are shipped.

Specific congressional clearance of all spending for chemical and biological weapons.

Senator Charles Goodell (Rep., N.Y.) said the Senate should consider next year a total ban on U.S. efforts in such weapons.

He said that he is not convinced that there must be a U.S. counterpart to every weapon in the hands of potential enemy.

"There is a capability on the part of the Soviet Union," said Senator Everett M. Dirksen Rep. Ill.). 'We must have to have some kind of a retaliatory facility for the very purpose of detering others from ever using it."

Zond Loops Past Moon; Heads Home

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet moon vehicle Zond VII photographed the lunar surface today, rounded the moon and is heading for earth, an official announcement said.

There were no details on what parts of the moon were photographed or what use will be made of the pictures.

The Zond series has been officially described as part of the Soviet program to land a man on the moon. Zond VII possibly explored landing sites.

The information released today indicated the craft only looped the moon and swung back toward earth, not entering into a full orbit of the moon.

Paris Freezes Prices, Profits

Market Partners Offer Assistance

By DAVID LAULIGHT

PARIS (Reuters) — Government inspectors were out in force today to ensure storekeepers adhere strictly to a sweeping price freeze announced by the government Sunday night.

The freeze—imposed as part of austerity measures announced following the 12.5-percent devaluation of the franc Friday—will remain in effect until Sept. 15.

Until then prices must be kept at their level Friday. The inspectors can revoke any increase.

The freeze, which also covers industrial prices, profit margins, and profits on certain fruits and vegetables, was imposed to allow the country to hold the advantages of devaluation, the government said.

France won swift and unanimous approval for devaluation from the International Monetary Fund, meeting in Washington Sunday, and a spokesman said Paris did not apply for a loan to strengthen its current reserves.

In Brussels, the European Common Market executive commission called for all possible help to France.

Jean Rey, Belgian president of the commission, said the six-nation body should help France to a maximum extent.

But he told the Common Market foreign and agriculture ministry, meeting here, that any aid to France should cause the least possible upset to community policies.

Rey described the French decision as a thunderbolt which caused both surprise and inconvenience. He chided France for not consulting with its five partners before announcing the devaluation, as stipulated under a 1964 market decision.

France, he said, could have informed its community partners Friday night and announced the devaluation Saturday morning.

Earlier, French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing defended France's decision not to consult with its partners, informed sources said.

They quoted him as saying that prior consultations would have necessitated closing all financial markets in the world and would have led inevitably to speculation.

Devaluation of the French franc produced relatively light activity on the international money markets today.

At Frankfurt, the U.S. dollar and British pound dropped sharply in relation to the West German mark, then rallied. Volume was not great and experts said there was no sign of speculation.

In London, the pound fell by just over half a cent but there was no immediate pressure on the Bank of England to dip into its reserves to support Sterling.

Speculators bought West German marks and sold Belgian francs but there was no wild fluctuation and trading volume was low.

Vandalism, Bombing Link Suspected in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Police believe a bomb explosion this weekend in suburban Town of Mount Royal may be connected with acts of vandalism in two local churches.

Large dollar signs and the words "Hunger" in both French and English were found painted in two churches after the blast which rocked a commercial building and shattered windows for several blocks.

It is believed the bomb was home-made and consisted of about 10 sticks of dynamite.

There were no injuries.

The building housed the offices of the Induatrial Acceptance Corp., a loan company.

It was the first bombing in the Montreal area since July 7 when five bombs exploded at buildings housing construction company offices all across Montreal.

Those bombings were believed connected with a province-wide construction dispute.

TULSA (UPI)—Teachers in the public school system here, irked at the rating system for them, have devised their own rating system for principals.

No one else takes it seriously, but the teachers like it. It goes this way.

Promptness:
—Is faster than a speeding bullet.
—Is as fast as a speeding bullet.
—Would you believe a slow bullet.
—Misfires frequently.
—Wounds self while handling guns.

Initiative:
—Is stronger than a locomotive.
—Is as strong as a bull elephant.
—Almost as strong as a bull.
—Shoots the bull.
—Smells like a bull.

Qualifications:
—Leaps tall buildings at a single bound.
—Leaps tall buildings at a running start.
—Can leap short building if prodded.
—Bumps into buildings.
—Cannot recognize buildings.

Adaptability:
—Walks on water.
—Keeps head above water under stress.
—Washes with water.
—Drinks water.
—Passes water in emergencies.

Communication:
—Talks with God.
—Talks with the angels.
—Talks to himself.
—Argues with himself.
—Loses arguments with himself.

Moonmen Face Hectic Week

By HOWARD BENEDICT

HOUSTON (AP) — Freed from three weeks of isolation, the Apollo 11 astronauts relaxed with their families today before plunging into a hectic round of celebrations of their historic moon-landing.

Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins sped straight to their homes Sunday night when released from quarantine quarters. Only hours before, doctors had said they could find no evidence of alien germs or infection from the astronauts' lunar contact.

A waiting world was ready to heap the pioneers with honors in the weeks ahead.

The whirlwind schedule starts Tuesday when Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins hold a news conference here to report on their daring mission.

That afternoon, a downtown Houston luncheon will be attended by nearly 700 space workers.

On Wednesday, the astronauts and their families fly to New York for a ticker tape parade and an appearance at the United Nations, followed in the afternoon by another parade in Chicago. The day winds up in Los Angeles at a gala state dinner with President Nixon as host.

PARTY UNDER DOME

On Saturday, they will be honored by a Houston parade followed by a Texas-sized party in the Astrodome.

In the weeks that follow, they'll be welcomed in many cities in the United States and will appear before Congress.

Personality vs. Organization

By JIM HUME
Times Reporter

NANAIMO — Nanaimo voters will do more than elect a new MLA on Aug. 27.

They will also settle the old question: what wins elections, the personality of the candidate or the political machine?

If it's the machine, give the constituency to two-time winner Dave Stupich, NDP.

If it's personality, look for Social Credit standard bearer Frank Ney to win back the seat held for years by former cabinet minister Earl Westwood, and lost to the NDP in 1963.

Ney, the popular mayor, who has put Nanaimo on the map during two brief years in office, is running hard on his mayoralty success record.

Stupich, a chartered accountant, and winner of two elections by narrow margins, knows what he has to do to beat his wealthy realtor rival: organize.

Although traditionally known as a safe NDP seat, the fact is that for six years Stupich has worn the Nanaimo crown with uneasy grace.

●

In 1963 he beat Westwood, then minister of Recreation, by a slim 19-vote majority. In 1966, he beat Ney, running for office for the first time, by 45 votes.

Stupich says he is confident he can make it three in a row later this month.

If he does, he can thank an organizational machine left behind by federal NDP leader Tommy Douglas when he whipped the Liberals here in February.

The NDP "heavies," Gordon Brigden and Michael Lewis, were in town Saturday for a workers' pep rally, which leaned heavily on the Douglas campaign for inspiration.

Brigden is a national organizer, based in Toronto but working most of this election in the Vancouver area, with sporadic visits to Nanaimo planned. Lewis is the provincial organizer for the party. He, too, plans periodic forays to Nanaimo during the next 16 days.

Saturday morning the party rallied in strength for Brigden's pep talk. Some 80 of the faithful listened before heading out to all corners of the constituency for their second door-to-door canvas.

Three door-knocking campaigns are planned, four if there's time, before the polls open.

And as always, the NDP is already gearing for the vital election day task of getting the people to the polls.

In 1966, Stupich says he had two canvassers—himself and his wife. For this campaign, he has close to 100, all veterans of the federal Douglas byelection.

●

"This is a different type of campaign," Stupich said Saturday. "I have inherited a tremendous organization built up over five months for the byelection. Frank Ney is a strong and popular man, he can't be underestimated."

Across the city on Commercial Street, Ney is running equally hard, though not so well organized.

His committee rooms, located across from the pillared offices of the Great National Land Development Company, of which he is president, are busy and crowded with volunteer workers.

They are eager and confident, but lack the professional and militant polish of the NDP.

And they take constant consolation from the fact that in the two elections in which they were defeated, the margin was slim enough to require judicial recounts.

In addition to battling the NDP, Ney, over the weekend was fighting off a bug described as a mild attack of measles. Half a dozen of his 11 children are down with the summer malady.

Campaign manager Les Mottishaw, a relative rookie in politics, bubbles with confidence.

●

And if he muffs a few of his statistical lines when asked about the size of his candidate's family, it doesn't seem to bother him.

"It's his track record you go by," says Mottishaw. "And so far, it has been excellent. No matter what political party you belong to, you have to admit he's moved Nanaimo ahead."

Nobody denies that. Not even Robert S. Plecaf, the 24-year-old rookie running on the Liberal ticket in a three-way

CBS to Support Tobacco Ad End

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System says it will go along with a tobacco industry plan to end broadcast cigarette advertising by Dec. 31, if Congress approves.

But network president Frank Stanton said Sunday the plan was unfair to networks because it would allow the tobacco industry to switch its advertising money to print.

The CBS spokesman said cigarette ads account for about 10 per cent of the network's revenues. Broadcasting magazine's 1969 yearbook says the top five tobacco advertisers spent $1,600,000,000 on network TV ads in 1967, and another $14,000,000 on network radio.

Stanton announced the CBS decision in a letter to Senator Frank E. Moss (Dem. Utah) who approached the networks about the Tobacco Institute plan two weeks ago.

The plan would need congressional approval to circumvent anti-trust laws and allow the tobacco companies to act in concert. It would also require the networks to release the advertisers from current contracts, most of which run until next September.

The American Broadcasting Company rejected the plan last Thursday. The National Broadcasting Company has not responded publicly.

Perpetual Copper Rights End

LUSAKA (Reuters) — The Zambian government will end mining rights held in perpetuity by the country's two major copper companies and will give them 25-year leases instead, President Kenneth Kaunda announced today.

He also said the Companies—Roan Selection Trust and the Anglo-American Corp. — would be "invited" to sell 51 per cent of their shares to the government, giving it control of the industry. Zambia is the world's third largest producer of copper.

The present royalty and export tax arrangements would cease and the copper companies would have to pay a new mineral tax of 51 per cent of profits, Kaunda added.

In sweeping extensions of his year-old economic reforms, Kaunda told a meeting of his United Nations Independence party that constitutional amendments would be introduced to bring all mining rights—many of them held at the moment in perpetuity—back to the state.

Kaunda said the existing copper mines now would be given a 25-year lease. The companies would have a three-year period to produce firm plans for mining in areas where they were currently prospecting.

Under the new constitutional amendments, the government would be able to let other groups from abroad undertake mineral exploitation in Zambia, on the same basis of a 25-year lease and with 51-per-cent government participation, Kaunda added.

The takeover would be effected by the state-owned Industrial Development Corp. which would pay off the companies out of future dividends, he said.

OSF to Make Takeover Bid For Seaway

TORONTO (CP) — OSF Industries Ltd. said Friday it will offer to purchase all the outstanding shares of Seaway Multi-Corp. Ltd.

At present prices, the offer would be worth about $22,000,000.

OFS officials said the offer is expected to be made within a month, and will be conditional on 75 per cent of Seaway's common and preference shares being tendered.

OSF Industries has recently diversified from its original business of designing and building store fixtures and acquired a number of realty companies.

Seaway, with assets of about $43 million as of last Dec. 31, formerly was solely in the hotel business. It was taken over by new management a year ago and since then has diversified through a number of acquisitions.

CP Investments

Earnings per share rose three cents for the first half of 1969, reports Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd.

Net income amounted to $24.1 million, up $1.4 million, producing 43 cents a share. In the same period income of operating subsidiaries rose $2.9 million to $10 million.

Investment income remained at the 1968 level, and equity in the income of Cominco Ltd. and other partly-owned subsidiaries declined by $5.9 million.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Gold Index Declining

The Toronto gold index showed its sensitivity to news today as it tried to overcome earlier losses and began showing signs of recovery.

After an inactive opening, the gold index dropped 14 points, but managed to cut the loss to 9.64 by mid-afternoon. The index stood at 184.54.

AT TORONTO, industrials were off 1.15 to 170.28; base metals, .24 to 102.76, and western oils, 1.49 to 227.23. All group indexes, except trust and loan companies, were down.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1,293,000 shares compared with 1,056,000 at the same time Friday. Declines outnumbered advances 261 to 139, with 225 isues unchanged.

OSF Industries and Seaway both resumed trading after being delayed at the opening Friday. Seaway moved up 1⅛ to 10⅝ and OSF fell 2¼ to 19.

OSF said it will offer to purchase all outstanding shares of Seaway on the basis of one common share and one 10-year warrant for every two common Seaway shares.

Steel companies are still reacting indifferently to news of strikes and walkouts which have tied up the indusary. Algoma rose ⅛ to 16, Stelco dropped ⅛ to 21¼; Dofasco, ½ to 19⅝, and Inco, ⅛ to 37⅝.

Some analysts say the late trading on golds Friday was a phoney market as investers bought gold issues on impulse as a hedge, after hearing the news that France had devalued the farnce.

They say the initial reaction of investors, after they had several days to think about it, has been to sell for quick profit-taking, as they see most stock and financial markets have shown a favorable reaction to the devaluation.

AT NEW YORK the market continued to sag in quiet trading early this afternoon, with some investors reported reacting to devaluation of the French franc by withdrawing from the action.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off 2.65 at 821.81.

Declines led advances by about 270 issues.

First-hour volume of 2,080,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange was the lowest since 2,050,000 shares changed hands in the first hour Dec. 26, 1968.

Some analysts said the market seemed to be taking the devaluation news "in pretty good stride." They said the trading activity indicated investors were cautious and on the sidelines while "waiting to see what direction the market will take."

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was off 1.0 at 291.2.

Among Canadians, McIntyre Porcupine was up 3. Alcan was down ⅜ and Walker Gooderham lost ¼.

On the American exchange, Jupiter Corp. was down ⅝.

AT MONTREAL the market dipped sharply during light afternoon trading today. Industrials were weakest as papers alone rose.

The composite index fell 1.35 to 169.02.

In banks, Toronto-Dominion declined ¼ to 18⅝, Banque Canadienne ¼ to 11, Commerce ¼ to 18⅝ and Royal ⅛ to 19¼ while Montreal was unchanged at 14 and Nova Scotia at 22.

Among industrials, Radio Engineering was off 3 to 24, Falconbridge 1 to 128, Distillers-Seagrams ⅜ to 48¼, Canadian Pacific ⅜ to 73¼ and Canadian Hydrocarbons ⅜ to 17¼.

In senior mines and oils, Hudson Bay Mining lost 3 to 73, Husky Oil ⅛ to 15⅝, Imperial ⅛ to 18¼ and Petrofina Canada ⅛ to 19¼.

On the Canadian stock exchange, Select Financial slipped ¼ to 22 and Dalfen's gained 1 point to 9.

Among speculative mines and oils, Cadillac Explorations lost 75 cents to 7.00, Phoenix Canada 40 cents to 9.35 and Camflo 40 cents to 5.50.

Volume for both markets at 1 p.m. was 511,700 shares compared with 616,800 at the same time Friday.

AT LONDON trading resumed on a quietly cautious note following the French franc devaluation.

British funds rallied after initial weakness.

Leading equities staged a modest recovery.

Dollar stocks were generally higher helped by a sharp rise in the dollar premium.

In Canadians, gains of between 1½ and 2½ points were seen in Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Canadian Pacific and Noranda but losses ranging to two points were recorded by Dome, Hiram Walker, Hollinger, Massey-Ferguson and Pacific Petroleum.

Copper shares weakened on Zambian proposals to nationalize mineral rights.

AT VANCOUVER prices dropped in light morning trading. Pre-noon volume was 1,300,000 shares.

The only exception to the general decline among top volume traders was Davis-Keays which added .30 to $4 from Friday's close.

In other mining issues Ace fell .15 to $1.75, Trojan slipped .13 to .87 and Highmont lost .14 to $1.55.

United Data and Syracuse in the oils both fell a dime. Castle lost .15 to $3.25.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices for soybeans and grains were mixed in moderately active trading today on the Boardof Trade.

Devaluation of the French franc and the United States Department of Agriculture's latest report on crops, which is to be issued after the close of trading today, were influences in the trade.

Many traders elected to remain on the sidelines until the contents of the crop report are known.

Wheat was mostly steady near the close after recovering from early losses that ranged up to a cent or more.

Corn was off fractions most of teh session withnot much demand in evidence.

Soybean meal trended lower. Soybean oil was mostly steady. At the close, wheat ½ to ⅝ higher, Sept. 1.25¼; corn ½ to 1⅛ lower, Sept. 1.21⅝; oats unchanged ot ⅜ lower, Sept. 58⅞; rye ⅜ to ⅞ lower, Sept. 1.10⅝; soybeans ⅜ higher to ½ lower, Aug. 2.67⅝.

Wheat Price War Near Claims U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Official sources here said Friday hopes are rapidly dwindling that a world wheat price war can be averted.

Such a showdown, they fear, could permanently damage the already tragic International Grains Arrangement.

The U.S. has a greater stock of surplus wheat than any of the other major world suppliers. Officials here said the U.S. may be forced to strike a fatal blow at the IGA because the wheat crisis is as bad as it was a called top officials from other major exporters to Washington to search for a solution within the IGA's structure.

Events of the last month have shown that a meeting of representatives from the U.S., Canada, Australia, Argentina, and the European Common Market failed to produce a workable solution.

Subsequent actions supposedly based on agreements reached at the meeting have generated recrimination and unscheduled counter-actions by others, particularly the European Common Market.

Price reductions by the U.S. and Canada—declared by them to have been approved at the meeting — brought protest, agreement-breaking charges and, fairly speedily, retaliatory price cuts by the ECM.

Ten Islanders Gain Places In Nationals

VANCOUVER — Ten Vancouver Island athletes qualified for starting berths in the Canadian track and field finals at Victoria during the Western Canadian championships here.

Top two finishers in the previous Canadian championship qualified automatically this year, along with the next three finishers from each of the Western and Eastern championships at the weekend.

Leading the contingent with qualifiying performances in two events each are Victoria's girl wonders, Anne Langdale and Penny May.

Miss Langdale qualified Saturday with a second-place finish in the 100 metres behind Irene Piotrowski, and Sunday was awarded second place in the 200 metres after clocking an indentical 24.4 with Miss Piotrowski.

DOUBLE VICTORY

Miss May flashed through the 100-metre hurdles with a winning 14.8 Saturday, and came back Sunday to win the 200-metre hurdles in 28.2 seconds.

In other action Saturday Larry Corbett qualified in the 3,000-metre steeplechase after finishing fourth. He was awarded a qualifying third because winner Jim Johnson is an American.

NANAIMO GIRL

Jean Baldwin of Nanaimo finished third in Saturday's 400-metres to qualify, while Stephanie Corby of Esquimalt Track Club, qualified with a fourth-place finish because winner Ann Covell of Richmond qualified from last year.

Nickie Webb of Esquimalt may qualify on her fifth-place finish if second-place Miss Piotrowski drops out, as she has indicated she may.

Sunday saw five male athletes added to the predominantly feminine list of qualifiers as Dave Weicker hustled through a personal best of 1:51.5 in the 800-metres. He finished fourth but qualified because winner Barry Cunningham qualified last year.

McLAREN WINS

Bob McLaren breezed to an easy 54.1 second win in his specialty, the 400-metre hurdles, while Roger Ruth and Gerard Dumas both qualified in the pole vault.

Victoria's Bill Clark also qualified on a fifth-place finish in the high jump because winner Wilf Wedman qualified last year, and Roger Mercier, who also qualified last year, has retired.

The nationals at Victoria's Centennial Stadium are scheduled for Aug. 30-31.

Johnny Did The Talking

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny Sain, the dissatisfied pitching coach of Detroit Tigers, was fired Sunday by general manager Jim Campbell.

Campbell said: "I talked with him (Sain) and asked him if statements in the newspapers were true. Anybody who can read a story wouldn't be surprised that he's fired."

Sain said Saturday that Mayo Smith, manager of the American League baseball club, rejected his advice about the pitching staff.

"When my advice isn't used and there are no results from what I'm doing there, then I figure it's time to leave," Sain said.

Smith said: "All I can say is that he (Sain) made all the statements."

Wilf's Big Jump Encouraging Sign

High jumper Wilf Wedman soared through a psychological barrier Sunday at the Western Canadian track and field championships in Vancouver, while injuries cut down a pair of top competitors in the Eastern final at Toronto.

Wedmann, Canadian record holder, won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 8 inches and then, in practice immediately afterwards, bettered his Canadian record of 6' 10½" with two jumps of 6' 11".

It was a frustrating experience as a record must be set in competition, not in practice. But to Wedmann it was the sign he has been waiting for for several months.

"For the first time," he said later, "I didn't lose my cool at that height. That's been my big problem—my style's fine at 6' 8" but once I tried the higher jumps, I'd blow it.

"The barrier wasn't physical, but mental."

Meanwhile at the Eastern final, Carole Roberts of Toronto, dropped out of the 100-metre hurdles final after pulling a muscle in her left leg in the first heat Saturday. She hobbled home to qualify in 14.9 seconds.

This left Cathy Chapman of Toronto as the favorite—but she never crossed the wire.

With a one-foot lead on Toronto's Astrid Verdun at the ninth hurdle, she crashed to the track with a severely injured left ankle and was carried off the field. Miss Verdun was the winner in 14.9.

The injuries leave the hurdle field wide open for Peggy Busch of Vancouver and Penny May of Victoria.

Liz Allen Sweeps Water-Ski Crowns

COPENAHGEN (AP) — Liz Allan of the United States ran two safe passes through the final women's trick event to clinch the women's title at the world water ski championships Sunday in an unprecedented clean sweep of four events.

Miss Allan, 18, took no chances and performed an unspectacular run of 3,102 which, combined with her preliminary round of 3,598, sufficed to win her the tricks gold medal and the grand slam of wins in slalom, jump, tricks and overall.

Christy Lynn Weir of the U.S. placed second in the trick finals with runs of 3,417 and 2,681, and Kaye Thurlow of Australia was third with 3,247 and 2,420.

Miss Allan's domination of the women's events helped the U.S. retain its team championship which it won at last year's world championships at Sherbrooke, Que. Australia was second, France third and Canada fourth.

Wayne Grimditch of the U.S. leaped 133 feet to win the gold medal in the men's jumping finals.

The 15-year-old schoolboy, who never competed internationally before, beat veterans in the face of high winds and difficult water conditions.

Both the preliminary and the final jumping took place on rough water with low standards the result. Wayne's preliminary jump of 140 feet combined with Sunday's effort gave him an easy lead over Pierre Clerc of Switzerland

George Athans, the 17-year-old Canadian champion from Kelowna, B.C., had been a favorite to win the men's gold but fell rounding the first buoy in the course. Athans had tied for first in the preliminaries with 33 buoys but his total points brought him down to eighth position after the finals.

Jean Perrault of Sherbrooke, Que., finished 12th after a leap of 95 feet in the jumping finals.

Ryder Cup Berth Beats Tourney Win, Says Ken

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Ken Still has two victories this year, but the greatest thrill of his golfing life is yet to come.

"It's the Ryder Cup," he said Sunday after his two-stroke victory in the $100,000 Greater Milwaukee Open. "There's no greater thrill than that. It's got to be the greatest of my career.

"I didn't expect to make it, and I just can't believe that I have. To represent our country in an international match has to be the greatest thing in my life."

Still's victory—he made the Citrus Open in March the first title of his nine-year tour career—boosted him into 10th place on the list from which 12 players will be chosen to play against Great Britain in Southport, England, in September.

But while Still, 35, nailed down a spot on the team, a disappointed Arnold Palmer failed in his quest of an improved position in the standings.

NEEDS GOOD SCORE

Palmer had a 72 Sunday and finished with 287, far back in the field that lacked most of the great names of the game.

He didn't get a point and now must finish no lower than second in the PGA championship that starts Thursday if he is to make the team for the fifth time. He now is 15th on the list.

Still shot a 65, seven under par 72 on the North Shore Country Club course, and finished with a 277, two strokes ahead of South African Gary Player.

SPLIT BRITCHES

Player also had a 65—despite an embarrassing moment on the 18th when he split his britches while lining up a putt—for 279.

"It was terrible," Player said. "I was squatting down and, zap—there they went."

Lee Elder was alone in third at 280 after a 66, Jim Wiechers had a 69 for 281, Bob Lunn had a 71 for 282 and four more were tied at 283—Larry Ziegler, Chuck Courtney, Peter Townsend and Terry Dill.

Still had a fantastic putting touch in his final round.

277—Still, ($20,000).
279—Player ($11,400).
280—Elder ($7,100).
281—Wiechers ($4,700).
282—Lunn ($4,100).
283—Dill, Ziegler Townsend and Courtney ($3 112).
289—Zarley, Rodgers, Abbott, Martin and Cerrudo ($2,120).
285—R. H. Sikes, Hennings and Miller ($1,600).
286—Garrett, Graham Opperman, Colbert and Massengale ($1,200.)

Title Bid Fails

Don Leo Jonathan and John Tolos earned an "almost" Canadian championship in a tag-team bout at Memorial Arena Saturday night.

The twosome defeated Bulldog Brown and Dutch Savage, but because one fall came on a disqualification the win does not stand as a championship.

WINDSOR MACKS EARN TRIP TO WORLD SERIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Windsor, Ont., defeated Coquitlam twice Sunday to win the best-of-three Canadian Connie Mack baseball final series and advance to the world event in New Mexico.

Windsor lost 3-1 in the first game in Vancouver Saturday but recovered behind the pitching of Al Smith, 18, to take 3-1 and 4-1 decisions at New Westminster Sunday.

Smith gave Coquitlam a run in the bottom of the first inning in the first game Sunday, then blanked his opponents. He came in with the clubs tied 1-1 in the sixth in the last game.

Windsor now moves to the Connie Mack world series in Farmington, N.M., Aug. 16.

Addy Boy Takes Dupont Handicap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Addy Boy swept to a hard-earned triumph in the $56,950 William Dupont Jr. handicap at Stanton, Del., Saturday as the Delaware park horse-racing meeting came to a close.

Owned and bred by Daniel L. Reynolds' Keystone Stable, the four-year-old colt completed the 1 1-16 miles in 1:43 1-5 under Mike Hole to earn the $37,017 first money by a length.

Thaddeus R. Trouts Balustrade was second, four lengths before Irving D. Goldman's, Top Wise.

Addy Boy paid $8.40, $4.40 and $3.80. Balustrade returned $6.60 and $5.20, with Top Wise $13.40 to show.

In Chicago, Fast Hilarious, owned by Dorthy C. Rigney of Chicago, led all the way and won the $56,000 Arlington Park Towers Handicap by three-quarters of a length.

FAVORIE SECOND

Night Invader as the favorite finished second, a head in front of Barely Once, before a crowd of 23,644.

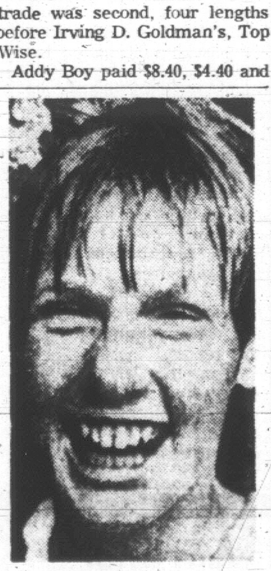
Poplar Hill Farm's Mr. Clinch led all the way to win the $54,650 Minuteman Handicap at Liberty Bell Park in Philadelphia by 4½ lengths in track record time of 1:49.2.

Ridden by Billy Phelps, Mr. Clinch reeled off a 1:36.2 over the 1⅛ miles to clip 2 1-5 seconds off the previous record.

Mr. Clinch paide $8.20 and $3.

Shuvee, owned by Mrs. Whiney Stone and winner of the triple crown for fillies, won the 89th running of the Alabama Stakes at Saratoga by four lengths.

She was ridden by Jesse Davison and earned $35,360 as winner's share of $54,400 in the second oldest filly stake in America.



WINNER of three titles in British national swimming championships at Blackpool, Eng., was Donna-Marie Gurr (above) of Vancouver. Miss Gurr, 14, took third title by winning 220-yard freestyle final by inches over England's Diana Sutherland. Another Vancouver ace, Ron Jacks, collected two free-style titles in meet, which ended Saturday.

Mainland Archer Gets World Mark

West Vancouver's Virginia Parkhurst, one of the competitors in the recent Canadian archery championships here, has been credited with a world record in the FITA event for her almost-perfect round from 70 metres.

Mrs. Parkhurst and Cliff Allen of Victoria are members of the Canadian team which has left for the world championships at Valley Forge, Penn.

Huston Stands Tallest In Bate's Softball Win

City Club Captures Title With 2 Shutout Victories

By ERNIE FEDORUK

It's been a while, but the top prize in British Columbia Senior "A" men's softball is back in Victoria.

The talented Bate Construction crew of the Major Men's League ended a 12-year drought Sunday.

They did it by shoving the defending champions off the throne with a pair of tense shutout victories at Central Park.

Bounding back from their only loss in the double-knockout provincial tournament, Bates edged Vancouver Molsons 3-0 and 1-0 behind the shutout pitching of veterans Barry Jackson and Gord Huston.

In winning, Bates became Victoria's first provincial "A" champions since Joe Bryant guided Gorge Hotel to the top in 1957.

PLAY AT CALGARY

Bates now head for a bigger prize. The Lou McCorkall-coached team is scheduled to meet Alberta's champions in Calgary next weekend. The winners of the Alberta-B.C. series will represent the Pacific region in the Canadian championships at Saskatoon later this month.

BARRY JACKSON

GORD HUSTON

As might be expected of a team strong at every position, virtually every regular contributed strongly to victory in the two-day tournament. But the "big guy" of the team stood tallest.

MOST VALUABLE

Six-foot-eight Gord Huston nailed down the deciding game and was acclaimed the most valuable player of the tournament.

The 327-pounder was superb in throwing the final victory. He also contributed at bat. His third-inning single was the first of three hits off loser Jack Kine, but it was enough to send outfielder Tom Bourne in with the only run of the game.

HOME RUN

Huston also sparked Bates to a 2-1 victory over Prince George on Saturday. His seventh-inning home run, with two out, enabled Bates to win that one.

Molsons had knocked Bates from the undefeated ranks earlier Sunday by shading the Victorians 3-1 in the "A" bracket final. Bates then qualified for a second crack at the Mols by clipping Vancouver Johnstons 4-2 in the "B" final as Brian Pearce came along to throw a four-hitter.

JACKSON TOUGH

Then it was Jackson's turn. Bates managed only three hits off loser Merle Johnson, but bunched them well for run-producing innings in the fifth and sixth. Jackson was tagged for 10 hits but was tough in the clutch.

In addition to Huston, other tournament standouts included Molson pitcher Gordon Hartley, selected the outstanding hurler; catcher Ken Campbell of Vancouver Merchants, named the most gentlemanly player, and shortstop Brian Avery of Vancouver Johnstons, the leading hitter with a .468 average.

CPGA Winner, Cox Sights On B.C. Open

Bob Cox, of Quilchena Golf Club, today set his sights on a fourth straight championship.

Cox, of Richmond, who Sunday won the Canadian Professional Golfers' championship at Vancouver with a 72-hole total of 280, is entered in the British Columbia Open golf championship at Uplands Golf Club here this week.

His victory was the third in as many tournaments. Previously he had won the Saskatchewan and Alberta Open championships.

The B.C. tourney starts here with a pro-amateur event on Thursday and the 54-hole tournament proper is Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Many of the pros who competed in the CPGA tourney will be entered in the B.C. Open.

Cox, 12-under par after 54 holes, struggled through his worst round to finish with a 76 and one stroke ahead of steady Ron Willey of Vancouver to take the $5,000 first prize and the Labatt Cup.

But he needed to birdie the final hole to do it after Willey's eagle putt on 18 stopped on the lip of the cup.

"I'm just glad I ran out of holes," said Cox.

Willey, an assistant pro at Vancouver Marine Drive, competing in his first CPGA championship, collected $3,500, but he wasn't the only one chasing Cox on the back nine of the 6,754-yard Point Grey Golf and Country Club course.

Moe Norman, of Gilford, Ont., birdied three of the last five holes, had a 72-hole total of 282, good for a tie for third place with Al Balding of Toronto and $2,000.

Defending champion George Knudson of Toronto finished nine over at 297 and picked up $210.

BROTHER ACT

The Homenuik brothers won $2,200 between them. Stan, the Dauphin, Man., pro, was in at 284 for $1,200. Wilf, who won the CPGA title in 1965, claimed $1,000 and sixth place, two strokes behind.

Cox started the final 18 by going one over on the first hole. He was even with a birdie on the second then parred his way to the seventh hole and trouble.

His club caught the grass on the backswing off the tee and he hooked under a tree off the fairway. Five strokes later, he was two over and nervous.

His approach shot landed in the bunker on 11, but he holed a "45-foot putt that must have broken eight feet," to salvage a par four. However, he was one over again on the 209-yard, par-three 13th.

Willey's second shot bit on the back of the 18th green and rolled back toward the cup, stopping 10 feet short.

The crowd gasped as his eagle putt came to rest on a tuft of grass at the edge of the hole, but the birdie tap-in wasn't good enough.

Cox lagged his putt from 25 feet to within three feet of the pin and jammed it the rest of the way for a birdie.

City Colt Squad Walks Into Final

WHALLEY—Victoria All-Stars and Surrey were walking, not running, when they clashed Sunday to determine who advanced to the final round in British Columbia-Western Canada Colt League championship play here.

As it turned out, the Island squad strolled into a final berth and within one game of the Colt League world series at Lafayette, Ind., on the fat end of a 3-2 score, while Surrey staggered a giant step closer to baseball oblivion in the nine team tournament.

In a game marred by wild pitching from both sides, combined batting line-ups only managed a total of three hits, while walks played a major role in the scoring of all five runs.

Victoria, undefeated in the tournament, went ahead in the first inning when a walked man came home, but the All-Stars pitching broke down and walked home a pair of Surrey base runners in the third.

Another walked man evened the score for Victoria in the sixth, and Ray Andre scored the winning run in the top of the seventh when he walked, stole second and came home on Jim Tarbuck's single. Tarbuck picked up All-Stars' only hits.

Victoria gets a bye into Tuesday's final at 6 p.m. They meet the winner of a Surrey-Richmond Delta clash today at 6 p.m.

Richmond Delta lost to Victoria 4-2 in opening round play.

Galt Takes Final Little League Berth

Teams that were last to qualify will be among the first to tangle in the Canadian Little League Baseball championships Tuesday at Hampton Park.

Galt Nationals earned a berth in the tournament with a last-minute effort Sunday when they swept a doubleheader with Ottawa Canterbury 4-3 and 2-0 in the Ontario championships.

Galt dropped a game to Ottawa Thursday to teeter on the edge of elimination from the five-team tournament.

At 6 p.m. Tuesday the Galt team meets Vancouver Collingwood, which marched through the British Columbia championships to emerge undefeated after a final 3-1 victory over Vancouver Dunbar Saturday.

Meeting in the first game Tuesday will be Valleyfield, champions of the Quebec-Maritimes region, and Edmonton Hardisty, winner of the Prairie playoff.

The Quebec team was in Victoria for the 1966 Canadian Little League championships.

The Quebec club was the first to qualify for tournament play, cleaning up a best of three final with St. John, N.B. Friday in straight ames.

Edmonton knocked off Lethbridge in the prairie final to complete qualifying play undefeated.

First-round losers Tuesday meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday in a sudden death elimination round, with winners meeting at 6 p.m.

Victor in the winner's bracket then awaits the winner of a loser's bracket final Thursday at 6 p.m. for a Friday final scheduled for the same time.

If necessary an extra, sudden-death final will be held Saturday at 10 a.m.

Canadian Forces at Esquimalt will hold a reception and buffet at the Chief Petty Officers' Mess tonight. Coaches and managers get a final, official briefing at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Red Lion Inn.

Winner of the tournament leaves Victoria at 8:45 a.m. Sunday for Williamsport, Pa., and a crack at the world series of little league baseball.

Stiff Ban on Outdoor Burning Follows Rash of Weekend Fires

A ban on outside burning in Victoria and Saanich started today, and will probably continue until the next heavy rainfall.

The move will hit outdoor incinerators and contractors burning rubble.

Both fire departments said the action was necessary because of tinder-dry conditions. There were six grass fires in the city on the weekend and three in Saanich.

Esquimalt is taking no action and Oak Bay will permit use of incinerators but not open fires.

The weather office reported this morning no heavy rain is expected in the near future.

However, some showers are expected Tuesday evening as a storm system works down the B.C. coast. Prince Rupert has had five inches of rain in the last four days.

City fire chief Eric Simmons said he is not blaming incinerators for weekend fires, but "everything is so dry it is explosive."

Under a city bylaw, no one may start any fire without the permission of the chief. What existing permits allow to be done is cancelled until weather brings some rain, said Simmons.

Penalty for lighting an outside fire in the city is a fine of up to $100.

In Saanich, deputy fire chief Glen Robbins said he presumed the ban will last at least a week.

"The dry conditions are a real hazard," he said.

First offenders in Saanich will be asked to extinguish fires. More drastic action would be taken on a further offence. Asked what provision exists for fines, he said "ours is about the same" as Victoria's.

The move means contractors will have to haul rubble away from buildings and householders will either have to store burnable material or put it into their garbage.

Many householders make a habit of separating their garbage into material which burns and that which doesn't.

A city spokesman said householders may have as many regulation-size garbarge cans as they wish, but only one small can is picked up. Regulation-size cans measure 18 inches across the top and bottom, and 24 inches deep inside the can.

In Saanich, the collection is two cans. The city and Saanich make pickups weekly.

The two major weekend fires burned about four acres of grass in Saanich and heavily damaged two houses on Davie Street.

Saanich fire department spent more than nine hours extinguishing a fire which started near Marigold School at noon Saturday.

●

About $200 damage was done to a house at 236 Acorn and $150 to a canvas-roofed trailer in front of 220 Acorn.

The fire is believed to have been set, possibly by children. Some handbills that may have set off the blaze are in the possession of the police.

Children playing with matches are suspected in the other fire, which broke out about 1 a.m. Sunday in a garage at 1905 Davie.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said a neighbor spotted smoke and turned in an alarm when the garage exploded into flames.

The fire quickly spread to another garage at 1919 Davie and then to the two homes, both duplexes.

Flying sparks caused some concern, said Deputy Coates since conditions were dry.

Property at 1905 Davie is owned by George Lauzon, 2128 Foul Bay Rd.

Fire officials estimated damage there at $6,000 and $3,000 at 1919 Davie, owned by Fred Sherbrook. Both carried insurance and no one was injured.

●

A large crowd gathered to watch the fires. Firemen spent 2½ hours at the scene.

The Saanich grass fire was in an area bordered by Acorn, Grange, Burnside and the Trans Canada Highway and spread through grass, brush and trees.

"It was a very difficult fire to fight," Deputy Chief Glen Robbins said.

"Both of the closest hydrants were on Burnside Road."

Owner of the premises at 236 Acorn, James Frost, was away on holidays. An outside wall was scorched and the roof burned.

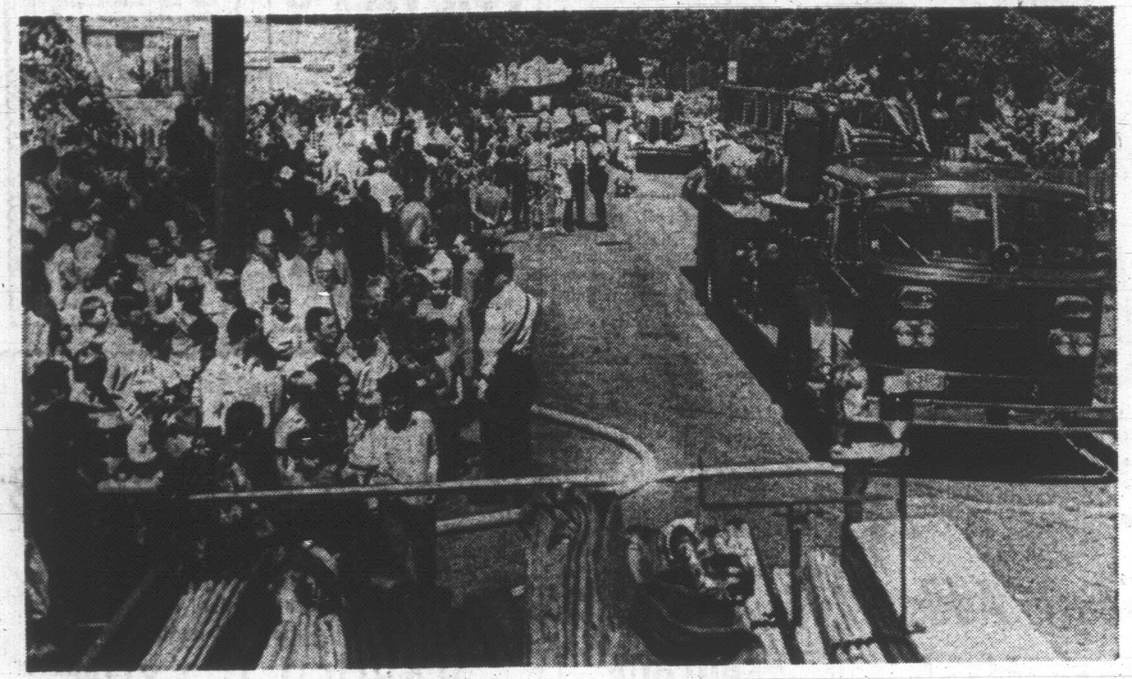
Sparks from the grass fire ignited a trailer and the fire raced through the grass and up the wall of Frost's house.

In another city fire, about $700 damage was done to a Sea Cadet Hall on Robert Street.

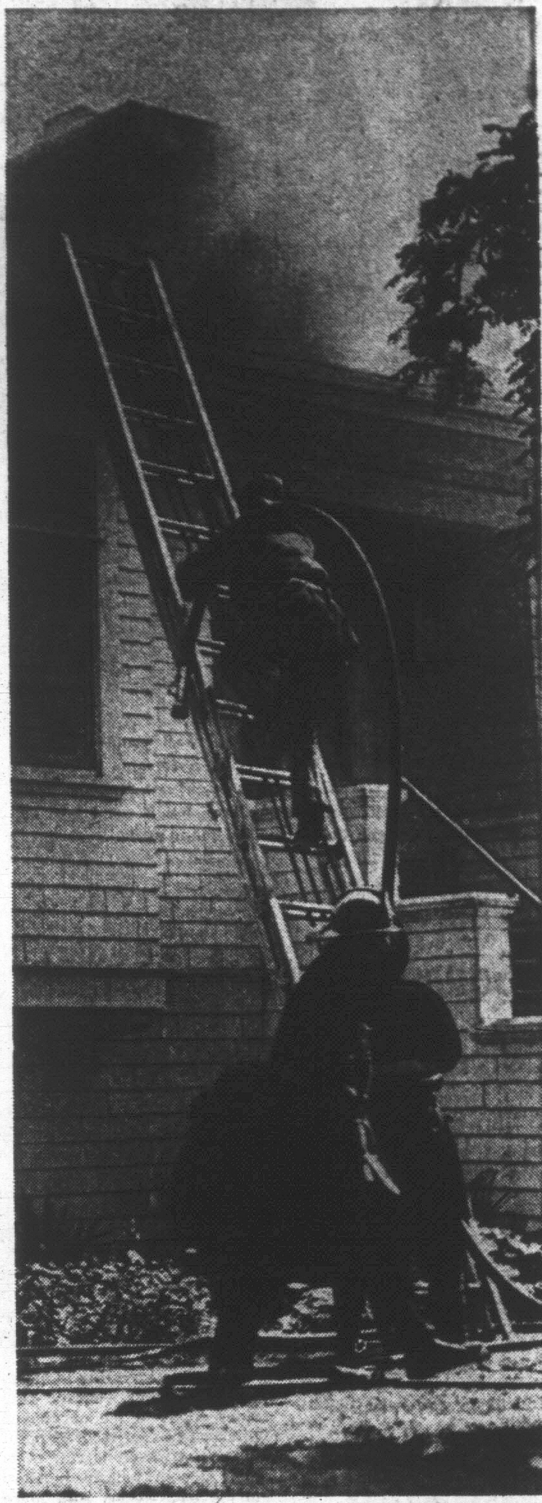
The fire started in grass at the foot of the street about 3 p.m. Saturday and sparks ignited the roof of the hall, an old army hut building.

There was extensive damage to the roof and attic of the building.

The hall, owned by the Navy League of Canada is insured. Band instruments inside were not damaged.



POLICE HOLD BACK the curious who turned out Sunday afternoon to watch firemen put out blaze that damaged two houses and garages on Davie Street. No one was injured in the blaze, which is believed to have been started by children playing with matches in one of the garages.



BILLOWING SMOKE from second-storey window at Davie Street fire is target for city firemen carrying hose up ladder. Neighbors and firemen worried during the Sunday blaze as flying sparks threatened to get out of control.

NDP Gremlins Nibble Liberal Literature

The gloves aren't completely off yet but supporters of the three political parties in Victoria riding are doing some preliminary sparring.

Somebody wrote "Vote NDP" in grease pencil on the back of campaign literature sent out Friday by Liberal candidates Ian Stewart and Mel Couvelier.

"You have to have a sense of humor," said Stewart, a Victoria alderman, after receiving numerous calls on the weekend regarding the alteration to his campaign literature.

GOOD RACTION

"Actually the reaction was good."

Stewart said he did not know to what extent the campaign literature was altered and added he did not blame it on any other party.

"A lot of work went into that literature," he said. "But people can't always control what their employees do."

The Liberal literature was distributed by The Victoria Shopper. Stewart said he brought the incident to the company's attention and plans no further action.

PRING

The election campaign has not really warmed up, he said.

"It could become hard-hitting before it's through."

"But in Victoria riding we don't have a tradition of burning down each other's campaign headquarters."

The moral approach to politics by the Social Credit government has to be questioned, said Stewart.

Stewart said the Socred with a full war chest had prepared election propaganda in advance of other parties, taking advantage of a secret election call.

"Look at all those pollution ads they are running with the people's money," he said.

BOOKED UP

Stewart said the Socreds have booked radio advertising to the point where the Liberals could not get any spots on some days.

"That's ridiculous," said Reginald Pring, campaign manager for cabinet ministers W. N. Chant and Waldo Skillings.

"We haven't got nearly enough advertising outselves," he said.

NDP candidate in Victoria Peter Bunn has stepped up the attack against the Socred incumbents.

He said Skillings, a former teacher, made his greatest contribution to education "when he quit being a teacher."

Bunn, former chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, was criticizing Skillings for his remarks on education.

APPEAL WRONG

Skillings last week said the B.C. Teachers' Federation should not have made a public appeal for more school funds.

"Teachers are hired to teach — not set policy," he said.

"This was a reprehensible attack," said Bunn.

He said the teachers were attempting to alert the public about educational shortcomings caused by past actions of the government.

With a 1 p.m. Wednesday deadline for filing nomination papers area returning officers report many candidates have still to officially enter their names.

In Victoria, NDP candidates Bunn and Phil Fawcett, and Socreds Chant and Skillings have filed.

Allan Cox was the lone candidate in Oak Bay to have filed this morning with Socred Dr. F. Scott Wallace and NDP Jack McKenzie expected to file today.

Liberal Louis Lindholm has filed in Saanich and the Islands, with NDP candidate Don Johannessen scheduled to go to the returning office today. Socred John Tisdalle is also expected to hand in nomination papers today.

Taxi operator James Gorst, the NDP candidate, is the only official candidate in Esquimalt riding. Liberal Fred Phillips and Socred Herb Bruch, deputy-speaker in the last legislature are the other candidates.

MEETING TUESDAY

In Cowichan-Malahat riding NDP candidate and former leader Robert Strachan has filed. Socred Dr. Charles Ennals and Independent Kenneth Hasanen have yet to file.

The Liberals choose a candidate for Cowichan-Malahat Tuesday.

While there are no declared candidates, James Gigsby, 26, a former University of Victoria student council member, is expected to seek the nomination.

INDIAN AUTHOR George Clutesi of Port Alberni, will make a 17-day publicity tour of Saskatchewan and Ottawa for the federal Indian affairs department. The department has arranged the tour "because of the cultural contribution that Mr. Clutesi has made," said an official. He leaves Thursday. Two of Clutesi's books are Son of Raven, Son of Deer and Potlatch, both published by Gray's Publishing Limited of Sidney.

Public's View On Duplexes Heard Tonight

Tougher regulations for duplexes in Saanich will go before a public hearing tonight at 7:30 in the council chamber.

Anyone affected by the proposals will be able to speak.

Duplexes would be prohibited in many areas of the municipality, principally in the north, central and western areas plus part of Gordon Head and the Blenkinsop Valley.

They would be permitted on lots with 100-foot frontage and 10,000 square foot area in a smaller area — Cordova Bay, just north of Portage Inlet, east of Swan Lake and south to the city boundary, parts of North Quadra, Royal Oak and Gordon Head.

The inner urban core, including the Gorge and the area north of the Saanich Panhandle, would be unchanged.

Also to be considered at the public hearing is a rezoning application to permit St. Margaret's School for Girls to be built near Blenkinsop Lake, with a sewer connection to the secondary treatment plant in the municipal yard off McKenzie Avenue.

Ask the Times

Q. Where does the expression "Show a leg" come from?

A. The expression dates back to the days when women were carried aboard old Royal Navy vessels. In order to distinguish whether it was a male or female in the bunk they were pasing, members of the duty watch would call out the expression.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Director Appointed For Mental Hospital

BROWN
. . . last step?

A director has finally been appointed for the still-empty Eric Martin Institute, but there is no indication yet when the 170-bed mental hospital will open to patients.

Cliff A. Brown, formerly executive assistant to Royal Jubilee Hospital executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles, has been appointed assistant director of the hospital, in charge of the Eric Martin Istitute.

Brown, who joined the hospital staff in January, 1968, after a long medical career with the navy, will report directly to Dr. Pickles in the new position.

Appointment of a director was thought to be the last step needed before the new centre opened, but Brown said he still could give no indication when patients would be accepted.

"We haven't set firm dates yet," he said. "but we are in the process of establishing target dates."

"It will be done in stages. But we don't like to say when at this point — it would only be misleading. There are many factors being worked on before this can be decided on."

'BEYOND OUR CONTROL'

Brown declined to say what these factors are.

"There are factors beyond our control that have to be resolved — I don't want to discuss them at this time."

Although construction on the six-storey, $6 million hospital was finished in February, and the provincial government officially took charge on April 14, it has stood empty.

Royal Jubilee Hopsital will take over occupancy of the Institute Sept. 1 under an agrement announced late in July, which gives the Jubilee a 10-year renewable lease from the provincial government at $1 a year.

Under the lease, the Jubilee will be responsible for staffing and maintaining the institute.

However, it was announced months ago only 120 of the institute's 170 beds were to be used for mental care, becasue the federal government said it would not share in the cost of the full number.

Federal policy is to support psychiatric beds only up to 15 per cent of the total number of beds of the hospital.

Meanwhile, staff has still to be hired for the centre, and furniture and equipment is still being delivered and installed now.

WHO ADMINISTERS THEM?

Conflict Looms Over Area Colleges

Greater Victoria school board and the provincial department of education could come into conflict this fall over administration of vocational and regional colleges in school district 61.

Education minister Donald Brothers and the school board have both indicated they favor amalgamation of existing college and vocational facilities under one administration.

The question in Victoria is whether the school board or the education department will administer the new set up.

Brothers, interviewed in Trail today, said amalgamations are possible in Victoria, Prince George, Kamloops and Nanaimo.

STUDIED

Three departmental subcommittees studying the feasibility of amalgamation are due to report sometime in October, Brothers said.

The school board, meanwhile, has applied to the government for permission to hold a plebiscite—a non-money vote—to get ratepayer support to elevate the Institute of Adult Studies to the status of a district college.

At its June meeting the board was told Brothers was studying their request.

Sunday it was reported the board had taken another step on the question.

A study by Jack Dalgleish, director of adult education for the district, listed advantages and disadvantages of combining the district college and the vocational school now under construction on Interurban Road.

IN FAVOR

"The report is overwhelmingly in favor of a combined school," said school board chairman Dr. Carron Jameson.

The board will use the study as backup material when they meet later this year with Brothers or members of his study group.

District superintendent Jack Longmore said today a conflict between board and government is possible. But so is compromise.

"The board has said 'we are interested in the possibilities of amalgamation,' and the department has said 'we're already doing a study,' and so the board is ready to look for areas of compromise."

SHARING

He said compromise could mean shared financial responsibility in the vocational-college area, with a single administration.

Brothers denied there was any conflict of interest between the board and the government.

"I'd like to see the school board's study," he said.

But he also said, "I don't see how they could administer voactional schools, since they come under our jurisdiction."

He said the main question at this stage is not who will administer the schools, but whether amalgamation is feasible.

Longmore said government reluctance to hand over vocational and college responsibilities to the district could be based on unwillingness to "put someone else in the picture as concerns federal-provincial estimates of financial needs in education."

Controversial 'Booth' Gets More Discussion

Saanich school board will hold a special meeting at 8 tonight to clarify use of a "time-out booth" in a research program for emotionally disturbed children at McTavish Elementary.

The board has approved the $16,000 program to be directed by Dr. Phillip Ney, a child psychiatrist. But the booth, designed to isolate a child who attacks the teacher or other children, was a subject of heated discussion at the board's July 28 meeting.

Dr. Ney has said the booth probably wouldn't be used more than two or three times a month. Estimated cost of construction is $250.

Perpetual Copper Rights End

LUSAKA (Reuters) — The Zambian government will end mining rights held in perpetuity by the country's two major copper companies and will give them 25-year leases instead, President Kenneth Kaunda announced today.

He also said the Companies—Roan Selection Trust and the Anglo-American Corp. — would be "invited" to sell 51 per cent of their shares to the government, giving it control of the industry. Zambia is the world's third largest producer of copper.

The present royalty and export tax arrangements would cease and the copper companies would have to pay a new mineral tax of 51 per cent of profits, Kaunda added.

In sweeping extensions of his year-old economic reforms, Kaunda told a meeting of his United Nations Independence party that constitutional amendments would be introduced to bring all mining rights—many of them held at the moment in perpetuity—back to the state.

Kaunda said the existing copper mines now would be given a 25-year lease. The companies would have a three-year period to produce firm plans for mining in areas where they were currently prospecting.

Under the new constitutional amendments, the government would be able to let other groups from abroad undertake mineral exploitation in Zambia, on the same basis of a 25-year lease and with 51-per-cent government participation, Kaunda added.

The takeover would be effected by the state-owned Industrial Development Corp. which would pay off the companies out of future dividends, he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Gold Index Declining

The Toronto gold index showed its sensitivity to news today as it tried to overcome earlier losses and began showing signs of recovery.

After an inactive opening, the gold index dropped 14 points, but managed to cut the loss to 9.64 by mid-afternon. The index stood at 184.54.

AT TORONTO the market was lower at the close of light trading Monday.

On index, industrials fell 1.09 to 170.34; golds 9.47 to 184.71; base metals .43 to 102.57 and western oils 2.11 to 226.61.

Final volume was 1,631,000 shares compared with 1,582,000 Friday.

In industrials, CPR declined ¾ to 73¼, Imperial Oil ⅝ to 18⅝ and Bell ¼ to 44⅛.

Seaway climbed 1½ to 11, Argus ¼ to 15¼ and Northern Central Gas ⅛ to 18⅜.

Dome Mines declined 2¼ to 56¾, Kerr Addison ¾ to 13 and Denison ½ to 43¼.

Ne Imperial rose 2 cents to $3 and Opemiska ⅛ to 11.

Great Plains was off 1 to 27 and Canadian Superior Oil 1⅜ to 35½.

AT NEW YORK with many investors reported out of the action, the market slipped lower Monday in a session that saw volume on the New York Stock Exchange fall to its lowest level in nearly two years.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed off 4.63 at 819.83.

Turnover totalled 6,680,000 shares, compared with 8,770,000 Friday. A Big Board spokesman said the volume for the 4½-hour session was the lowest since 6,360,000 shares changed hands Aug. 29, 1967, in a 5½-hour session.

Of 1,540 issues traded, 840 declined and 461 advanced.

There was one new high for the year and 70 new lows.

The high was posted by North American Philips.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common was off 0.31 at 51.59.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 1.4 at 290.8.

Analysts atributed the dull session, in part, to some investors reacting to devaluation of the French franc—announced Friday after the market closed — by withdrawing from the action.

Gold stocks generally bucked the downtrend.

Homestake rose 3¾ to 27⅛; American-South African Investments up 4⅛ at 43⅝, Campbell Red Lake, up 3⅛ at 23⅛, and Dome Mines up 3¼ at 50¼.

Closing Big Board prices included:

Roan Selection Trust, off 2⅛ at 5¼, Natomas, up 1 at 82; Goodyear Tire and Rubber, off ¼ at 26½; Benguet, up ½ at 22⅝.

On the American Stock Exchange:

British Petroleum, off ¾ at 16¼; Asamera Oil, off ¼ at 24¼; Wright-Hargreaves up 11-16 at 3⅛.

Among other Canadians on the New York Exchange, McIntyre Porcupine fell 3 and Hudson Bay Mining was down 1⅛. Distillers Seagrams and International Nickel were up ¼.

On the American Exchange Scurry Rainbow oil was up ⅛ Jupiter Corp. was down ⅝.

AT MONTREAL the market dipped sharply during light afternoon trading today. Industrials were weakest as papers alone rose.

The composite index fell 1.35 to 169.02.

In banks, Toronto-Dominion declined ¼ to 18¾, Banque Canadienne ⅛ to 11, Commerce ¼ to 18⅝ and Royal ⅛ to 19¼ while Montreal was unchanged at 14 and Nova Scotia at 22.

Among industrials, Radio Engineering was off 3 to 24, Falconbridge 1 to 128, Distillers-Seagrams ⅜ to 48¼, Canadian Pacific ⅜ to 73¼ and Canadian Hydrocarbons ⅜ to 17¼.

In senior mines and oils, Hudson Bay Mining lost 3 to 73, Husky Oil ½ to 15⅜, Imperial ½ to 18¼ and Petrofina Canada ⅛ to 19¼.

On the Canadian stock exchange, Select Financial slipped ½ to 22 and Dalfen's gained 1 point to 9.

Among speculative mines and oils, Cadillac Explorations lost 75 cents to 7.00, Phoenix Canada 40 cents to 9.35 and Camflo 40 cents to 5.50.

Volume for both markets at 1 p.m. was 511,700 shares compared with 616,800 at the same time Friday.

AT LONDON trading resumed on a quietly cautious note following the French franc devaluation.

British funds rallied after initial weakness.

Leading equities staged a modest recovery.

Dollar stocks were generally higher helped by a sharp rise in the dollar premium.

In Canadians, gains of between 1½ and 2½ points were seen in Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Canadian Pacific and Noranda but losses ranging to two points were recorded by Dome, Hiram Walker, Hollinger, Massey-Ferguson and Pacific Petroleum.

Copper shares weakened on Zambian proposals to nationalize mineral rights.

AT VANCOUVER prices dropped in light morning trading. Pre-noon volume was 1,300,000 shares.

The only exception to the general decline among top volume traders was Davis-Keays which added .30 to $4 from Friday's close.

In other mining issues Ace fell .15 to $1.75, Trojan slipped .13 to .87 and Highmont lost .14 to $1.55.

United Data and Syracuse in the oils both fell a dime. Castle lost .15 to $3.25.

CHICAGO

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices for soybeans and grains were mixed in moderately active trading today on the Boardof Trade.

Devaluation of the French franc and the United States Department of Agriculture's latest report on crops, which is to be issued after the close of trading today, were influences in the trade.

Many traders elected to remain on the sidelines until the contents of the crop report are known.

Wheat was mostly steady near the close after recovering from early losses that ranged up to a cent or more.

Corn was off fractions most of teh session withnot much demand in evidence.

Soybean meal trended lower. Soybean oil was mostly steady. At the close, wheat ½ to ¾ higher, Sept. 1.25¼; corn ½ to 1⅛ lower, Sept. 1.21⅝; oats unchanged ot ⅜ lower, Sept. 58⅞; rye ⅝ to ⅞ lower, Sept. 1.10¾; soybeans ⅝ higher to ½ lower, Aug. 2.67⅝.
